A zoo here?

Park officials weigh housing animals at Childerley Retreat

by LYNN ASINOF

A zoo may be coming to Wheeling. The Wheeling Park District is investigating the possibility of borrowing animals from the Lincoln Park Zoo to be housed at the Childerley Retreat House property if it is purchased by the district.

"The idea is to get the native population acquainted with foreign species of animals that they may not see or become accustomed to," said Park Pres. Bob Ross.

Ross has discussed the project with Dr. Les Fisher, curator of the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago. He said Fisher said it is possible for the zoo to loan the park hoofed animals such as gazelles and antelopes, providing the park district has the facilities to care for them.

AS A FIRST STEP, the park board is now studying insurance requirements, village ordinances and federal regulations to find out if the zoo is possible. Moreover, a letter has been sent to the Lincoln Park Zoo setting out the proposal in writing.

"There are certain requirements that would have to be met," Ross said. He said the park district would have to be able to provide proper housing, a 24-hour game keeper and adequate supervision for the zoo.

Ross said that until more information is available, the park district will not know how much the project will cost. "We won't know until we find out what the requirements are about how they have to be housed, how they have to be bedded and that type of thing," he said.

The idea for the zoo has been tossed around at park board meetings for several years, Ross said. He said the idea was originally to start a petting zoo in an old barn which the district was thinking of buying. That project never got off the ground, although Ross said the zoo idea pops up from time to time.

"Every so often someone says we've got to have a zoo," he said.

This time, however, Ross said he thinks the project might work. "It looks more feasible now. It's off the ground," he said.

THE PARK PRESIDENT said the proposed purchase of the Childerley property, 506 McHenry Rd., would provide the district with a good location for the zoo. The park board is also planning to use the site as a day camp, outdoor education center and meeting place.

If the zoo idea does work, Ross said the park district would probably borrow the animals from the Lincoln Park Zoo or other nearby zoos.

"Again I don't know for sure," he said. "They would have to approve the shelters, the square-foot areas. They would have 100 per cent control even though they would be billeted out here."

SILTATION AND DEBRIS deposited in this cutout Dundee Road may lead to the rebuilding of the section of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch south of creek bank behind the Town Square Apartments. The Environmental Commission is meeting with the developer to find a solution.

Zoners planning to specialize on code items

Wheeling zoning board members are starting to specialize in various sections of the zoning codes in order to make the board's hearings more efficient.

Chairman Frank Wojcik suggested each commissioner study special sections of the code, such as flood control, streets, sewers, landscaping and signs. He said this would allow the board to become better informed about potential problems in every development requesting a zoning change.

Wojcik said he has received compliments from residents who think the zoning board conducts "professional" hearings. "Let's just say that we are not pleased. We want to do better," Wojcik told the board in suggesting the specialization.

The chairman said that the special assignments given to each zoning board member would not restrict comment from other commissioners on those matters.

The zoning board members said they thought the idea might make their work easier. "It is rather difficult to know the whole damn book," said Comr. Alan Martin.

Needs money for medical expenses

Nun fights alimony challenge

A nun living in a Wisconsin convent will make her appearance in federal court in Chicago to fight for alimony payments she says she is entitled to from her former husband.

Her former husband, James Lane, 1605 Central Rd., Arlington Heights now is paying $250 a month in alimony and wants to stop payments because he contends she has "remarried" the church.

Sister Mary A. Lane, a novice at the Dominican Sisters of the Perpetual Rosary in Milwaukee, will appear before Judge Robert Hunter in U.S. District Court after failing to appear in previous sessions. Her lawyers had said she belonged to a cloistered convent and is not permitted to leave the grounds.

In a report previously submitted to the court, the nun stated she needed the money to provide for medical expenses not covered by the convent because she is a novice and has not taken vows.

Since their divorce in 1970, Lane has remarried and has custody of one of their children.

SISTER MARY Lane however, apparently was able to leave the convent. She appeared Friday before Lane's attorney in Chicago, Edward D. Rosenberg, and gave a deposition to be used in Monday's trial.

Lane, contacted by The Herald Friday, said that he and his former wife attempted to make a settlement of one half the alimony of $125 but failed.

"She claimed she needs the money for dental bills," Lane said. "But she has a savings account and a checking account. One hundred and twenty five dollars should be enough to cover her bills."

Lane believes that the convent does provide for her medical bills. "But she's not going to say that," Lane said.

Sister Mary Lane could not be reached for comment.

Commissions, boards will meet tonight

Members of the village board, zoning board, plan commission and environmental commission will meet tonight to work out any bugs in the Wheeling review process.

Trustee John Koeppen called for the meeting last year after plan commission members complained that the zoning board often tied their hand in approving projects before considering planning of the project. They said that once zoning was approved, it was difficult for them to reject a project.

Since Koeppen proposed the meeting, the village review process has become more complicated with the creation of the environmental commission, which also makes recommendations on planning and zoning matters.

The environmental commission has just begun reviewing proposed projects, and is still trying to define its role in the village system.

"THIS IS NOT the first time that we've had a joint meeting of the village board, zoning board and plan commission," Koeppen said. "But it's been a good number of years."

The trustee said he believes it is time for Wheeling to take a good look at current village codes to see if changes should be made. For example, he noted recent confusion at a zoning board hearing when commissioners were unsure about the maximum size of an electric sign allowed under village codes.

The meeting will begin immediately after the village board meeting at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Election canvass set for meeting

A canvass of election returns from the April 13 school board race and a reorganization of the board top the agenda items for tonight's meeting of the Dist. 23 school board.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the administration office at Palatine and Schoenbeck Rds., Prospect Heights.

Unofficial results from the school board election give incumbent Melvin Lace 132 votes, incumbent Vincent Battaglia 127 votes and Robert Horna 52 votes.

The board is also expected to elect a president and secretary to serve until next April.

Employees' appeal board to move toward reality

An employees' appeal board that would rule on all firings, suspensions and demotions is expected to move one step closer to passage tonight at the Wheeling Village Board meeting.

An ordinance creating the board is scheduled to be placed on its passage and put on public inspection in the village hall lobby. Final vote on the matter will come May 6.

The appeal board proposed in the ordinance is designed to remove employee firings, demotions and suspensions from the influence of politics. Employees first proposed the ordinance three years ago to protect their jobs in case of a change in administration.

The village board has called the ordinance the first step toward creating a Civil Service type of protection for village employees. The board would have jurisdiction over all employees except sworn personnel and department heads.

FINAL ACTION is scheduled on a lease agreement between the village and Andrew Koeppen, who wants to lease five acres of farmland adjacent to the village hall. The board delayed approval of the lease, which calls for $50 rent, so that further study could be given to the location of an addition to the parking lot. The increased parking is needed to accommodate a circuit court branch scheduled to come to Wheeling.

The board also will vote on proposed amendments to the life safety code, which governs the construction, protection and occupancy of structures in the village. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

THE ART OF BELLY DANCING is no longer a veiled secret as this Prospect Heights Park District class demonstrates. Miss Sabra instructs fundamentals here, but there also is a class for non-beginners. Registration for Thursday night classes can be made at 394-2848.

Suburban digest

Rule auto dealer can't buy stickers

Buffalo Grove Village Mr. Daniel Larson has changed his mind and now says the village will refuse to sell any more vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Co. of Chicago until the legality of the sales is determined. The Herald disclosed last Thursday that Grand Spaulding was allowed to buy $10 vehicle stickers for its leasing cars, in an apparent attempt to avoid paying for Chicago vehicle stickers, which cost from $20 to $50. Larson had said originally that he thought the practice was legal and would do nothing to stop it. "After talking with the village attorney, I revised my position," Larson said. "Before we issue vehicle stickers in the future, we will make sure the party can demonstrate a permanent village address," he added.

Race track blaze cause unknown

The cause of last Tuesday's spectacular fire at Arlington Park Race Track apparently will go undetermined. An investigation by Arlington Heights police and the state fire marshal's office has failed to determine what started the blaze that destroyed a 76-stall wood-frame barn. The barn, like other wooden backstretch buildings, was scheduled eventually to be replaced with concrete structures.

Mikva tax returns made public

Abner J. Mikva, who is challenging U.S. Rep. Samuel Young for the 10th Congressional District seat, paid $21,877.33 in federal income tax on $81,333.48 in 1973 earnings, according to copies of tax returns he made available. Mikva also put copies of his tax returns for the past 10 years on file at his Skokie campaign headquarters. He challenged Young "to withdraw his opposition to income disclosure and make public his financial data before the November election." Young has proposed a campaign spending limit and a ban on contributions from persons who neither live nor work in the North Shore 10th District.

Teachers propose pay hike plan

High School Dist. 211 teachers want 10 per cent salary increases next year plus additional raises during the year based on the cost of living. If living costs, as determined by the consumer price index, go up more than 1 per cent in any quarter, teacher salaries would rise by a similar percentage under the proposal. Daniel O'Brien, president of the Dist. 211 education association, said he believes "we are the first education association to propose such a thing."

Nun to fight alimony challenge

A nun receiving $250 a month from her former husband is scheduled to appear in court today to fight his challenge to her alimony payments. Her ex-husband, James Lane, 1605 Central Rd., Arlington Heights, wants the payments to stop because she has "remarried" to the church. Sister Mary Lane, who had been unable to leave her Dominican Sisters convent in Milwaukee for court appearances, gave a deposition in the dispute Friday and is expected to appear today for a hearing before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert Hunter.

New pot-like drug circulating

A new illegal drug, Rocket Fuel or Safe Grass, has started circulating in the Northwest suburban area. Agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group said the drug looks like marijuana but actually is parsley treated with PCP, an animal tranquilizer that is a controlled drug.

Planner accused of conflicts

Palatine Village Trustee Richard W. Fonte has called for the resignation of Tom Moody, plan commission chairman, because of an alleged conflict of interest. Fonte said Moody's engineering firm, Murray and Moody, represents developers who appear before the plan commission. "I think it is clear if you were a builder in town and would like to increase the prospects of a favorable approval of your project by the village, it surely would help to have the plan commission chairman as your engineer," said Fonte. Moody said Friday he has made no decision on resigning. "I'm trying to figure out what would be the proper thing to do," he said.

$20,000 coin collection stolen

A coin collection valued at $20,000 to $30,000 was stolen by burglars late Saturday from the home of Donald Little, 1408 Fairlane Dr., Schaumburg. Little returned from work to find the house ransacked and the collection missing, he told police. Among the stolen coins were 824 silver dollars, mint coin sets from the U.S. and Israel, 5,990 pennies and silver coins minted during World War II.

Propose keeping track of drunken driving cases

Groundwork has been started for a comprehensive court watching and evaluation program in the Third Municipal District of Cook County Circuit Court.

The Illinois Conference of Women Leaders for Traffic Safety, Inc., spoke to prospective volunteers Friday about the program, which is aimed specifically to keeping track of court cases involving drunken driving charges.

Helen Anderson, president of Region 5 of the conference, said the group is to be a liaison in promoting traffic safety and creating community awareness of the problems. She said the group is urging the governor to create a court-watching program to collect and evaluate data, and the women could be a basic part of that.

Israel to mark 26th year Sunday

Israel's 26th anniversary will be celebrated in the Northwest suburbs Sunday.

Sponsored by several Jewish organizations and synagogues, an Israel Independence Day rally will be held Sunday from 12:30 to 2 p.m. at Beth Tikvah Congregation, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

Families, their friends and neighbors are invited to hear speeches by local dignitaries and participate in the singing of Israeli songs.

The rally, according to its sponsors, is intended to show solidarity and support for the State of Israel. Organizing the event is the Northwest Suburban Jewish Community Council.

5 from area will play with Youth Symphony

Five Northwest suburban students will perform Friday with the Youth Symphony Orchestra of Greater Chicago at 8:15 p.m. in Chicago's Orchestra Hall.

The orchestra is made up of 100 musicians from about 50 area high schools. Tickets for the concert are available at the Orchestra Hall box office and range from $1.50 to $3 for individual seats.

Area students participating are Richard Aylward, 1202 Crabtree, Mount Prospect, a student at Hersey High School; Joyce Hansen, 661 S. Elm St., Palatine, and Emily Muligan, 758 Harvard Ct., Palatine, both of Fremd High School; Carolyn Toll, 303 N. Eastwood Ave., Mount Prospect, a student at Prospect High School; and Jane Allen, 358 Marvin Pl., Wheeling, a student at Wheeling High School.

Economy is a mess, but buyers on a binge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite rampant inflation, consumers are spending like mad and the phenomena has economists mystified.

The devil-may-care attitude runs exactly opposite to traditional behavior in such times of economic uncertainty. People usually start salting away more of their paychecks in bank accounts and conservative investments, building a nest egg in case things get worse.

As recently as the mid-1960s, a 4 per cent inflation rate was considered outrageous. Yet in the last 12 months consumer prices have risen 10 per cent and there is little relief in sight.

This upward price spiral now has joined hands with a serious economic slump. In the first three months of 1974, the growth rate of the U.S. economy nose-dived by the biggest margin in 16 years.

The combination of events, according to the textbooks, should have produced a nation of misers. Yet the personal savings rate — the percentage of income that citizens put into financial institutions dropped between January and March.

Much of this money is showing up in retail cash registers. Stores are enjoying healthy sales of necessities and luxury items.

"The consumer is not just sitting in his cave waiting . . . he is out spending," said Sydney Jones, chief economist of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Inflation itself could be feeding the retail surge. "Buy now," the theory goes, "because things will only get more expensive next year."

Income tax refunds, a windfall for many families at this season, may also be prompting some spending.

The buying binge would be welcome news during a normal economic slump. Those extra dollars flowing into the economy would be just the thing to get business moving again.

But the current decline is unusual because it is coupled with extraordinarily high inflation and the escalating prices are washing out the stimulative benefits of the consumer spending.

For example, a family might have used $4,000 last year to make two major purchases — a car for $3,600 and a television set for $400. But that same car may now cost the full $4,000 and unless the family's income has kept pace with inflation — and not many have — it is likely that the television sale will be lost.

"The problem is that the rate of inflation is too intensive for the consumer to increase the quantity of his acquisitions," Jones said. "You have to get improvement on inflation so that consumers can spend more money on goods rather than just prices."

But Jones conceded that progress on the price front will be "very painful and slow," partly because the cost of lifting the remainder of the government's wage-price control program will be still more price bulges in the months ahead.

Serious anti-inflation measures also assume the sort of belt tightening austerity programs that result in higher unemployment. President Nixon already has said he will spend whatever federal funds are required to keep the jobless rate from skyrocketing and he will get no quarrel on that score from the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Choose one—Looking up? Never worse?

From Herald News services

The White House and Capitol Hill Democrats continued their hot argument Sunday over the state of the economy.

President Nixon's chief domestic adviser, Kenneth R. Cole Jr., predicted the nation's sagging economy will recover in the second half of this year, when increases in energy and food supplies begin to take effect.

Cole said that a tax break for lower income Americans would only inflame the inflationary situation and the administration opposes such relief.

A $5.9 billion tax cut was proposed Saturday by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., in response to government reports showing the nation registered its worst inflation rate in nearly a quarter century in March as well as a slump in Gross National Product bordering on recession levels.

Branding the current situation as a recession, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Sunday accused the administration of failing to develop effective economic programs and called for a new program to reverse inflation.

Humphrey, chairman of the Senate consumer economic subcommittee, called for a program including a tax reduction, more public service jobs and a permanent inflation monitoring institution.

"In all my years in government," Humphrey said, "it is hard to remember a failure of leadership any more glaring than the failure of this administration to develop effective policies to deal with inflation."

He said that Nixon's promise that there would not be a recession in the United States was "simply the empty promise of a beleaguered President who confused what he would like to see with the hard facts of economic life."

Income tax refunds, a windfall for many families at this season, may also be prompting some spending.

The buying binge would be welcome news during a normal economic slump. Those extra dollars flowing into the economy would be just the thing to get business moving again.

But the current decline is unusual because it is coupled with extraordinarily high inflation and the escalating prices are washing out the stimulative benefits of the consumer spending.

SEN. EDWARD KENNEDY, on a fact-finding visit to Russia, takes a hand poll on one of various issues he spoke about Sunday at Moscow State University. Kennedy said he "does not believe one nation should interfere directly in the internal affairs of another." He caused a bit of a stir by adding that "magnanimous action" by the Soviet government in easing emigration restrictions would lead to a positive American response.

Democrats meet; 'landslide' seen

From Herald news services

Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, the 1974 national Democratic campaign coordinator, said Sunday his party may win a landslide in the congressional elections this fall but lose the presidency in 1976 because of it.

Carter predicted the Democrats would come out of the November elections with "veto proof" majorities in both the House and Senate "if Richard Nixon still is in office" in November.

But, Carter told high school journalists at a Democratic Governors Conference news briefing, unless the party's office holders get better organized on national policies to solve such problems as inflation and the energy shortage, the Democrats and their presidential candidate will be blamed for national ills in 1976.

In predicting a landslide for his party, Carter stole the march on four public opinion polling experts who opened the two-day governors conference being held here at the Hyatt-Regency O'Hare Hotel.

Carter also said he believed Nixon "will and should be impeached" by the House, but he did not have a guess on the outcome of a Senate trial. He said he believed there already was sufficient evidence to impeach the President — citing the withholding of evidence from Congress, tampering with White House tape recordings, and payments of hush money to Watergate burglars as three examples.

Fifteen of the nation's 32 Democratic governors were expected for the session of political shop talk. They were expected to spend some time working on policy papers for presentation at the National Governors Conference in June.

Kentucky Gov. Wendell Ford, chairman of the conference, said in advance that the meeting would include a report on complaints of some Democratic governors that their administrations were being harassed by federal investigations. The allegations had surfaced at the winter meeting of the National Governors Conference in Washington.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Democratic National Committee Chairman Robert S. Strauss were scheduled to address the meeting today. Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker is conference host.

GOP elders to meet, plan fall strategy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The elders of the Republican Party, who watched the troubles of 1973 overtake the triumphs of 1972, gather in the capital this week hoping to find some way to prevent disaster in 1974.

Three days of top-level GOP meetings, highlighted by a full session of the Republican National Committee on Friday, will focus on strategy for a fall campaign that some political seers already predict will end with the worst whipping the party has suffered in a decade.

Nixon response awaited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As Congress resumed work Monday after its 10-day Easter recess, House impeachment investigators awaited President Nixon's response to subpoenas of tapes and documents.

The impeachment inquiry against Nixon is expected to heat up with a promise from the White House to answer by 10 a.m. Thursday a subpoena voted by the House Judiciary Committee for access to 42 tapes of Nixon conversations with top aides during three months of last year.

In other developments this week, a new compromise national health insurance plan will get its first hearing in a House committee, and the Senate may face possible filibusters on the issues of no-fault insurance and busing.

Kissinger: won't restore U.S. relations with Cuba

From United Press International

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Sunday the United States has no intention of restoring diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Kissinger's remarks came when he left the Organization of American States conference in Atlanta where the first tentative steps were taken to renew contacts with the Communist regime of Fidel Castro. Members agreed their governments should be consulted about possible future involvement of Cuba in the organization.

The United States did not object to the consultations, but in his 30-minute address to OAS delegates Saturday, Kissinger made no reference to Cuba.

Shortly before leaving Sunday to return to Washington to deal with Middle East problems, he was asked why he did not speak of Cuba.

"Because we don't have any intention of restoring diplomatic relations with Cuba and I don't expect this will be a big subject this week," Kissinger replied.

Kissinger will start his projected

Middle East tour late this week by flying for Geneva for talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, diplomatic sources in Cairo said Sunday. They said Gromyko will go to Geneva specially to see Kissinger.

The Kissinger-Gromyko talks, the sources said, will deal mainly with efforts to achieve a military disengagement agreement between Syria and Israel. This is the objective of Kissinger's Middle East trip, which will be his fifth since last October's Arab-Israeli war.

His mission was given a growing sense of urgency Sunday when Israeli and Syrian ground and air forces duelled on the Golan Heights in the 41st straight day of fighting.

New finding on thread of life

• More progress was reported Sunday in the quest to find the origin of life on earth, as a University of Maryland scientist — Dr. Cyril Ponnamperuma — suggested the chemical beginning of things may have been easier than once believed. Ponnamperuma reported on laboratory experiments aimed at recreating basic molecules that unexpectedly produced what apparently is a chemical sequence of acids used by practically all organisms in the respiration process. The discovery came in an experiment in which radiation and electrical charges were injected into methane, ammonia and water — believed to have been the components of earth's original atmosphere.

• The confessed killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. — James Earl Ray — Sunday went through the third day of a hunger strike protesting his segregation from the general population at the Tennessee state prison at Nashville. Prison officials, who isolated Ray for "his own protection," expressed skepticism that he really was going hungry, saying he had access to food from the commissary and other prisoners.

• Because it was the Sabbath, the usual royal salutes were missing Sunday as Queen Elizabeth II marked her 48th birthday. The only outward signs of the occasion were the flags flying from public buildings. The traditional observance — the firing of 62 guns from the Tower of London and 41 from Hyde Park — will be heard today.

Colombians choose new president

Millions of Colombians went to the polls Sunday to elect a new president in the first open elections since 1946 offering voters a range of candidates from far left to far right, including the first woman candidate to run for the post in Latin America. All roads in Colombia were closed and inter-city travel prohibited to prevent anyone from voting twice in different cities.

Prospects dim for united Europe

In Bonn, foreign ministers of the European Common Market nations ended a weekend of private talks Sunday with some hard thinking on whether they really expect or want a united Europe. Although few details leaked out of the closed-door sessions, it was reported the ministers also discussed European relations with the United States and the Arab nations and their stance at the European Security Conference.

Gaullist vows better U.S. relations

Official Gaullist presidential candidate Jacques Chaban-Delmas has promised to try to improve relations between France and both the United States and Germany. He also said he regards himself as the man to beat in the May 5 elections despite polls which show he has slipped to third place in the race.

Cambodian Reds score new victory

Cambodian Communist forces routed government troops Sunday from the Kompong Luong beachhead 18 miles north of Phnom Penh, inflicting heavy casualties and capturing five navy rivercraft and seven armored vehicles. It was the worst defeat this month for government forces, who lost as many as 50 men killed and 400 wounded.

Permanent 55-mph limit is urged

Despite the easing of the energy crisis, the nation should consider making the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit permanent, advises Dr. James Gregory, head of the National Highway Traffic Administration. The highway death toll has declined for the past three months, and Gregory attributes the drop to lower speeds.

Court order shuts down mining complex

On orders of a federal judge, Reserve Mining Co. shut its huge Silver Bay, Minn., taconite complex Sunday to end dumping of its waste into Lake Superior that was found to be endangering the health of residents. At least 3,000 persons were thrown out of work by the order. The judge said the plant could not be reopened until Reserve was able to comply with Minnesota air pollution standards.

Rape suspect caught in road block

A 26-year-old rape suspect, with his wife and one-year-old child in the car, sped through roadblocks before police closed a section of Interstate 55 near Joliet and shot out the tires on his car to apprehend him early Sunday. The suspect, Lester R. Underhille of Aurora, was sought for the rape of a 13-year-old Naperville girl. Twenty-five squad cars were involved in the chase at speeds up to 100 miles an hour.

Walker pledges mental health action

Gov. Daniel Walker announced Sunday he will meet with state mental health leaders and representatives of private mental health groups once a month in an effort to improve state mental health department programs. He also announced he will ask the General Assembly to add to his fiscal 1975 budget whatever funds remain in the current fiscal year's appropriation.

and wounded six. More than 300 black males have been stopped and searched by police thus far in the practice which is being severely criticized by black community leaders. Police said Sunday no new leads have developed in the search for the killer.

Their role given increased importance in providing services

Revenue sharing—boon for townships

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Federal revenue sharing has created a new and expanded role for township governments in the Northwest suburbs.

The federal money, which has raised local township revenues by from 13 to 24 per cent over their local tax collections, is being spent on such things as bus services for senior citizens, counseling services for teen-agers and day-care centers.

It has given township government new importance in providing social services and helping to fund service agencies which had gone begging for funding before the federal money arrived.

While only 4 per cent of the federal revenue-sharing money being distributed nationally is spent on such social service projects, most of the federal money coming to local townships is spent that way.

SCHAUMBURG Township, which has the highest local revenue sharing receipts because of a library tax it levies, has received $300,497 from the federal government. Other township totals are $295,612 for Wheeling Township, $244,327 for Elk Grove Township, $189,383 for Palatine Township and $142,521 for Maine Township.

The dollar figures mean increases in total revenue of 24 per cent for Wheeling Township, 19 per cent for Elk Grove Township, 18 per cent for Schaumburg Township, 15 per cent for Maine Township, and 13 per cent for Palatine Township.

Like for municipalities, township revenue-sharing funds are split among all townships in the county based on population, per-capita income of township residents and the taxes collected by the township.

Township officials like Elk Grove Township Supervisor Richard Hall say the use of the federal money for social service projects is exactly what Congress had in mind when it decided to give partial federal income tax collections to local governments with the aim of using the money for the most pressing local problems.

OTHERS, INCLUDING most prominently the League of Women Voters, say townships are exceeding their legal authority in spending the federal money for services outside their traditionally limited bailiwick of township road maintenance and general assistance payments.

In the center of the argument is HB 739 enacted by the Illinois General Assembly to allow townships to spend revenue sharing money for any of the varied purposes authorized by federal law.

Some townships are going ahead on spending, relying on the law. Others await a court decision on its validity before spending some of their revenue sharing money. The court case seeks a decision on whether the state law supercedes a federal rule that a local government can only spend revenue-sharing money on projects it could legally finance with local tax money. Illinois townships are severely limited in their local taxing powers.

Even if the court rules against the social service uses of the township revenue sharing funds, there is another bill to expand the powers of townships to spend local tax money pending in the legislature.

THE MAIN EFFECT of the proposed law sponsored by State Sen. John Nimrod, R-4th, would be to open the doors to varied township uses of federal revenue sharing money.

Until 1969 townships had a similar role of funding social service projects. At that time the money came from excess township tax collectors' fees.

But when that fee was ruled invalid, townships were forced out of the social service funding business.

The receipt of revenue sharing money in 1972 reopened the financial opportunity for townships to help fund agencies

A HEAD START program at Hoffman Estates High School received $2,000 of federal revenue-sharing money from Schaumburg Township. Palatine Township gave $13,500 to support preschoolers from its township.

even though federal law makes no requirement for citizen participation in revenue sharing spending decisions.

Maine Township, one local township which is just now beginning to spend its revenue-sharing funds, set up four committees of township officials and interested citizens to devise programs within the areas of youth, mental health, the elderly and library services.

Palatine Township auditors heard detailed presentations from area agencies seeking portions of the federal funds. So far none of the agencies which sought revenue sharing money from Palatine Township has been refused.

Palatine Township is a good, if extreme, example of how revenue sharing money has directed citizen interest to often ignored township governments.

More than 100 persons showed up at that township board's discussions of funding for the Crossroads Clinic, a venereal disease and birth control clinic for teen-agers.

WHEELING Township also set up committees to decide how the money should be spent. Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus said the township moved slowly in spending the money because of concern for how federal guidelines limited the townships' ability to spend money.

In Schaumburg Township more than 30 persons attended hearings on purchasing a van for senior citizen transportation. At other hearings of a committee to consider how to spend revenue sharing, "Our audience varied from three or four to a maximum of 10," said Township Supervisor Vern Laubenstein.

The township also decided to fund the Crossroads Clinic.

"Sure it was controversial, but we weren't afraid to wrestle with it," Laubenstein added.

Turnout was small at hearings on spending in Elk Grove Township. Supervisor Richard Hall said his officials have found the federal money "gave us the opportunity to give more service, get into fields we couldn't get into before because laws governing us are strict."

like Clearbrook Center for the mentally and physically handicapped and Countryside Center for the retarded.

In addition to giving the money to established social agencies, some townships have started social service projects of their own with the federal money. Some of the money has also gone for township capital expenditures like office equipment and sewer work.

TOWNSHIPS held public hearings or appointed citizen committees to decide how the federal money should be spent.

AFTER THE various public hearings and committee reports, township officials in the Northwest suburbs divided their spending among a variety of programs.

Among the similarities were bus services for the elderly begun in Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships.

Schaumburg Township has allocated $15,000 for its program in which it purchased a $6,700 bus and hired a bus driver for $3.50 per hour. It provides free rides for elderly township residents who make reservations 24 hours in advance by calling the township offices.

Palatine Township charges 25 cents a ride for its service for residents 60 years and older living within the township except for residents of Rolling Meadows. The township has spent $663 of revenue sharing funds so far on the program which is operated by paying a private bus company on a mileage and per hour rate.

Elk Grove Township's service began in November and has cost about $1,200 so far for a program using a private bus company.

ELK GROVE Township also has purchased a $7,000 bus for the program, but is holding off on hiring a driver for the bus until after a circuit court judge rules on the legality of township bus service financed with federal revenue sharing, according to Hall. Free rides for elderly residents on the private buses will continue with the bills paid by revenue sharing, however, pending the outcome of the court case, he said.

The vast majority of township funds in all local townships has been allocated for various counseling projects and for programs for the handicapped and the retarded.

Clearbrook Center in Rolling Meadows has received more than $6,000 from Elk Grove Township, $15,000 from Palatine Township and $5,000 from Schaumburg Township.

The Crossroads Clinic has received nearly $900 from Elk Grove Township so far out of a $2,000 promise, and Schaumburg Township pledged $2,000. Palatine Township's $5,000 contribution promised to Crossroads was held back pending a decision in the circuit court case on spending powers.

COUNTRYSIDE Center for the Handicapped in Barrington has been promised $4,500 by Palatine Township and $5,000 by Wheeling Township.

The Bridge, a youth counseling center received $10,000 each from Schaumburg and Wheeling townships.

And the Elk Grove Schaumburg Mental Health Center has received $11,500 of the $21,000 promised by Elk Grove Township and has been promised a total of $65,000 by Schaumburg Township.

Park district wrapup

Site release increase asked

The Wheeling Park District Board is asking that S & L Engineering up their contribution to the district to $3,500 in exchange for the release of a park designation north of Hintz Road south of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

The firm had previously offered $3,000 to the district for release of the site. An industrial park planned for the property would include 4½ acres of the 17-acre joint school-park site.

School Dist. 21 has already approved release of the site for a donation.

Park board members have discussed the matter at the past two board meetings, saying that the district has recently been granted several park designations. The commissioners said they should be careful about releasing their sites until the need for the land is properly evaluated.

The $3,500 figure was a compromise between the $3,000 offered by S & L and the $4,000 suggested by one of the park board members.

New park employees sought

Park Supt. Dave Phillips has asked the board to approve hiring of a new recreation supervisor and a clerk typist effective in May.

Board members had earlier approved the hearings for after the passage of the 1974-75 budget. Phillips, however, said the May starting dates would better fit the district's scheduling.

The superintendent said he would like the recreation supervisor, who will oversee women's and girl's programs, to have a 30-day orientation period before summer programs start June 15. He said the new clerk-typist will be needed May 1, when the part-time help will leave the park district.

The matter will be discussed in executive session at a special park board meeting Thursday night.

ANDY ADAMOWSKI took advantage of the opportunity to make friends with a rhea when he visited the petting zoo featured at the Buffalo Grove Mall last week. Children were able to feed and pet many unusual creatures included in Joe Frisco's Wonderful World of Animals.

'Keep this land open...'

"MAKE IT SO THEY don't build an apartment on this land," said Bob Brytowski. He said this open field north of the village is one of the few spots left in the Northwest suburbs where an amateur cyclist can still go after school "just for a little fun."

Buffalo Grove to curb its stickers

by JOE FRANZ

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson has changed his mind and now says the village will refuse to sell any more vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc. until the legality of it is determined.

The Herald disclosed last Thursday that Grand Spaulding, 3300 W. Grand Ave., Chicago, purchased 207 Buffalo Grove stickers this year and 235 in 1973, apparently to avoid paying the city's higher vehicle tax. Officials have said the village has been selling vehicle stickers to the firm since at least 1971.

Grand Spaulding owns property at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, but does not yet operate out of that location. Since the firm keeps the cars at the Grand Avenue location it should be buying Chicago vehicle stickers which cost $20 to $50, compared to Buffalo Grove's which cost $10 each.

Larson said Thursday, following the disclosure, that he thought the practice was legal since Grand Spaulding owns property in the village. He said he did not plan to take any action and probably would authorize the sale of additional stickers to Grand Spaulding if a request was made.

Larson said Friday, "After talking to the village attorney I have revised my position. The village will not issue any more licenses until the legality is determined or until Grand Spaulding has a location in the village."

THE FIRM WAS given approval by the plan commission last week for an auto dealership and leasing division in Buffalo Grove. It will now be considered by the village board.

Len Krause, president of Grand Spaulding, said last week, the firm's attorney informed him that it was legal to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers since the firm owns property in the village.

In order to obtain the vehicle stickers, Grand Spaulding gave a Buffalo Grove post office box number. A random check of state license numbers, however, revealed that all the cars are registered at the Grand Avenue location. Thus, the firm gave Buffalo Grove one address for the same cars.

Village Atty. Richard Raysa told The Herald last week that if Grand Spaulding is not housing the cars at a location in Buffalo Grove it probably is in violation of the law. The village and the City of Chicago, he said, probably could take legal action against the firm.

DAN CEPA, ASSISTANT city clerk, said two men from his office are investigating the sale of Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding. He said the investigation will take several days to complete.

If Grand Spaulding is found in violation of a city ordinance it could be fined $25 to $200 for each sticker illegally purchased in Buffalo Grove.

Although the village will issue no more stickers to Grand Spaulding, at least for the time being, Larson said no action is planned for the ones that already have been sold. "That's a matter that Grand Spaulding and Chicago will have to work out among themselves," he said. "I don't want the village to get caught in the middle of a controversy."

Larson said the village in the future will make a thorough check on all requests for a large number of vehicle stickers at one address. Until now, he said, Grand Spaulding is the only firm requesting a large number of stickers.

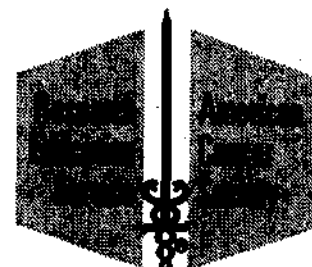

"Before we issue vehicle stickers in the future we will make sure the party can demonstrate a permanent village address," Larson said.

Robbery nets $70 at gas station

Two armed robbers allegedly stole about $70 last week from the Clark gas station on Wolf Road, north of Palatine Road in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

According to Wheeling police, who are now handling the case, two men, at least one of whom had a knife, held up the station about 9:30 p.m. The men were described only as about 5 feet 5 inches tall and white. They allegedly fled the scene in a 1967 black over red Oldsmobile convertible.

Cook County Sheriff's police, who are handling the case, could give no further information.

Mount Prospect support vowed

Library expansion backed

I have noted in the press that the library board and the city are moving toward the finalization of a plan for the expansion of the Mount Prospect Library. This action is to be commended. In order for a suburban area like Mount Prospect to maintain a healthy growth there must exist a sensitivity to the cultural life of the community in addition to pure material development.

Many experts in urban planning have indicated that there is an inherent danger that the new "suburbia" will follow the decline of many of our major urban areas if capital expenditures and long range planning do not retain considerations for the cultural life of the community.

For example, many of us who attend the outstanding Northwest Community concerts are amazed that in this area of great financial vigor that surrounds us does not support some sort of an auditorium facility that would provide a proper base for activity of this kind.

As a city that has provided substantial competency in providing services such as fire and police protection, Mount Prospect should take the lead in the cultural field as well. As city government and the library board proceed in plans for a library, I think all of us in Mount Prospect should support their efforts vigorously. And, as plans are more precisely determined, perhaps the plans for the library should encompass a broader concept than that of a reservoir of books. Although obviously the library must, of course, be a prime consideration, perhaps thought should be given to a broader function that encompasses the concept of a "cultural center." The present library personnel have already taken many positive initiatives in this regard within the limitations of the physical facilities available.

Fence post

letters to the editor

Of course, in addition to the positive cultural benefits that would be derived from such action, there would be a sound "return on investment" in the areas of property values. It would appear that people in all age groups these days are finding that there must be a broader dimension to living than are found in the limitations of excellent shopping centers, swimming pools, and social facilities, as important as these functions may be. The interpretation of future property values will undoubtedly be reflected positively in those areas where consideration is given to the cultural dimension.

As the city and the library board proceeds with their building plans I hope that they will not underestimate the willingness of home owners and business leaders to support their efforts in this regard.

Hits Schaumburg leaders

With much amusement, mixed with much disgust, I read your Thursday, April 11 Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates edition. The article I speak of is the front page article describing action taken at the Tuesday board meeting of the Schaumburg Village board.

Trustee Ray LeBeau, you should be ashamed of yourself! Why the thought of your aesthetics committee even suggesting a village contest permitting residents to submit entries for the development of a village flag and logo! How preposterous! Did you forget this isn't an election year? Don't you know by now that Schaumburg has no creative talent among its citizens for such undertakings? Heaven forbid, we surely don't need all that motherhood-apple pie stuff out here! And worst of all, the top prize could probably have been a $100 savings bond. Not nearly expensive enough you know.

Trouble is, Ray, I had a couple entries all ready to go for your contest. One entry was a village flag depicting a reproduction of the famous "master plan," and the accompanying village logo would have been: "In Bob We Trusted." The second entry was a village flag depicting a booming metropolis. You know, all that big city stuff; tall buildings, traffic congestion, no-left-turn signs, pollution, etc. And up in the corner of the flag would have been a singing cowboy, mounted on a horse, heading off into the sunset. Needless to say, the song he is singing, and also making up my second village log, would have been: "I Did It My Way." Too bad though, I'll never know if I would have won.

And Mayor Atcher, you're absolutely right. This is "something for eternity." Why heck, I don't think $2,000 is nearly enough! Possibly we could have a "Designer's Day" out here. Invite out all these professional Chicago designers to see for themselves all the wonders of Schaumburg. You know, really get a "feeling" for the village. Why they might even want to move in. As all the residents of Schaumburg know, money grows on trees out here. Why just the other day I was heralding the advent of spring, and sure enough, my trees are going to do it again this year. I mean with my own eyes I saw little $50 bills starting to bud all over my trees. No, $2,000 isn't nearly enough for such an "eternal" project.

As for the rest of you village puppets, just lapse back into your apathetic limbo. When the grand puppeteer wants to hear from you, he'll pull your strings. (Purse strings that is!) Then again he might want to shake your tree. You know, that money tree I was talking about.

Joe Dietz

Foreign aid decried

On April 3 a Fence Post letter stated, "I hope that most people don't go around worrying about the communists taking over." This strikes me as a most extraordinarily naive attitude in light of the vast amount of information we now have available to prove that the Kremlin still cannot be trusted. I am thinking especially of the over 5,000 secret documents that Col. Oleg Penkovskiy, a high ranking member of the Russian Secret Police (KGB), photographed and delivered to the west. (He also wrote his notes which are now available in the form of a book.) His message was that Khrushchev and certain high leaders in the Kremlin were planning a sneak atomic attack on the United States. His logic was that if he could "let the cat out of the bag" the plans would have to be abandoned. Eventually he was discovered and executed by the Russians in 1963.

Dare we assume that the Russian attitude has changed since that time? Hardly. Approximately two years ago Mikhail Suslov, the Communist Party Theoretician, stated that the current detente with the United States was merely temporary, and the purpose of the detente was to give the Soviets sufficient strength for a renewed assault.

As usual, most of this strength will come from the United States. Up to 1960, the largest motor vehicle plant in the USSR was the Gorki Plant built by the Ford Motor Company. Used extensively on the Ho Chi Minh Trail, these vehicles moved the war materials used to kill 46,000 Americans in Viet Nam. In 1968 the Fiat automobile deal was made which will supply the Russians with another automobile plant 3 times larger than the Gorki plant. But the biggest deal of all will be the KAMA heavy truck plant which will produce 100,000 heavy ten ton trucks per year. That's more than are produced by all U.S. manufacturers put together. This deal was initiated by the Nixon administration in 1972. Why hasn't someone mentioned this as a reason for impeachment? The book to read on our aid to Russia is "National Suicide-Military aid to the Soviet Union" by Anthony C. Sutton.

No one likes a prophet of doom and gloom, and it even becomes a bit tedious listening to someone who insists that we be constantly on guard. It is so easy to make people feel good by telling them that everything is going to be alright. And if you can crack a joke comparing the gloom merchant to Archie Bunker, then you indeed will be classified as a clever wit and everyone will adore you. How we joke about these serious problems amongst ourselves is quite alright, but might I suggest that occasionally we send a letter to some leftist member of Congress and let him know that we are sick and tired of how they completely disregard their solemn oath to uphold the Constitution, and that they could start making amends by making sure that our tax dollars do not go to help any foreign nation, and especially those nations who have publicly avowed that they will destroy us.

Edwin J. Kudalis
Mount Prospect

Pro-life backed

It is unfortunate that many people such as Antoinette Seigla do not understand the work of Pro-Life, because it encompasses more than just letter writing and hand wringing. Pro-Life gives counseling services to women suffering mental disturbances resulting from abortion. Pro-Life gives pre-natal, medical and placement services to women as an alternative to abortion. Pro-Life teens give of their time on weekends to work with the mentally retarded children, orphans and the aged.

Pro-Life is people of all ages giving to themselves, their time, effort and money, to offer a viable alternative to abortion, and to help where there is need. These people do without and make sacrifices to help others.

Abortion is being promoted today as the solution to many of the ills that beset our society. Some people want to take the easy way out in these issues, and it is a fact in history that when people take that course they destroy themselves. Countries that have liberalized abortion laws are now encountering increased promiscuity, mental health problems and a breakdown of the social structure as a result of this action. This pattern has been followed in Hungary, Sweden, England and Japan.

We would all like to offer enough money to eliminate the problems which exist in our society, but money alone will not solve our problems. Time and care is more important and it gives something money can't buy.

Barbara Menes
Schaumburg

Reader: 'Ode to construction man'

We work in rain, or snow, or sleet.
We freeze our faces, hands and feet.
We work long hours in the blazing sun.
Our breaks are few, lunch is way past one.

Some rainy days we're up to our ankles in the mud,
We pray to God, we won't fall in with a thud.

We know full well what has to be done,
Believe you me, it ain't no fun.
Still, we don't let everyday living get us down,
We don't let everyday workloads make us frown.
Proudly we proclaim to be America's steady heartbeat.

Yet, to others, we appear crude, rough and not very neat.
We have wives that are behind us "all the way."

Noncomplaining, giving us our meals at all hours of the day.
We need steak and beef to keep our energies high.

With food prices these days, makes us want to cry.
Our good wives now feed us hamburger and fish,
God only knows, what is in that casserole dish.
A hard hat works and lives harder than most men.

Abortions encouraged

In rebuttal to several letters that appeared in the Fence Post on April 8 opposing abortion, it is necessary to point out one assumption that I consider erroneous. June Orlovski stated that the true issue is "death on demand." M. Todd said "abortion is murder."

There are people, including many doctors and theologians, who do not share this view. I contend that a fetus is only a "potential" human being; therefore the destruction of a fetus cannot justifiably be called murder anymore than the destruction of an unfertilized ovum could be called murder. Those of us who share this view should not be forced to abide by the beliefs of those who disagree; nor would we wish to force our ideas upon them.

The Supreme Court ruling did not decree that anyone must submit to abortion, but only provided that it be available to those who desire it.

As for the statements of Mary Koblas equating abortion with euthanasia, this is an emotional approach often used to cloud the issue. Euthanasia is a completely different issue and has no place in a discussion of abortion.

Mr. Rosenberger quite ably presented other aspects of the question and I agree with his arguments wholeheartedly.

Abortion logic blasted

Since the Fence Post has been dealing with the subject of abortion of late, I would like to begin by laying my biases on the table and saying that I thoroughly enjoyed and concur with Mr. Rosenberger's letter.

On second thought, I disagree when he refers to some anti-abortion views as twisted logic. I see no logic at all in their arguments, twisted or otherwise.

Let's examine point number one, that abortion is murder and that the heart is beating after so many months, brainwaves at so many months, etc. That part of the argument begins and ends with the fact that I do not believe that a fetus of three months is a viable human being and that people like Mary Koblas obviously do. However, she seems to be under the mistaken belief that people like me, on the pro-abortion side, are ignorant of and have only to be informed as to exactly what happens to a fetus during gestation for us to realize the error of our ways. In this she is wrong. Most of us are well enough informed to be convinced that we are not committing murder (or anything of the kind) by advocating liberalized abortion laws. Mark you, I have attended the Right-To-Lifers' meetings with the tape recorded fetal heartbeats, abortion slides, etc. What impresses me most about the Right-To-Lifers is how well funded they are. The slide projectors and tape recorders always seem new.

Now let me get down to the point which really frosts me. Since it is unlikely that you, Ms. Koblas, or you either, M. Todd, are going to shop around for an abortion, why must you insert your collective noses into other people's business when they wish to obtain a legal abortion?

If you are so concerned about lives, and children's lives in particular, there is no end to the need for your services.

Two thirds of the people in the world (two-plus billion) are malnourished (don't get a proper diet, usually protein deficient) and one third of the people alive in the world today (one-plus billion) are undernourished (don't get enough of any kind of food).

Furthermore, since 40 per cent of the population of the underdeveloped world is made up of people under 15 years old, these children are usually the ones who comprise the bulk of the 3 1/2 million people who die of starvation each year (3 1/2 million is a conservative estimate).

Granted, it would be more convenient for you to help these people if they lived next door in Mount Prospect, but I'm sure you'll understand they haven't been able to scrape together the air fare yet.

Abortion is of interest to me also because of our present world problems relating to population, resources and environment. If you don't understand what I mean, think it over when you're waiting in line for gas or in a traffic jam, or try drinking the water from local streams.

I don't wish to digress too far, but you did bring up euthanasia which has absolutely no relation to abortion; so I feel safe in bringing up overpopulation which has at least some relationship to abortion as a tool to control unwanted births.

If you haven't yet visited an underdeveloped country where life is cheap, the standard of living is rock bottom and education is almost non-existent, try it some time. It does two things. First, it makes you appreciate what we in the overdeveloped United States enjoy and secondly it makes us look much more analytically at where our present conflict between population growth, environmental degradation, natural resource consumption and our excessively high standard of living will lead if we don't make some very difficult decisions very rapidly.

'Divided on abortion'

For many years I have favored legal abortion. During the first three months of pregnancy the fetus is, in my opinion, an extension of the woman's body, not a human being. Thus, I was very pleased when, on Jan. 22, 1973, the U.S. Supreme Court overruled state laws prohibiting and restricting a woman's right to obtain an abortion during her first three months of pregnancy.

The majority is hardly decisive. However, one conclusion is completely clear: The U.S. public is almost equally divided on the issue. I believe that government cannot be effective in matters affecting millions of people unless it has at least the tacit support of a significant majority of the population. Thus, it would be a serious mistake to pass a law or constitutional amendment limiting abortion during the first three months of pregnancy.

Why not 'doctor'?

On the front page of the Herald's March 28 edition, there was a photograph of a handsome little girl looking at an ear speculum. The caption read, "Susan appears to be preparing for nursing."

Would it be too bold to suggest substituting doctor instead of nurse?

Timely quotes

"If I have a criticism of Congress, it is that having passed good legislation, and seen the President veto it, they are not men enough to stand up to him and override. That may well be where people are faulting Congress - for not standing up to its constitutional responsibility."

—Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio.

"Frankly, it makes me a little angry. We had the Lippizaner stations here, open to everyone, and only drew 2,500 people in a 16,000-seat stadium. We showed Chaplin's 'Modern Times' and 100 showed up. Then we booked a Swedish porno film and filled the house for two shows... so we asked ourselves, 'What do people want to see?'"

—Philip Rawls, head of the University of Alabama Program Council and sponsor of an officially sanctioned "Sex Week" on campus.

"You're in a world where music is everything, success is everything. I couldn't be friends with anyone. It was like being in one of those films where you wake up and you're suddenly dead and can see everybody but no one can see you."

—Rock musician Johnny Winter describing the lonely road tours early in his career and leading to his eventual narcotics addiction.

"Things are getting worse. We are increasingly harassed by the population and the police. People still believe stupid old legends about Gypsies being kidnappers or sorcerers."

—French Gypsy leader Marce during an interview concerning the plight of 300,000 Gypsies now roaming Europe.

"Many people are surprised that we offer kidnapping insurance but right now we need all the time we have just to work on the requests we're getting."

—Anonymous insurance company manager discussing his firm's increase in kidnapping insurance applications.

Get a day off and we can't wait to get to work again.

By our hats and clothes you can detect a true construction man.

We show off our union buttons on our chest, whenever we can.

We stand together steadfast, constructing a better place for you to live.

Our backs, our weathered hands and silent hearts are all we have to give.

A Hard Hat, I am,

A Hard Hat, I'll always be,

Till the job is over and the Boss upstairs beckons me.

DEAR JOAN ADAIR,
You saved my wedding day! With a combination of the flu and a temperature of 103, I was anything but the "blushing bride". Not only did you help me in getting dressed, but my attendants as well. And most of all, I must thank you for sewing my father's tuxedo when we discovered it split up the back! It was a fitting finale to all the kind assistance you've given me ever since my first visit to Carson's Bride's Room. To think that this wonderful, professional wedding service was free of charge simply because I bought my wedding dress at Carson Pirie Scott & Co. We had a lovely wedding ... thank you for your part in it.

A GRATEFUL BRIDE

Clergy 'chickens' commandeer a roost

NEW YORK—For two of the clergy who signed the notorious Black Manifesto in 1969, the chickens seem not only to have come home to roost, but to have laid eggs all over the National Council of Churches.

The two clergymen are the Rev. Sterling Cary and the Rev. Lucius Walker, who now are "the establishment," as president and division head, respectively, of the NCC (31 denominations with estimated membership of nearly 40 million).

Late last winter, however, a gang of even more militant blacks from Harlem seized and occupied for two days the entire eighth floor of the NCC headquarters building on Riverside Drive.

THEY ARRIVED equipped with neatly mimeographed press releases, which reported among other things: "With clock-like precision, a group of 30 arrived and took command."

These press releases also advised: "Try as we may, we have difficulty finding a more shameless example of Uncle Tomism" than "Lucius Walker, whose open treachery continues."

Walker not only set up the Black Manifesto conference in Detroit, but has since used his office in NCC headquarters to siphon church money to African terrorist groups. He appeared at a press conference during the occupation, and was not simply meek, but completely silent (an historical precedent).

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

Rev. Cary devoted almost the entire opening statement of his press conference to a thoroughly transparent groveling to the intruders. But when questioned by newsmen, Cary actually dared to observe that:

"Buildings are private property. Landlords have a right to protect their property . . . They (the intruders on the eighth floor) have sealed the fire doors in violation of the city fire ordinance, placing in jeopardy the lives of people in this building."

BUT WHEN ASKED why, therefore, he had not asked the police to stop this

28-hour jeopardizing of peoples' lives (including numerous black NCC employees), Rev. Cary promptly and nervously passed the question (and the buck) to NCC General Sec. Claire Randall. "That is a premature question," she growled, a red hot women's libber whose resignation the intruders also demanded. "We must negotiate with them first."

Among other impressive titles, the intruders identify themselves as "The National Committee To Reinstate Father Chapman." The Rev. Robert Chapman is an Episcopal priest whose manners and mode of operation compare favorably with the gentlemanly restraint of the hammerhead shark.

Father Chapman finally was terminated as an NCC staffer last year, after it had become painfully obvious that his one real competence was in maligning as "racist" anyone who happened to incur his displeasure.

When, however, he was dropped and four of the seven staffers in his division were retained, Father Chapman manifested another talent: his ability to recruit neighborhood hoodlums to disrupt NCC meetings, occupy floors and seize filing cabinets.

REV. CARY TOLD his press conference that Father Chapman has done "a superb job."

When asked why, therefore, Father Chapman was terminated, Rev. Cary again promptly and nervously passed the question (and the buck) to Episcopal Bishop Roger Blanchard, who "explained" as follows:

"It was felt that we had to acquire persons who could function in a collegial style and act as generalists."

Do these impressive words mean that Father Chapman is unfit for the job?

"I didn't say that!" countered the bishop angrily and anxiously, "I said he doesn't fit the job description."

(Conclusion: Father Chapman is not unfit for the job for which he is not unfit.)

Is aspirin always the best relief from aches, pains?

I read your article, "Aspirin Can Harm." I believe that you should have pointed out that other analgesics may be even more toxic. I refer particularly to Tylenol. A few days I saw a woman buy a bottle of 500 over-the-counter.

This is not a new compound, having first been prepared in 1878, and was widely used before the introduction of the less-toxic aspirin. The high toxicity of aniline and its derivatives is well known. You should have pointed out that replacement of aspirin by Tylenol should be done only under the advice of a physician.

Thank you for your letter about Tylenol. The column you refer to was about aspirin, not Tylenol, and I did not recommend that people should switch to Tylenol rather than use aspirin. You seem to be the father of that thought.

You may also be surprised that I got several letters telling me I should have told people to switch from aspirin to Tylenol.

I have to disagree with a former professor of organic chemistry, but the older medicine was acetanilid which is now obsolete and has not been used for some time. It lost out when aspirin came along. Tylenol (acetaminophen), a newer drug is less toxic than phenacetin. Other trade names are Apamide, Conacetol and Lestemp. Look it up in the "AMA Drug Evaluations," and you can see for yourself.

The same source points out that, unlike aspirin, it does not cause bleeding from the stomach or intestines as aspirin can and goes on to state it can be used as a replacement for aspirin.

It is a good medicine for the relief of pain. It does not have the anti-inflammatory action of aspirin. Thus it might relieve the pain of osteoarthritis (seen in older persons), but it would not be a good replacement for the large dosages of aspirin sometimes used for rheumatoid arthritis or other conditions where a red, swollen, inflamed joint needs anti-inflammatory treatment.

Tylenol has one other drawback. It increases the action of the medicines used to prevent blood clotting in patients after a heart attack. Anyone taking these medicines should be careful about taking Tylenol. But, for relief from aches and pains or a mild headache, it is not the villain you seem to think it to be, and, in some instances, would be superior to aspirin.

Will daily doses of digitalis have an effect on one's sex life? I have been taking it for a heart ailment for about a year, and my sex life has almost gone to zero.

No, but heart disease requiring digitalis often is severe enough to limit one's interest in sex or sexual capacity. To the extent that digitalis helps your heart, it actually can improve your sex life. There are a lot of serious medical problems that literally shut off sexual function. The correction of the sexual problem that then occurs is totally dependent upon how much improvement in one's general health can be achieved.

Officials ignored public

The men and women who run village government in Buffalo Grove deserve to be admonished for two matters which came to light last week, although in fairness it must be said the incidents show what is weak in many suburban governments, not solely in Buffalo Grove.

Events which came to light in Buffalo Grove last week centered on two issues:

- the village manager, acting on instructions from the village board, refused to disclose proposed salary raises for municipal employees. The village government believes you can't talk about these things publicly because their employees "would be disappointed" if their raises do not come through. The village board and manager do not say anything about what the taxpayers of the village would think if the raises DID go through without public discussion.

- and as was disclosed in The Herald Thursday, the village is involved in a cozy deal with a Grand Spaulding Dodge of Chicago to allow that auto dealer to buy some 200 vehicle stickers a year and thus avoid paying higher amounts to Chicago. The arrangement is illegal.

Both instances show terrible weakness on the part of elected officials in Buffalo Grove.

In the first case, the refusal to disclose how much money will be paid public employees before the budget is approved effectively blocks out taxpayer inquiries into the cost of their government. Saying public employees will be "disappointed" if their raises do not go through is specious logic, for it shows that village officials have forgotten where their constituency lies — with the people who pay the bills.

Buffalo Grove has a long history in this regard. Years ago the village clerk refused to divulge the salary of the village manager, claiming it was a private matter. There is no evidence the village has taken a single step to open its operations much beyond that stance taken years ago.

Despite the fact that Grand Spaulding Dodge got a sweet deal from Buffalo Grove, another, more serious charge emerges from that incident. Too often suburban governments view themselves as revenue producing agencies which have the power to barter with the village's powers for more money, more land, more favors from people who must deal with the village.

What is lost with that kind of thinking is the local government's obligation to guard also the quality of life in the community and the professional mandates of government service. Getting an extra $2,000 or so from a Chicago auto dealer is a demeaning and unnecessary way to conduct village government.

It may be that the people of Buffalo Grove have a village government which is out of touch with the ethics and law of municipal life. We think it would be a good idea for the decision makers in town to re-read the Illinois Open Meeting Law and Ill. Atty. General William Scott's recent decision governing the obligations of government to open its doors.

And also to reassess their own values of what is right or wrong in the way they conduct their public affairs; too much of what they do shows disdain for the people who elected them.

What does a vote cost?

Local school districts may not have realized it, but there's a new way to determine which district has the most prestige or status.

For years, there have been a variety of indexes that educators have used to judge school districts. The favorites have included number of books in school or district library, educational level of teachers, collegiate success of students and so forth.

Judging from the April 13 school board elections, there's a new standard to determine just how your local district scores on the prestige index. The standard is how much it costs for one voter's ballot to be counted in a school board election.

You'd think that it wouldn't cost much to count ballots, but an examination of two elementary districts, randomly selected, shows there can be a surprising gap in cost per ballot between the two.

Dist. 59, which covers Elk Grove township, last weekend went through its second uncontested election in a row. A grand total of 225 voters turned out to cast votes in the uncontested election. That total is only one-fifth of the 1,170 voters which turned out in 1973 to vote in an uncontested election.

As is usually the case, Dist. 59 used its 16 grade schools to conduct the election. Each of the polling places requires three judges alone to handle the Dist. 59 portion of the election.

Early last week, Herald reporter Bob Gallas checked with the district to determine what was its share of the election cost, and the district reported it cost $2,600 in taxpayers' money to conduct the election this year.

So, with 225 persons voting, it cost $11.51 cents per ballot to conduct the election in Dist. 59 — which is a pretty 450 voters turned out to exercise their democratic prerogative. That compares unfavorably with 1,100 voters in last year's election.

Dist. 25, however, uses only its four junior high schools to conduct the election. This means far fewer judges and hence much, much less in the way of election costs.

In fact, it cost Dist. 25 approximately $418 this year to conduct a school board election — and that comes down to a little less than $1 per voter.

The result of all these numbers is that it cost Dist. 59 a total of $11 per voter this year while in Dist. 25, it cost under a buck — or less than one-tenth of Dist. 59's amount — to cast a ballot.

The problem is, of course, the large number of polling places used by Dist. 59, as well as the fact that interest in who gets elected to local school boards is way, way down.

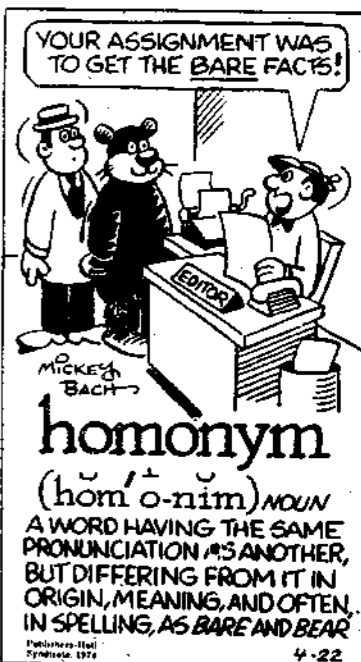

Other districts reflect the votes decline. Dist. 15 (Palatine-Rolling Meadows) recorded 978 votes, compared to an average of 1,400 in past years. Dist. 21 dropped from 1,000 last year to 819 this year. Harper College dropped from about 6,000 to about 3,000 this year. (All these districts had contested elections.)

The pattern of citizen interest in election is down, down and down. Local districts, if they want to save cash on the process, should start eliminating polling places. It'll be less convenient for voters, but it'll be far more economical for school districts. It's absurd for my imagined "prestige" of $11 per vote in Dist. 59 to represent anything more than a waste of taxpayer's money.

Perhaps, too, if we are to continue the pattern of massive voter disinterest, that uncontested elections should be declared "unnecessary" — after all, what's the point in an election which generates no opposition and a meager handful of voters? In fact, suppose they gave an election and no one came? Perhaps that event is close at hand in the Northwest suburbs.

They say that local elections are textbook examples of "democracy in action at the local level." Seems as though we ought to start working to make democracy work — both by seeking school board seats and voting in school board elections.

League draws a blast

As an elected member of your Maine Township government, I feel compelled to make several comments concerning the conduct of the League of Women Voters, because I consider their recent actions contrary to the best interests of the taxpayers and residents of Maine Township.

Your township government is a unit of local government that can, and does, provide certain services to local residents more efficiently and quickly than other governmental bodies, including county government. The township provides, for example, immediate assistance to people in need, and is the "grass roots" government for all the residents in the unincorporated areas of the township. Moreover, your township is attempting to provide certain new services, such as aid to the retarded, services

alcoholism council to provide education and referral services and assistance in the area of mental health and counseling. With federal revenue sharing funds now available, your township can provide these services with very little impact on the taxpayer. However, the League has been trying to prevent townships from using these revenue sharing funds. In effect, they are trying to prevent township residents from benefiting from tax monies being returned to them. The alternatives are either returning the money to Washington or giving it to Cook County.

As I see it, the League is dedicated to centralized government. I cite their support of RTA, their attempts to abolish township government and their support of proposed legislation which would increase the powers of the clerk of Cook County and reduce the authority of city and village clerks in the conduct of local elections.

If the League is not dedicated to transferring power from local governments to the county, then they are sadly misguided. In either case, I call upon them to review their position if they are truly concerned about good government. And,

I call upon all citizens, in their own best interests, to take whatever action is necessary to prevent the weakening of local government and the strengthening of a distant, impersonal county government.

'Protect the nice neighborhoods'

With today's price of construction and the rising cost of living, shouldn't the town council be interested in saving money? The older homes around the village of Arlington Heights are certainly less expensive to keep up than to demolish and reconstruct. Families moving into these areas enjoy the feeling of solidarity and friendship of neighbors who help each other with ideas and work on renovation projects. No one, however, is going to invest time and money in a long term renovation if they think the zoning will be changed to permit multi-family dwelling. Most of the families know from previous experience that this is one of the first signs of old neighborhood decay.

Arlington Heights is one of the few towns which still has solid, nicely kept neighborhoods surrounding the town business area. The families who live in these areas enjoy the convenience of easy availability to shopping and transportation. They share a pride in preserving some of the beauty of past workmanship. It seems a shame that they should have to consider moving in order to protect their money invested in their homes. The difficulties being faced at this time by these residents are rising labor and service costs for repairs, mounting red tape and rules governing renovations, as well as jumps of 60 per cent and higher property taxes. I know these problems are not limited to just these residents, but why make it even harder by increasing the multi-family zoning areas?

'Wonderful people'

In your editorial of April 10, regarding John McGee and Cornucopia, Wis., you intimated that the people were backwards and poor.

Before you take liberty to print another irresponsible statement such as that, I suggest you take time to investigate your facts more thoroughly.

They are proud, wonderful people who would be deeply hurt by such irresponsible reporting.

Shultz 'a strong man'

by BRUCE BIOSSAT

The Nixon administration will suffer an enormous power vacuum with the departure from office of Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz. He has been one of a bare handful of strong men in this government.

For a good while, the quiet-spoken but iron-fibered Shultz has been carrying many portfolios. In truth, he has rarely let go altogether of anything he has touched since he came to Washington in 1969 as Secretary of Labor.

Assistant to the President and the administration's great domestic and international economic coordinator, his like will not be seen again.

At least two top officials already are gunning for William Simon, federal energy chief and Shultz's indicated successor at Treasury. One can almost say that President Nixon himself is a third.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger used to let it be known that he was bored by international trade and monetary policy. Shultz has been operating effectively in this field for more than a year, and is widely credited as principal promoter —

Tomorrow...

EDITORIAL: It's time for a change on the Harper College board of trustees — and that change begins tonight.

DOROTHY MEYER'S COLUMN: Dorothy's black thumb suddenly turns green.

George Shultz

at the early 1973 Paris conference of finance ministers — of the successful proposal to let key national currencies "float" rather than operate at fixed exchange rates.

Kissinger sees matters in broader scope today, and has no intention of permitting Simon to work this arena as did Shultz.

Nor is any love lost between Simon and Roy Ash, present director of the Office of Management and Budget, an ambitious man with some breadth as the former head of a wide-ranging private industrial enterprise and boss of a commission which took a big look at government reorganization. Ash will be doing all he can to see that Simon never becomes another Shultz.

Then there's Mr. Nixon. Serious question exists about the validity of his and Simon's claims that the energy crisis really is ended. But the President, against the backdrop of Watergate painfully eager for every ounce of credit he can get, is known to be distressed with Simon's high visibility and vocal force in the credit-taking field.

When Shultz says, as he has in interview, that Nixon will now become his own economic coordinator, that covers a lot. It is recognition of the special sweep of Shultz's talents. But it is also a harbinger of trouble.

It is well known that the President has only a forced interest in economic policy, especially domestic. Astute scholars of the presidency tell us, indeed, that this has been characteristic of the last several presidents.

From the first 1969 days, Mr. Nixon developed a fondness for Shultz's capacity for well-marshaled argument in cabinet and other councils. The free economy notions to which the President is emotionally committed were often converted to hard policy substance by the inventive Shultz. He was as much "old shoe" to Mr. Nixon as maybe anyone can be.

Shultz's unhappiness with imposition of economic controls, and the sloppy way they were partially eased, gave rise to frequent reports he was leaving. In late 1972 I reported one of these signals — not incorrect at the time. He was always talked out of going, until his final decision months ago.

The Shultz saga is amazing. Denigrated as "too narrow" by fellow economists, he moved into Labor and had his top aides picked before veteran politicians could speak. The "professor" had a lot to learn, but he learned. He outsmarted everybody. Where he stands there will soon be a Grand Canyon.

County GOP meets to plan new issues for platform

by BOB LAHEY

There were recurring themes in the testimony of nearly 50 witnesses who paraded before the newly formed Platform Committee of the Cook County Republican Party at hearings over the weekend.

The county Republican organization, for the first time, is seeking public help in writing a platform to be shared by its entire slate of candidates for county office. The committee includes Elk Grove Township Committeewoman Sharon Sharp; State Rep. Donald L. Totten of Hoffman Estates; Schaumburg Township committeeman; Wheeling Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus; and Richard A. Cowen, former Wheeling Township committeeman.

Among the themes that repeatedly cropped up in the hearings were patronage, ethics, and extended services for suburban Cook County.

Sharon Sharp

Donald Totten

Ethel Kolerus

Richard A. Cowen

THERE APPEARED TO be general agreement among witnesses and committee members that the platform must include a strong ethics plank and a promise for better service to the suburbs.

But it appeared equally clear that the divergent members of the committee will find themselves at odds when they sit down to write a plank on patronage.

In response to a question, Peter Benninger, candidate for county sheriff, stated flatly that "partisanship should not be a qualification for a law enforcement job."

Lee Epstein, state chairman of the Independent Voters of Illinois, urged that the Republican party "do everything in its power to eliminate patronage," which he called "one of the most pervasive and destructive components of Illinois' intricate political picture."

A COMMITTEE MEMBER, questioning Lou Kasper, chairman of the Chicago Republican Ward Committeemen's Association, later described the IVI position as "Utopian."

"You and I know," another Chicago committeeman told Kasper, "that at the ward level we have to have the nitty-gritty workers, to work and get the finances so that we can elect quality people."

He asked Kasper how that can be done without patronage. Kasper responded that "patronage is not all the evil that some people put into it."

"There are many quality people in government today who wouldn't be there if they had not been given an entree by someone," he declared.

There was diversity among the attitudes of the candidates who testified on patronage. Wayne Anderson, candidate for county treasurer, agreed with Benninger that patronage should be completely eliminated.

BUT LOLA FLAMM, candidate for county clerk, said in response to a question from state Rep. Robert Holloway of Chicago, "I will endeavor to hire Republicans who are capable."

She said earlier patronage would never be eliminated. "But the important thing is to see that you hire responsible people, and see that they work the hours they're supposed to . . . that we get a full day's work for a full day's pay."

There was more agreement among the witnesses and the committee on the question of an ethics plank, and one committee member indicated the GOP will "probably adopt" a slogan suggested by Ray Smith, president of the Cook County chapter of the American Assn. of Retired Persons. Smith urged the Republicans to search for candidates with IQ — integrity and quality.

Earlier, J. Terrence Brenner, executive director of the Better Government Assn., told the committee, "It is time that the Cook County board takes ethics into its own hands," in establishing ethical and financial disclosure standards for county officials.

BRENNER CITED THE seven-year old Illinois ethics law, which was widely hailed in 1967 as the best in the nation, and the financial disclosure provision of the 1970 Constitution. But, he said they "have failed to fulfill their promise." They have not provided "the antidote to abuses of public office which have plagued politics in Illinois," said Brenner, but added there is no reason why more effective ethics laws can not be instituted at the local level.

A number of county candidates advocated establishing branch offices for services to suburban residents, and using township officials as deputies.

Mrs. Flamm said the constitutional provision allowing cooperation between various government agencies would allow the use of township clerks to "provide services for which the people must now travel to the city."

Benninger advocated establishing branch juvenile courts throughout the suburbs. Mrs. Ihlig proposed the use of township assessors as sources of information to suburban residents, and Anderson said suburbanites should be able to pay their taxes at township offices, rather than only at the Cook County building in Chicago.

Township bodies thrive under revenue sharing

from only one of the four townships include the Northwest Opportunity Center, Shelter Inc. (a foster home program), local Headstart programs, Omin-House youth counseling center, the Northwest Mental Health Center, and Prospectus youth counseling agency.

Individual projects backed by various local townships include a senior citizen newsletter in Elk Grove Township which cost $4,000 in revenue sharing funds, an $18,000 day care program in Palatine Township and $55,000 of Schaumburg Township federal money to the township library.

MAINE TOWNSHIP, the only Northwest suburban township which is just beginning to spend revenue sharing money, has slated $100,000 of its funds for possible purchase of a school building in Park Ridge to house new township offices and various social service programs.

Other slated expenditures by Maine Township include $50,000 for an alcoholic rehabilitation and referral program, $12,000 to buy minibuses for day care and retarded children's programs, $10,000 for senior citizen projects and $18,500 for the township committee on youth.

All of the other townships which have begun spending the federal funds pay out to the social agencies receiving the money on a monthly basis, directly tying the amount paid to the agency to the number of township residents served during the month.

Among the other kinds of township expenditures have been some capital projects including $6,000 for a walkway built Elk Grove Township, capital projects have included $2,800 in sewer repairs and $5,700 of a study of flooding in an unincorporated subdivision.

Elk Grove also spent $900 on office in Palatine Township near a school. In equipment and Palatine spent $7,500 for flood prevention equipment.

Other than bus drivers, the only revenue sharing money going for salaries locally in townships has been to a youth outreach worker in Schaumburg Township and to coordinators for the Palatine Township day-care program and Council on the Aged.

HERE IS A breakdown of the various uses local townships have found for revenue sharing money:

- Elk Grove Township: sewer maintenance, unincorporated area flooding study, auditing and legal fees for revenue sharing requirements, bike safety survey, Elk Grove-Schaumburg Mental Health Center, Clearbrook Center, Crossroads Clinic, senior citizen newsletter, senior citizen bus program, office equipment, considering day care program.

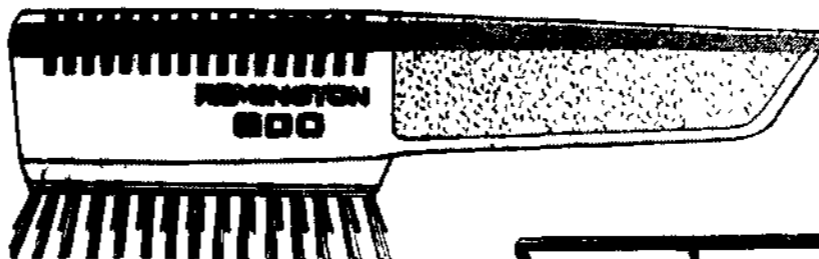

- Maine Township: none spent, but slated for purchasing a school building, an alcoholic rehabilitation program, minibuses for day care program and retarded children's program, senior citizen projects, township committee on youth.

- Palatine Township: Clearbrook Center, day care program, Northwest Mental Health Clinic, Northwest Opportunity Center, Headstart, township Council for the Aged, flood prevention, equipment for township highway department, Shelter, Inc., walkway to school, also promised Palatine Concert Band and Crossroads Clinic but holding funds awaiting court ruling. Also offering money to fire departments in township.

- Schaumburg Township: township committee on youth, the Bridge, proposed drop-in center, Elk Grove-Schaumburg Mental Health Center, township library, Headstart, Crossroads Clinic, Clearbrook Center, bus purchase, youth outreach worker.

- Wheeling Township: Omin-House, the Bridge, senior citizen and poor agency, Northwest Mental Health Clinic, Countryside Center, Prospectus.

'A Learning Experience'

Top hair stylist imparts new trends

by KAREN THOMPSON

Only your hairdresser knows for sure.

Beauticians in the Northwest suburbs know a lot more about new trends in hair cutting and styling, how to run their salons and about life in general due to a 32-year-old pro from Minneapolis.

The Northwest Suburban Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, in association with Ramagnano Productions, introduced to the hairdressers' business a unique approach to trade shows last week at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare. Boasting no commercial sponsors, no samples and no deal sheets, the association took a new line of attack — strictly education.

"A Learning Experience," featured Horst of Austria, owner of three salons in Minneapolis and listed among the best stylists in the country today.

AT CENTER STAGE, Horst transformed ordinary cuts into new and exciting styles with versatility and perfect form. In the words of the commentator, "Horst is a Picasso when it comes to hair."

"To me hair cutting is simple," said Horst. "It's like building a house. You see what the hair will do layer by layer."

Horst is an innovator, not satisfied with what everyone else is doing. He imparted his feelings to area hairdressers. "There is so much going on in hair right now," he said. "The most current styles are the flipped bangs and the bob cut, but there are so many more things we can do."

Horst has, however, a basic premise in mind as he cuts and styles hair. "Hair should be natural. It is something that should move softly. It should do something by itself."

CUTTING, BLOW drying and dry setting hair are here to stay, according to the native Austrian. "Hair dryers will eventually become a thing of the past," he commented.

Permanent waving is on its way back for summer, along with the wider, flatter silhouette providing more movement and softness around the face. "There's something about curly hair that's exciting," exclaimed Horst with a glint in his eye. "Many people are tired of straight hair and the time is right for a change to curly."

Demonstrating one of the curly looks, Horst applied a permanent wave, took out the rods, fluffed up the coiffure with his hands and dried it in place with two heat lamps. The result — a very young natural look needing a minimum of care. "You can sit under a heat lamp to apply your makeup and when you finish just get up and go," Horst said.

While working on the models, he demonstrated the importance of a good cut. "The cut is evident as the hair lies wet," he said. "We must cut hair with options for the customer, not just one look," he added. Any one of Horst's models could have walked out after just the cut and still have been the height of style.

"I DON'T HAVE a definite look in mind before I start to cut because then the style will be forced," Horst explained. "It's important to play with the hair while cutting. I like to give the hair its own freedom."

His styles have the customer in mind — her facial structure, hair texture and growth patterns and most importantly her ability to care for her hair at home. They're not looks that you wear for one day, and after one night in bed become a dilapidated mess requiring a second trip to the beauty salon. "The time is gone when people will come back to your salons every week," he told the hairdressers. "We must educate the public to good cuts and taking care of their own hair between visits to the salon."

Horst gave some predictions for the future of the beauty business. "We must take a scientific approach to hair care or someone else will. We must be educated."

Using his salons as an example, Horst said if his beauty operators aren't busy, they are in the salon library reading or trying new styles and techniques on mannequins. "A bad image is relayed if a woman walks into a salon and the beauty operator is sitting reading a movie magazine," he said.

"Skin care is also a part of our future when specialization will be emphasized. Just like the medical profession, which has heart specialists, bone specialists and the like, we will have cosmetics specialists, permanent wave specialists, cutting specialists, etc."

OVER 250 hairdressers from the Northwest suburbs attended the workshop, many staying for both sessions. Their enthusiasm for the beauty profession was evidenced by constructive questions and curiosity. The educational approach chosen by the area association will result in new styles and techniques which, added to previous knowledge, will benefit women in the Northwest suburbs.

As Horst told the hairdressers, "Your customer is your boss."

Suburban Living
ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

HIS FACE MIRRORS the concentration and know-how it takes to be one of the best in the country.

Horst works at a quick clip with precision, creating layer by layer a style that will be unique, easy to care for and purely feminine. A good cut ensures versatility and casual care.

Showhouse in Georgian style

All the elegance of Old Winnetka emanates from the 62-year-old Georgian home chosen for this year's Designer's Showhouse. The decorators, members of the American Institute of Interior Designers, are featuring modern living in a timeless grand manner in the old home's many rooms.

The public is invited to tour the Designer's Showhouse from April 28 to May 19. As in other years, Friday evenings will be "Meet the Decorators' Nights" when guests will be able to discuss decorating ideas with the Showhouse designers.

Showhouse is sponsored by Park Ridge School for Girls which is a philanthropy of 7th District federated women's clubs as well as other organizations and individuals. Mrs. Donald Schmidt of Arlington Heights is district chairman of Park Ridge School for Girls.

Staffers at the Showhouse will include members of the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines, Mrs. Richard Kemplek, chairman; Mount Prospect Woman's Club, Mrs. Alfred Cote, chairman; and Friends of the Park Ridge School for Girls, Mrs. David Robert, Elk Grove, chairman.

Members of the Women's Board of the school include Mrs. Robert Hayes, Mrs. William Narup and Mrs. Robert Nelson of Arlington Heights; Mrs. Robert Howard and Mrs. Leonard Ostrom of Mount Prospect, and Mrs. Michael Burget and Mrs. Richard McGorian of Palatine. Mrs. Nelson is in charge of door staffing and Mrs. Hayes of printing for Showhouse.

Mrs. Ostrom is in charge of advance sale tickets which sell for $2.50; she may be contacted at CL 5-6130. At the door tickets will be $3.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily, except Sunday, noon to 4 p.m., and Friday evenings from 7 to 9.

Besides living room, dining room, kitchen and bedrooms, the home includes a laundry room and back stairway done in country atmosphere; a garden room with wicker furniture; a retreat room for relaxing, reading and writing; a night-and-day room (combination sitting-guest room) done in nostalgic sophistication; a screen room in contemporary furnishings; a tree top attic guest suite done in pieces often found in the attic or basement; a game room overlooking the lake; and another attic room that has the feeling of a mountain lodge. There is also a sleeping porch.

The home, at 454 Sheridan Rd., was built for the C. L. Day family in 1912. In 1923 the house was purchased by Dr. Louis Sauer, the pediatrician who discovered whooping cough serum. In 1959 the house was purchased by Dr. Stanley Huff, a dermatologist whose children discovered two secret panels in the library.

Contents of one panel were donated to a local church; the other contained old carpenter tools which have been left for other children to discover some day.

The home is for sale and priced at $150,000.

Trickery at the gas pumps

It used to be that a woman's age was her best kept secret. But not any longer. Now everyone I know will tell her right age before she will tell where she finds gas at a low price.

Among my neighborhood friends, there isn't one who would hold out on sharing information about bargains in food, housewares, furniture or any number of things. In fact, being an economical shopper is sort of a status symbol in our neighborhood.

Until it comes to gas.

I first discovered this some time ago when I casually asked Alice Flaxton, my best friend and next-door neighbor, if she knew of a place that was selling gas for a little less than other stations.

Alice just blinked back at me, slightly at a loss for words. I immediately felt as awkward as I would have had I asked her her husband's salary. But her reaction was a tip to me that Alice knew something I didn't know. Obviously Alice did have a cheap gas source.

I JUST HAD TO find out where Alice was getting her gas. My first thought was to try following her around in my car for a while, hoping that when she pulled in to have the tank filled, so could I. But that lasted only a couple of days. Alice, a clean liver, drives off the top of her tank, and I drive off the bottom of mine. Therefore I had to stop for gas long before Alice even considered it.

Next I tried to get her to spill her secret by suggestion. One day while we were casually chatting, I suddenly said, "Gauge."

Alice, without a pause replied, "Rain."

A little later I threw in "Tank."

"Suit," Alice responded.

"Fumes," I interjected after a while. "Alice immediately said, 'Exhaust.' 'Pump,' I suggested.

"Walk!" Alice said with finality.

AFTER THAT attempt failed, I thought for a while and decided to offer

Alice the names of two babysitters whose mothers don't allow them to take tips, in exchange for the location of her gas station.

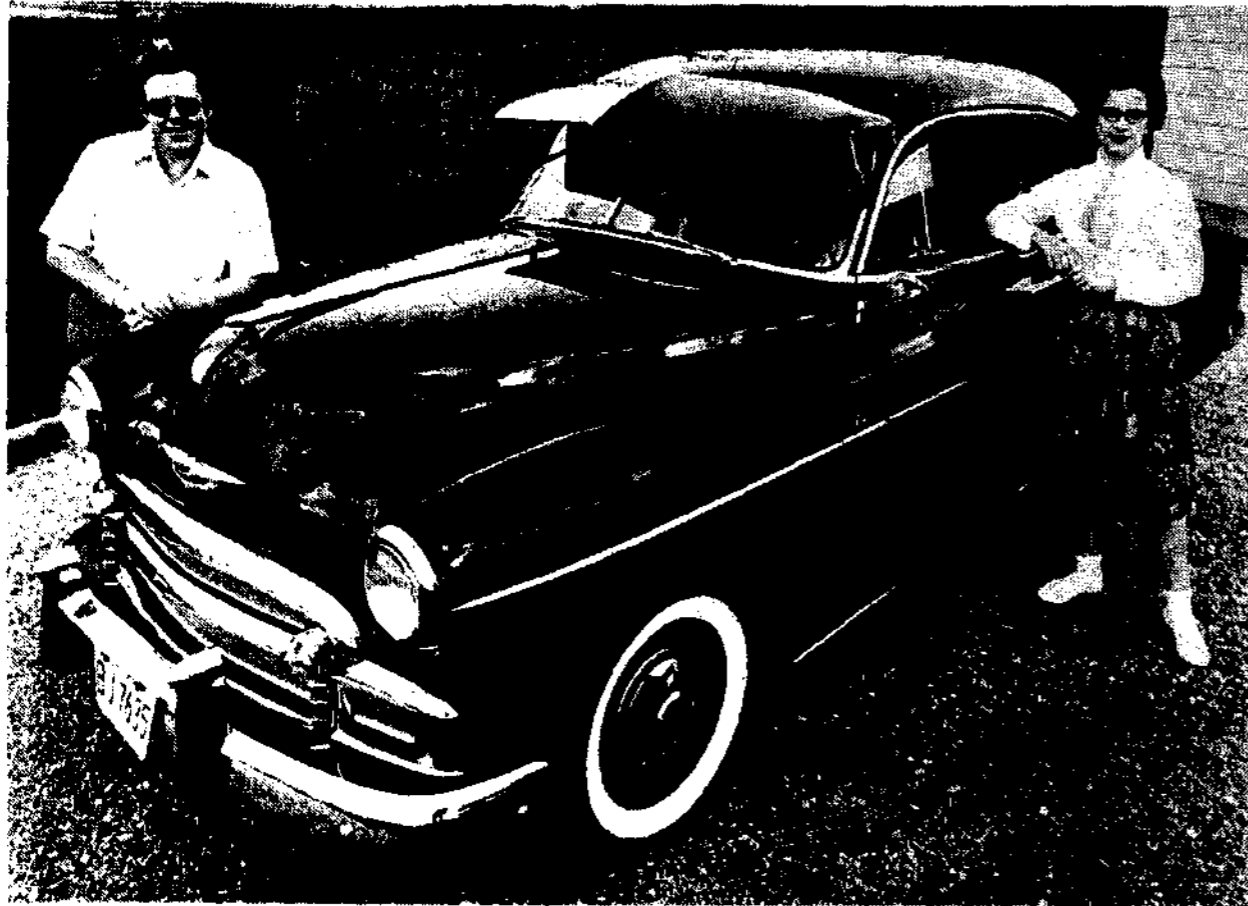

She wasn't interested.

Then I got the inspiration to make Alice an offer she couldn't refuse. In turn she directed me to a little gas station that quietly undersells everyone else in the area.

Now I understand that the other girls in the neighborhood know Alice has let me in on her secret. But they don't know why. And I'm not about to tell them that every time I go to Alice's source to fill my tank, I give Alice a free glass.

CUTS FOR SPRING feature a wider, flatter silhouette with more movement and softness caressing the face.

1950 CHEVROLET CLUB coupe will take Bill and Delain Yost to Saturday's "Swingin' 50s" party for Palatine Newcomers Club. Guests will be dressed and dance in the style of that era at the Wayne Wickless home. "All you can eat" pizza is the menu at $5 a couple. Reservations, 359-8315.

March 23 wedding follows graduation

Two important events in the life of Joanne Sullivan of Arlington Heights occurred in March. The month was marked by her graduation from Western Illinois University and her marriage March 23 to Robert Horton of Waukegan.

He is also a graduate of WIU with a degree in accounting, and works for Allstate in Northbrook.

Joanne, daughter of the B. J. Sullivans, 603 S. Arlington Heights Road, became a bride in afternoon rites in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church. Her uncle, Brother Raymond Long, read spiritual messages during the double ring ceremony.

JOANNE'S SISTER, Margaret, was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids included another sister, Mrs. Ellen Lindt of Mount Prospect; Susan Marrs, Inverness; and Patricia McLaughlin of St. Louis. Elizabeth Sullivan of Mundelein, 6, niece of the bride, served as flower girl.

The bridal attendants wore Kelly green crepe gowns with white eyelet lace on the cuffs of the long sleeves and on the V neckline. They carried nosegays of yellow daisies, white pompons, hyacinths and baby's breath, except for the flower girl who carried a white basket of spring flowers.

Joanne chose a simple bridal gown of white crepe with sculptured lace edging the collar, the long flowing sleeves and the hem. Her cathedral-length veil was

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horton edged with the same lace. The bride's bouquet was fashioned of yellow roses, white carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

THE GROOM, son of the Edward Hortons of Waukegan, chose his brother, Steven, of Wildwood as best man. Brand Gustus, Mount Prospect; Wayne Thompson, Moline; and Merrill Bittner, Waukegan, were groomsmen.

Doug Lindt, the bride's brother-in-law, was soloist for the wedding.

Afterwards a dinner reception was held at the Brass Rail in Arlington Heights for 115 guests. The newlyweds then left for a week's honeymoon in Florida and are making their home in Timberlake Village, Mount Prospect.

Joanne is a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and earned her degree from WIU in broadcasting. Until graduation she worked for WIUM-FM radio in Macomb.

Diamonds bloom in spring It's time to prune roses

Jayne Wente

Planning an April 5, 1975 wedding are Jayne Wente, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wente, 304 E. Palatine Road, Palatine and her fiancé, Gary Trzeciak, son of the Frank Trzeciaks, 530 N. William, also in Palatine.

The engaged pair met at Palatine High School where Jayne is a senior. Gary has graduated and works at Willow Creek Marathon.

Roxanne Nurczyk

The engagement of Roxanne Nurczyk to Donald Schneek, son of the Walter Schneeks of Prairie View, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Nurczyk of 754 Dennis Road, Wheeling.

They will be married May 18 in St. Mary's Church, Buffalo Grove.

Roxanne is a cashier at Sears outlet store in Wheeling since graduating from Wheeling High School. Her fiancé, a St. Viator graduate, is a salesman for Jack L. Kemmerly Real Estate in Buffalo Grove.

Donna Kopanski

Donna Lee Kopanski's engagement to Michael R. Lohse, son of the Raymond Lohses of Minnetonka, Minn., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kopanski of 9 S. Derbyshire Lane, Arlington Heights.

The wedding is set for May 11.

Both Donna and Mike are '71 graduates of Prospect High School. He is now employed by J. C. Penney Co. in Niles, and she is studying dental hygiene at Harper College.

Dear Dorothy: I'm new at roses — and confused. Is it really necessary to prune rosebushes? And if this is so, when is the best time to do it — and how far back should they be cut? — Marcia Schimmel

Yes, indeed, it's necessary to prune rosebushes — and right now before growth starts. If the bushes aren't pruned, they will grow into a wild mess of brambles with small, poor-quality roses.

Since you're new at this, make sure you have sharp pruning shears. And while you're at the job, be sure to snip off undesirable shoots coming out of the understock. Where the canes are concerned, cut an inch or so below the dark-colored areas; when there are no live buds left, clip off entire branches or canes.

Cut away any weak growth heading toward the center of a bush; if two branches cross, snip off the weaker one. Good pruning calls for shaping bushes to a uniform height — 24 to 30 inches is about right. Roses demand constant care (including fertilizing), but the results, I can testify, make them one of the most satisfying of all garden projects.

Monroe in no-hitter! Falcons clip Conant

Friday was a big day for Larry Monroe.

The Forest View pitching ace had been waiting for Friday for a long time now. It had to come eventually.

Monroe, 6-foot-3, and 205 pounds of major league prospect, hurled a no-hit gem against Conant, winning 1-0 on his home field. The big Falcon righthander fanned a dozen Cougars and walked only one.

"That was the first one," beamed Monroe, after he disposed of the last batter himself on a grounder back to the mound. "I've had about three one-hitters and a couple two-hitters, but this is the first no-hitter."

Monroe's no-hitter came in a tight duel with Conant's Tim Domek until the bottom of the fourth when Falcon first baseman Don Stevens blasted a triple into the right field corner. A moment later, Stevens scored the lone run of the game on a Domek wild pitch.

Monroe's no-hitter came in his second start of the season on a sunny day with a temperature in the 50's. Unlike his first start, Monroe had his fastball working well.

"I was really happy with the fastball," the pitcher said later. "It's only been for Conant when he walked in the fourth.

Forest View is now 3-0 in Mid-Suburban League play — Monroe owns two of the victories — and Conant is off to an 0-3 beginning.

PIRATE PITCHER IMPRESSES

It was ace against ace. Palatine's Buddy Hughes vs. Wheeling's Willie Kozel.

Both pitchers deserved to win this MSL divisional battle staged at Wheeling's field because Palatine had wet grounds.

Hughes, holding the edge in hits (2 to 3) and walks (0 to 1) allowed, was the winner. However, Kozel, who had the better strikeout edge (12 to 10), didn't have to be ashamed of his performance. It's always tough when it's a 1-0 game.

The big difference for Palatine was the break of having Wheeling's only error come the same inning as the Pirates' only extra base hit. (Wheeling's double came an inning before Palatine's only error.) It allowed the Pirates to take first place in the North Division with a 3-0 record.

Both teams battled 0-0 through the first five innings before Palatine staged a clutch rally. Head coach Al Berman called on the right man at the right time in pinch hitter Jim "Lightning" Herbst. He proved to wing a potent bat with a blast over the center fielder's head for a double.

Chris Burrus, who had been retired the two previous times on strikeouts, did his part by hitting to the right side of the infield. His groundout advanced Herbst to third with only one out.

The next play proved to be the difference in the game. First baseman George Kaage caught a line drive off the bat of Jim Lubinski. Then he fired to third in hopes of doubling up Herbst.

Unfortunately for the Wildcats and fortunately for the Pirates, third baseman Howie Brauer failed to catch the ball. Herbst beat the throw to the plate for the eventual winning run.

Brauer led off with an opposite field double in the bottom of the inning. The normally steady fielding senior was hoping to make up for the error. However, he wasn't allowed to tie the game for Hughes retired the next three 'Cats.

Kaage tried to deadlock the game in the bottom of the seventh. Reaching base for the second time (he legged out an infield hit earlier) on an error, he went for his second stolen base seconds later. In a very close play, the umpire ruled that catcher Sal Fioretti's throw beat superfast Kaage to the bag.

Hughes easily retired the next two 'Cats for his second MSL win. Kozel is 1-1.

TOWNSEND DAZZLES

A two-out single by Jim Lococo in the last inning broke up Dar Townsend's no-hit bid, but the big right hander still paced Arlington to a 4-0 victory over Hersey Friday on the Cardinal diamond.

Townsend allowed only four walks and fanned eight in breezing to his second winning decision of the week. Going into the seventh, the only poke resembling a hit was off the bat of opposing pitcher Brian Nelson, a hard shot back to third that went in the books as an error.

There was no question about Lococo's hit though. It was a sharp crack that fell cleanly into right ahead of fielder Bruce Heitbrink.

The situation was pretty much resolved by then anyway. The Cards had reached the scoreboard in the third inning when John Vukovich singled to lead off and Townsend's fly was misgloved three days, but it was moving a lot better than last time."

The Forest View coach agreed with Monroe. "He had that fastball moving in on the hitters," said head man Tom Seldel. "And they were backing away from the curve."

Five of Monroe's 12 strikeouts were called and they all came on curve balls over the inside edge of the plate. The Falcon ace mixed his pitches well, nipping the corners with the hummer and coming back with the curve.

The closest thing to a hit for Conant came in the third inning when John Milke hit a line drive over first base which appeared to kick up some chalk on the foul line. But the first base umpire called it foul, provoking much disagreement in the Cougar dugout. Milke then fanned.

In the first, Jeff Ironside reached base against Monroe on an error by Falcon shortstop Thom Culkar. After Ironside stole second, Monroe ended the inning by getting Gary Oslance on a liner to center.

Cougars in Toronto; here Sunday

No matter what happens tonight in Toronto, the second round of the World Hockey Association playoffs between the Chicago Cougars and Toronto Toros may eventually set some type of record for length.

Even if the series is decided in four games, and Toronto has a one-game advantage heading into tonight's battle in Maple Leaf Gardens, there is no way the competition could be concluded before Tuesday, April 30.

If the series goes beyond four games, as most observers anticipate, then this round of the playoff competition will extend into May. And there's still the finals ahead.

Because the International Amphitheatre, home ice for the Cougars, was unavailable for the playoff series, the Chicago outfit had to look elsewhere. They announced Thursday they would come to the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena in Mount Prospect.

Game three of the best-of-seven series is scheduled in Randhurst on Sunday, April 28, with game four on Tuesday, April 30. If needed, there will be a game on Saturday, May 4.

The playoff games will start at 7:30 p.m. and tickets will be $13.50 for all seats. The Randhurst arena has 2,500 permanent seats, but the Cougars' management is hoping to increase capacity to 3,500 with portable bleachers.

Pat Stapleton

Cougar President Walter Kaiser had offers from numerous arenas, but he decided to stay in Chicago.

"We wanted to play in Chicago to accommodate our season ticket holders," said Kaiser. "I seem to be one of the rare owners in Chicago who thinks about the fans."

Only 1,400 of the 2,000 season ticket-holders ordered tickets for the three playoff games with

New England in the Amphitheatre.

"From a financial standpoint, playing in Randhurst will be disastrous," said Kaiser.

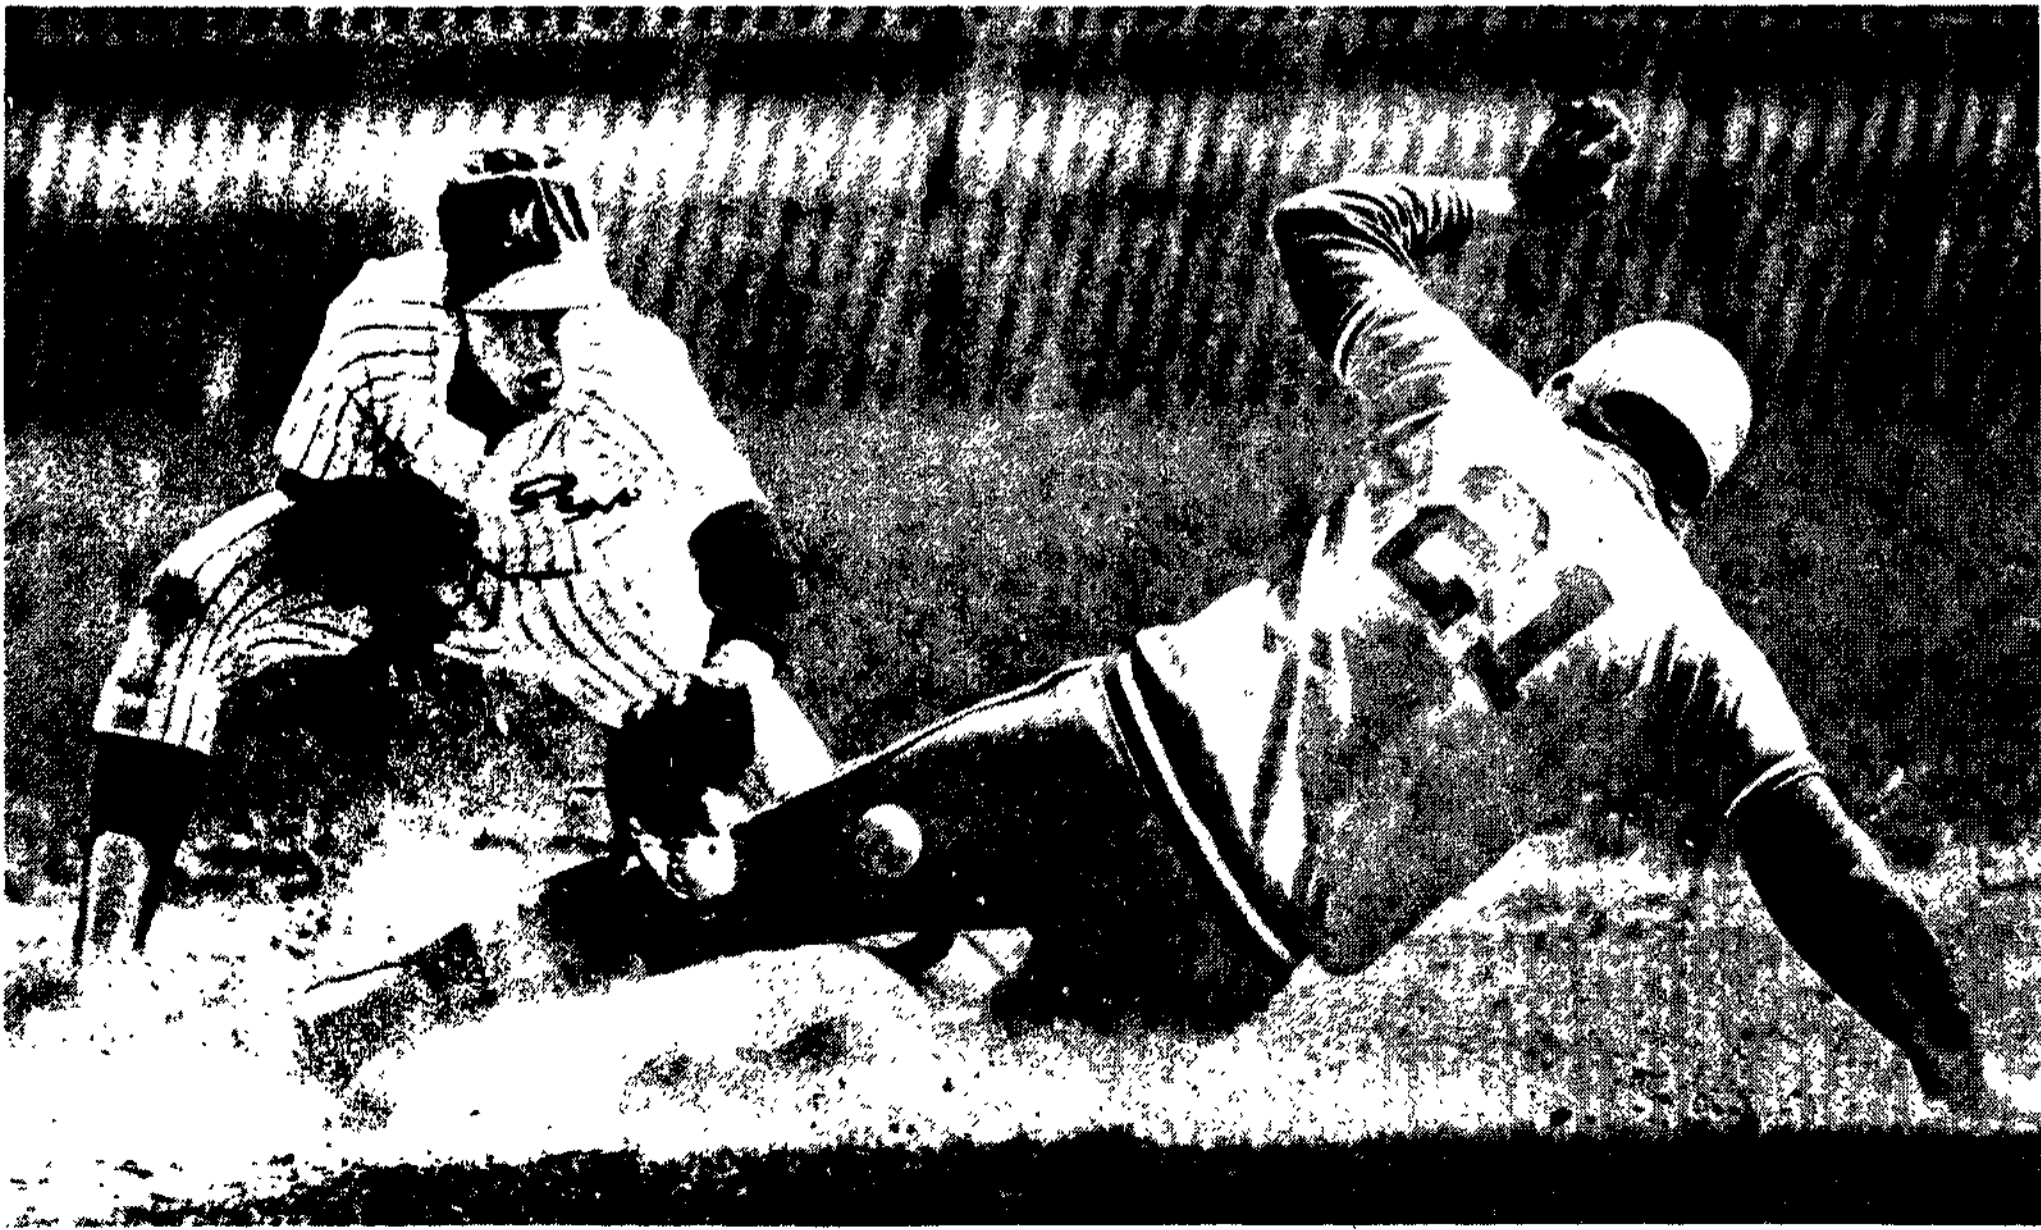

Cougars' coach Pat Stapleton, former captain of the Chicago Black Hawks, was outwardly unconcerned about the playoff arrangements.

"What's the difference," he said. "We've got to win four games wherever we play."

However, the Cougars did show some concern for the ice after losing their first playoff game 6-4 in Toronto.

"This is a wide open rink," said Cougar goalie Cam Newton. "We've been thrown into so many small rinks this year that it would have been nice to have a practice here."

Toronto coach Billy Harris is concerned about the long wait between games. "Our team is more suited to playing four games in six days," said Harris, "rather than this waiting game."

Stealing second on Rolling Meadows is Wheeling's George Kaage. The Mustangs won the game despite Kaage's 3-for-3 hitting performance, 9-5.

Area golfers take 2-3-4 invite spots

by JIM COOK

Golf Editor

Area golf teams continued their impressive spring tournament tuneups with an eye on the state districts in mid-May.

The local links contingents' latest successful showing came in the formidable 20-team field in the 12th Annual Lake Park Invitational.

Forest View, Palatine and Hersey all crowded behind winning Barrington's miraculous 398 shots for second, third and fourth places, respectively. Arlington split the field in 10th with 433.

The Falcons of head coach Tim Schaap were solid runnersup for the second time in less than a month as consistency played a major role in their 412 strokes.

Palatine was nestled in third, six shots back with 418 and Hersey drew for fifth with Rockford East with 423 strokes apiece.

The difference between Barrington's awesome showing and the challenging Falcons was the incredible effort of Bronco Gary Hallberg — a super sophomore and defending meet medalist who conquered Indian Lakes' windy Iroquois Course in a magnificent three-under 33-36-69 round.

"He certainly was the difference," Schaap conceded. "After finishing second at Champaign, too, I think the kids are just hoping second place doesn't become a habit."

"The kids are helping each other out. We're not relying on one guy to carry us. Everybody's doing the job and from the two outs later, bringing Vukovich around and in.

In the next inning after two outs, the hosts put a couple more runs on the board with walks to Art Busby and Vukovich and run-producing singles by Jerry DeSimone and Brett Frase.

For insurance Arlington added a final tally in the fifth. George Vukovich walked, stole second and raced home on pinch-hitting Bob McGarvey's two-base blow to left.

KEANE STIFLES ELK GROVE

Prospect righthander Mark Keane, hampered by control problems that led to seven walks, kept Elk Grove off balance with a one-hitter as the Knights cruised to a 4-1 Mid-Suburban League triumph.

Keane worked from the stretch at least once in every inning, but came up with the big out in the clutch to keep the Grenadiers at bay.

The lone hit off the lean blond came with two outs in the seventh on a questionable tapper by Elk Grove's Glenn Stromberg that eluded Keane's glove and came to rest without making it out of the infield.

Prospect rattled its diamond for eight hits including four doubles off Elk Grove's Mark Hvidhyd and reliever Bob Foringer. Paul Obuchowski's leadoff two-bagger preceded Mike Radolf's run-scoring double to give Prospect an instant 1-0 edge in the first inning.

Elk Grove battled back in the second without the benefit of a hit to knot the contest as John Strybel coaxed a pass, stole second and scampered around on an error at second on Mike Dill's bouncer to the right side.

Prospect regained the advantage for good in the third on Jim Anderson's one-out single, a stolen base, Kevin Kelley's walk and Rick Streng's RBI single to left.

The count moved to 3-1 in the fourth on Mike Quade's second double in a perfect three-for-three batting performance, a stolen base and Tom Hayes' sacrifice fly to left. The Knights closed the scoring in the sixth on a Quade single, stolen base, Hayes' bunt single and a passed ball. The victory boosted Prospect MSL record to 2-1 while Elk Grove dipped to 1-2.

MEADOWS WINS, 6-3

Three-run rallies were the order of the day at Fremd.

The hosts pulled off one but visiting Rolling Meadows posted a pair of them — one in the final stanza — and the Vikings absorbed their first conference loss of the season 6-3.

Meadows went to work first, aided by a pair of Vike misuses, and took a 3-0 lead in the fourth frame Mike Saugling lashed a single to right to start it off and after Bruce Hanson had reached on an error both were chased home on Dave Thorstensen's one-base rap.

Two outs later pinch hitter Don Howe smacked a single down the first base line and Thorstensen came in to score too.

The Vikings, who had been held hitless through the first four frames by Meadows twirler Carl Pedersen, knotted the contest up in the fifth on only one hit. Jim Recher reached on an error initially and pinch hitters Bill Bullard and Jeff Schroeder followed him to the basepaths on walks.

Jeff Brisson then unloaded a double and two runs scored. A ground out off the bat of Jeff Hanisch subsequently brought Schroeder in with the tying run and one walk later Pedersen was spelled on the mound by Bob Schmidt.

Rolling Meadows broke the game open in the seventh at the expense of Fremd relief pitcher Recher. Dan Jordan got things going with a double to deep center and Schmidt sacrificed him to third.

Joe Riplinger drove Jordan in with what proved to be the decisive run via a single to right. Steve Bretbeil padded the lead by doubling home Riplinger and scoring himself on another Vike hobble.

Schmidt earned the win in relief. The triumph was the second in three conference outings for the Mustangs.

ERRORS AID SAXON WIN

The Schaumburg baseball team played another weird one on their home diamond. The season is only three games old but already the Saxons have seen about everything except a triple play and a double no-hit game.

Only last Wednesday Dick Stephens' crew routed a tough Prospect squad, 15-9, gathering 14 hits in the process. Friday against Buffalo Grove, however, Schaumburg managed only six hits off Bison hurler Dave Smithern.

But none of the safeties were necessary. The Saxons scored single runs in the first inning and the third, both times without the help of a hit, and they made it hold up for a 2-1 win over the Bison.

Schaumburg improved its record to 2-1 on the fine three-hit pitching of Mark Goergen. The Saxon righthander struck out nine Bison in his first mound effort of the year.

The Saxons got on the scoreboard in the first when leadoff man Dan Gallagher was safe at second on an error, went to third on a grounder, and came home on a wild pitch by Smithern.

In the third, Gallagher again reached on an error, stole second, and was pushed around to third on a walk to Kevin Michaelson and another infield miscue. When Keith Abraham missed the pitch on a suicide squeeze try with the bases loaded, Gallagher was caught off third, but the throw from the Bison catcher was too late to get the Saxon runner. But Gallagher dashed for the plate and scored when Michaelson was caught in a rundown between second and third.

Only once was Goergen in trouble and the Saxon pitcher's own mistakes got him there. In the top of the sixth, after Mark Dentler singled to start the inning for Buffalo Grove, Goergen wild pitched him to second. Following an error, Dentler scored from third on a passed ball charged to Schaumburg catcher Frank Lipko. The inning ended when another Bison was cut down trying to score from third when a pitch again eluded Lipko.

Smithern took the loss as Buffalo Grove went down to defeat for the third straight time this season.

Strong pitching carries Lions to sweep at Carmel

With the kind of pitching they got Saturday in Mundelein the St. Viator Lions are a definite threat to make big baseball noises this season.

They claimed both ends of a doubleheader against league rival Carmel as Lion hurlers allowed a total of six hits for both contests.

The Lions extended their undefeated string to four games in Suburban Catholic Conference play by whipping the Corsairs 2-0 in the opener and 7-2 in the nightcap.

Pat Mahoney's St. Viator crew profited from a superb, three-hit shutout performance by Steve Bobowski in the first game. The big righthanded senior walked three and struck out five in besting the Corsairs' Eklof in a rugged pitcher's duel.

The Lions gave Bobowski the only run

he needed in the second inning when leadoff hitter John Abbs singled, stole second, and scampered home on a double by Pat Rooney. In the sixth, Abbs walked and scored on a two-base hit off the bat of Bob Walsh. The second run was just insurance for Bobowski who was in control all the way in his second win of the year.

For the second game the Lions brought out the thunderous bats, rapping nine hits and jumping to a 3-0 lead after an inning and a half.

The beneficiary of the St. Viator slugging was Tim Halas, a junior making his first mound start for the Lions. Halas escaped a hard-luck second inning allowing only two runs, despite an error behind him, and he coasted the rest of the way. The Carmel batters managed only one hit off Halas through the final five innings.

Mahoney's boys scored once in the first. Bobowski and Jim Bucaro walked to start the frame and they executed a successful double steal. Abbs then drove in Bobowski with an infield hit.

In the second, Pat Bucaro singled and was moved to second on a walk to Marty Bernan. They each moved up on a passed ball and scored, one at a time, on successive wild pitches.

The Lions made it 6-2 in the fourth by thumping out four hits, including an RBI single by Bobowski and a two-run triple off the stick of Jim Bucaro.

Halas's seven-strikeout effort gladdened Mahoney, who now has three reliable starting pitchers with which to face the heart of the conference schedule.

Today the Lions host St. Francis de Sales and Wednesday they journey to Marist. Both are league games. Thursday Mahoney's team visits Barrington for a nonconference tilt with the powerful Broncos of the North Suburban League.

Cards fall to Titans

Glenbrook South broke open a 3-3 stalemate in the fourth inning and went on to post a damp and chilly 5-3 triumph over Arlington in non-conference baseball action at the Redbird field.

Each side put a pair of runs on the board in the first frame and produced single scores in the third. The opening Cardinal rally was sparked on three straight singles by John Vukovich, Jerry DeSimone and Brett Frase, followed by a run-producing walk to George Vukovich and an error off the bat of Dar Townsend, bringing home DeSimone.

In the third, after the Titans had regained the lead, Townsend tripped down the right field line and trotted in on Art

The winning run was also the result of a triple, by GBS to left center in the top of the fourth. One out later the runner was singled in and Glenbrook wrapped things up by adding another run in the seventh.

Jim Letzel went the first three and two thirds innings on the hill for the hosts and was spelled then by Joe Jones, with Letzel suffering the loss. The contest was played under rugged weather conditions including rain, high winds and a plummeting temperature.

Jim throws one-hitter

"That was the closest I have ever come to getting a no-hitter in college," said senior Jim Bokelmann of Arlington Heights after tossing a one-hitter recently to lead Southern Illinois to a 9-0 victory over Louisville.

The win was his fourth against one loss for the Arlington High School graduate and his second shutout. The Salukis were 20-5 before this past weekend's games.

Bokelmann's first shutout was 11-0 over Biscayne. His new earned run average is 2.10. His family watched this one-hit, nine-strikeout performance on SIU's Abe Martin Field.

Bokelmann set down 16 Louisville batters before SIU third baseman Bert Newman (Wheeling) made a throwing error to end the perfect game.

He held Louisville hitless until the seventh when catcher Randy Delph smashed a line drive that Newman knocked down but couldn't retrieve. Bokelmann retired the last seven batters he faced.

"That was the best college pitching performance I have ever seen," said SIU head coach Richard "Icky" Jones. "In fact, his performance inspired our entire team to play well in all areas."

Of his work, Bokelmann said, "I felt real strong and had good breaking pitches (curve and fork balls). That was a close play at third on the hit. I know if the ball had been catchable that Bert would have caught it."

Bokelmann's father, Richard, played with the St. Louis Cardinals' organization from 1951-53. The family resides at 629 North Belmont in Arlington Heights.

— Greg Dryanski has won a varsity wrestling letter at Ripon College in Ripon, Wis.

— Chris Lesniak of Des Plaines and Rick Kareher of Mount Prospect are playing varsity tennis this spring for Monmouth (Ill.) College.

— Winona State College, also Winona, Minn., will again host the two-session summer McCann Wrestling Camp. Instruction will be held from July 21-28 and July 28-Aug. 2.

Picked for the teaching staff is Bill Harlow, current head coach at Prospect High School, during his wrestling career, Harlow was a two-time NCAA champ for Oklahoma State, one-time NCAA runner-up, twice Big Eight champion, AAU champion, National Federation Champion and runner-up in the World Games.

— Carthage College of Kenosha, Wis., expects the addition of Monte McCollum from Schaumburg to boost the Redmen into contention next year for the NAIA National 400-yard medley relay title. McCollum did his competitive prep swimming for St. Viator.

— Frank Golbeck of Arlington Heights has earned his second varsity gymnastics letter at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge.

— Rick McNabney, a freshman who graduated from Palatine, is playing varsity tennis this spring, for Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn.

— Left fielder Mike Groot from Wheeling recently socked a two-run homer for North Park College as the Vikings beat Wheaton College, 7-2, in the front end of a doubleheader. North Park also won the second game, 3-2.

— Maine West graduates Dean Kolts and Steve Holmbeck plus Elk Grove's Joe Gvstadsegal and Wheeling's Dave Peterson have earned varsity gymnastics letters at Western Illinois University.

The Macomb-based school is also getting good work from other area athletes. Wheeling's Bill Chlebik has a 130-11 hammer throw and 22-1½ long jump.

Palatine's Gerald Grybas is batting .306 with 11 hits, two runs scored and nine runs-batted-in for the Leathernecks. In limited play, Forest View's Randy Jespersion is batting .308 with four hits and three runs-batted-in.

They're also Salukis

Aside from Bokelmann, three more area athletes are taking prominent roles in SIU's baseball season. Jim Locasio of Arlington Heights was among the leading regulars with a .377 batting average. He has 18 runs-batted-in, five doubles and two home runs.

Bert Newman of Wheeling is hitting .373 with 27 runs scored, 17 RBIs, six doubles and one triple. The fourth area product is Arlington Heights' Mike Wilkins who carries a .319 batting mark, 19 runs scored, eight knocked home and one double.

News from I-State

Four area young women are recording impressive work in three sports for Illinois State University in Normal. Linda Angelloff of Arlington Heights has thrown the shot 40 feet, five inches and qualified for a return trip to the women's national finals. She was seventh last year with a 40-1½ toss.

Sophomore Elaine Jane Kaup of Mount Prospect has earned a 2-2 record in tennis while Laura Lawler, also a sophomore from Mount Prospect, is 2-0.

Finally, Sandy Pelinski of Des Plaines, will play first base this year for the women's softball team. The Redbirds took second nationally last year after winning the Illinois college title.

Harper 'nets' Skyway win

Harper College's tennis team breezed to a 7-0 Skyway Conference meet victory Thursday over hosting Elgin.

Only in doubles play did the Hawks of Coach Roy Kearns receive a test, that coming in first and second doubles.

Jeff Rud paced the singles play with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Jay Larsen at first singles. The rest of the singles action finished like this:

Pat Hill over Tom Kemmerling 6-2, 6-0; Curtis Anderson over Anne Castle 6-4, 6-3; and Clark Sanders over Bill Schuckert 6-2, 6-2.

Doubles play went like this:

Rud-Anderson over Kemmerling Castle 6-1, 7-5; Hill-Sanders over Judy Beck with Larsen 6-4, 7-5; and John McGowan-Jim Richter over Ken Salzman-Schuckert 6-1, 6-4.

Cougars edge Mustangs 3-2

A pair of singles victories and a doubles win boosted Conant to a 3-2 victory over hosting Rolling Meadows in a Mid-Suburban League makeup tennis meet Thursday.

Winning in singles were Buddy Edmondson and Orson Faynor. Edmondson stopped first singles player Charles Fischer 7-6, 6-0. Faynor defeated Greg Nykiel 6-4, 7-5.

The second doubles team of Kurt Kupitz and Terry Gibbs handed Ed Sholly and Jim Peterson 6-2, 6-3.

Bob Herman, Meadows' second singles player, beat Rob Wade 6-3, 6-4. Greg Hanat and Jack Szewicki defeated Tim Black and Greg Vassmer 7-5, 6-4.

Meadows won the frosh-soph meet 4-1.

West halts skid on Liggett's gem

Jay Liggett fired a three-hitter and struck out 12 batters Friday as Maine West snapped its four-game losing streak, turning back Niles North, 8-1, in Skokie.

In other games, Maine East spotted New Trier West three runs in the first inning and lost, 5-4. Maine North continued winless in six attempts, dropping an 8-2 decision to Glenbrook South.

Maine West's Liggett set Niles down without argument in the first, second, third and seventh innings as Maine's record improved to 2-4. The senior right-hander is 2-2.

Liggett's perfect game was lost in the fourth inning when a short fly fell into right field for a single. Niles' only run came across in the sixth, the product of an infield single and a fly ball single just behind second base.

The victory was all but assured after the second inning when the visiting Warriors took a 5-0 lead. Dan Henk's leadoff single and Mike Kelley's three-run double were the only hits of Maine's five run second.

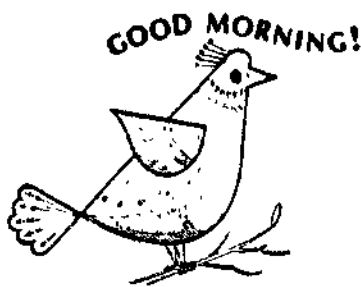

But intertwined was a fielders choice that didn't pan out (Ed Dolan reaching), one hit batsman (Jeff Schwarz), two walks (Steve Zuccarini and Dan Myszkowski) and two wild pitches, scoring Henk and Dolan.

Kelley's three-run double sent across Schwarz, Zuccarini and Myszkowski. West made it a 6-0 game after three innings

Larson changes mind; will wait for legality to be determined

No more stickers for Grand Spaulding—until approved

by JOE FRANZ

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson has changed his mind and now says the village will refuse to sell any more vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing Inc. until the legality of it is determined.

The Herald disclosed last Thursday that Grand Spaulding, 3300 W. Grand Ave., Chicago, purchased 207 Buffalo Grove stickers this year and 235 in 1973, apparently to avoid paying the city's higher vehicle tax. Officials have said the village has been selling vehicle stickers to the firm since at least 1971.

Grand Spaulding owns property at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, but does not yet operate out of that location.

Since the firm keeps the cars at the Grand Avenue location it should be buying Chicago vehicle stickers which cost $20 to $50, compared to Buffalo Grove's which cost $10 each.

Larson said Thursday, following the disclosure, that he thought the practice was legal since Grand Spaulding owns property in the village. He said he did not plan to take any action and probably would authorize the sale of additional stickers to Grand Spaulding if a request was made.

Larson said Friday, "After talking to the village attorney I have revised my position. The village will not issue any more licenses until the legality is determined or until Grand Spaulding has a location in the village."

THE FIRM WAS given approval by the plan commission last week for an auto dealership and leasing division in Buffalo Grove. It will now be considered by the village board.

Len Krause, president of Grand Spaulding, said last week, the firm's attorney informed him that it was legal to purchase Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers since the firm owns property in the village.

In order to obtain the vehicle stickers, Grand Spaulding gave a Buffalo Grove post office box number. A random check of state license numbers, however, revealed that all the cars are registered at the Grand Avenue location. Thus, the firm gave Buffalo Grove one address for the same cars.

Village Atty. Richard Raysa told The Herald last week that if Grand Spaulding is not housing the cars at a location in Buffalo Grove it probably is in violation of the law. The village and the City of Chicago, he said, probably could take legal action against the firm.

DAN CEPA, ASSISTANT city clerk, said two men from his office are investigating the sale of Buffalo Grove vehicle stickers to Grand Spaulding. He said the investigation will take several days to complete.

If Grand Spaulding is found in violation of a city ordinance it could be fined $25 to $200 for each sticker illegally purchased in Buffalo Grove.

Although the village will issue no more stickers to Grand Spaulding, at least for the time being, Larson said no action is planned for the ones that already have been sold. "That's a matter that Grand Spaulding and Chicago will have to work out among themselves," he said. "I don't want the village to get caught in the middle of a controversy."

Larson said the village in the future will make a thorough check on all requests for a large number of vehicle stickers at one address. Until now, he said, Grand Spaulding is the only firm requesting a large number of stickers.

"Before we issue vehicle stickers in the future we will make sure the party can demonstrate a permanent village address," Larson said.

Closed salary sessions may be violating law

Buffalo Grove officials may be in violation of the Illinois open meeting law by holding closed door sessions on proposed salary increases for village employees in the 1974-75 fiscal year budget.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said salary increases have been discussed in executive session, but the village board has ordered him not to release them until the budget is approved. The board will consider the proposed budget at a public meeting tonight, but it is not known whether it will be approved at that time.

THE BUDGET WAS released last week, but does not reveal how much is being proposed for salary increases. Larson said if the public wants pay increases released, they should ask village board members tonight.

Larson has said employee pay increases can be discussed behind closed doors because they concern village personnel.

According to an opinion issued by Ill. Atty. Gen. William Scott, the only matters that can be discussed under "personnel" are hiring and firing of employees and starting salaries for new employees. The open meeting law also states that collective bargaining may be discussed in executive session. There is no provision, however, that allows closed door discussion of salary increases for present employees.

The reason officials want the proposed raises withheld, according to Larson, is to avoid disappointing employees in the event the increases are not approved. Larson said he is not aware of Scott's legal opinion.

IF THE BUDGET is approved before salary figures are released, taxpayers will be unable to question the board on any of the proposed raises.

Before Larson instructed his department heads not to release proposed salary increases, Public Works Director Charles McCoy told The Herald he was asking for increases from less than one per cent to 18 per cent for employees under his supervision.

In other business tonight the village board will:

- Review a proposal for a cooperative police dispatching program with Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect.

- Consider the final plan for construction of the model home area for the Winston Square Development, northeast of Weiland Road and Ill. Rte. 83.

- Consider a resolution proclaiming May 5-11 as Bicycle Safety Week.

Wheeling High senior wins Baptist grant

Wheeling High School senior Kathy Schroeder was recently awarded a college scholarship from the Baptist Life Assn.

She submitted her winning essay "Thankfulness is..." to the association's national essay contest last November. The scholarship is for $300 per year for four years. Miss Schroeder is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schroeder, 537 Beechwood Rd., Buffalo Grove. She is a member of the Village Baptist Church and plans to enter Wheaton College this fall.

Irving's top priority: its students

by JILL BETTNER

Individualized instruction and a concern for developing a strong self-image in students characterize Irving School, just finishing its first year of operation in Dist. 21, Buffalo Grove.

The school, at 1250 Radcliffe Rd., opened last September along with Stevenson School in Wheeling. Dist. 21 now includes 17 schools serving Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Principal Dennis Carpenter describes Irving as a "child-centered school." The focus, he said, is on helping children to grow as individuals and accept themselves as they are.

Saying he believes that a positive self-concept is a prerequisite for learning, Carpenter commented, "I personally think the first four years of school every child should feel like he's top dog and really be able to say, 'Hey, I'm OK—I'm worth something.'" In the intermediate grades, the self-concept is still important, but I think they pretty much know where they are and we can begin to concentrate more on content by working with them on their level."

A SENSITIVE STAFF of teachers is the key to successfully developing healthy student self-concepts, according to Carpenter.

"Teachers in the classroom a lot of times have to be counselors, too," he said. "They can build self-concept just in the general way they react to situations by accentuating the positive and giving reasons why kids should do something instead of giving demands."

Designed as somewhat an open space school, there are folding walls in all classrooms at Irving that allow teachers to break up or combine groups of students for more individualized instruction. Team teaching is used in Kindergarten, first and second grade classes and Carpenter said instructors cooperate across all grade levels to provide for children to progress at their own rate, especially in reading.

"Individualization really goes along with developing self-concept," the principal said. "As we get into more individualization, kids are working at a level where they're successful and not constantly meeting defeat every time they turn around. It gives them a more positive attitude toward themselves and school."

ONE OF THE activities that has been used at Irving to help children understand themselves and others is the "magic circle." In a sort of roundtable discussion, the students talk with each other and the teacher about their feelings and matters of concern to them in an informal way.

A fourth-grade group at the school recently had a "magic circle" discussion about classroom procedures, for example, and in talking about how they felt things should be done, became involved in setting rules for their own behavior.

Carpenter plans to involve even more students in similar self-concept building activities next year and continue the emphasis on individualized instruction.

A zoo?

Park officials weigh housing animals at Childerley Retreat

by LYNN ASINOF

A zoo may be coming to Wheeling. The Wheeling Park District is investigating the possibility of borrowing animals from the Lincoln Park Zoo to be housed at the Childerley Retreat House property if it is purchased by the district.

"The idea is to get the native population acquainted with foreign species of animals that they may not see or become accustomed to," said Park Pres. Bob Ross.

Ross has discussed the project with Dr. Les Fisher, curator of the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago. He said Fisher said it is possible for the zoo to loan the park hoofed animals such as gazelles and antelopes, providing the park district has the facilities to care for them.

AS A RESULT, the park board is now studying insurance requirements, village ordinances and federal regulations to find out if the zoo is possible. Moreover, a letter has been sent to the Lincoln Park Zoo setting out the proposal in writing.

"There are certain requirements that would have to be met," Ross said. He said the park district would have to be able to provide proper housing, a 24-hour game keeper and adequate supervision for the zoo.

Ross said that until more information is available, the park district will not know how much the project will cost. "We won't know until we find out what the requirements are about how they have to be housed, how they have to be bedded and that type of thing," he said.

The idea for the zoo has been tossed around at park board meetings for several years, Ross said. He said the idea was originally to start a petting zoo in an old barn which the district was thinking of buying. That project never got off the ground, although Ross said the zoo idea pops up from time to time.

"Every so often someone says we've got to have a zoo," he said.

This time, however, Ross said he thinks the project might work. "It looks more feasible now. It's off the ground," he said.

THE PARK PRESIDENT said the proposed purchase of the Childerley property, 506 McHenry Rd., would provide the district with a good location for the zoo. The park board is also planning to use the site as a day camp, outdoor education center and meeting place.

If the zoo idea does work, Ross said the park district would probably borrow the animals from the Lincoln Park Zoo or other nearby zoos.

"Again I don't know for sure," he said.

"They would have to approve the shelters, the square-foot areas. They would have 100 per cent control even though they would be billeted out here."

New courses to highlight Stevenson summer school

Several new courses, including a summer theater workshop, math topics and literary analysis, will be offered at Stevenson High School this summer.

Other summer courses that will be available are beginning typing, algebra, economics, anthropology-political science, business seminar, remedial junior English, physical education-basketball, physical fitness, American studies II and driver education.

The theater workshop is open to both high school students and adults and will provide opportunities to study, produce and present a drama, according to Robert Granner, workshop director and Stevenson drama instructor. Acting techniques, set and stage construction and costume design will be included in the course.

TOPICS IN mathematics will be offered in three two-week sessions. Students may take one, two or three of the classes. Subjects to be studied include probability and statistics, mathematics in the real world and mathematical games and recreation.

The literary analysis course is designed to prepare students who want to take the advanced placement English examination either through the College Entrance Examination Board or a college placement program.

Anthropology-political science is for students interested in learning the field techniques of an anthropologist and the social scientific processes of the political scientist. Students will be engaged in the actual activities of surveying, digging, analyzing and interpreting recovered artifacts at the high school's Prairie View site.

THE BUSINESS seminar is designed to meet the specific needs of the individual student. Business topics for study by pupils will be submitted to the instructor for approval. The American experience course is a similar individualized student course in English.

Fees for the summer course range from $15 to $30, depending on the length of the course. Most classes will begin June 17 and continue to the last week in July.

Further details on the summer program are available through Wayne Schnable at Stevenson High School.

Ice cream bars and beer don't mix too well...

Ice cream and beer apparently don't mix well in Buffalo Grove — at least if it's the ice cream truck driver and a companion that allegedly are doing the drinking.

Buffalo Grove police arrested two men Thursday for allegedly having open liquor in a vehicle — a Bimbo ice cream truck, owned by Glasier Ice Cream of Barrington. Arrested were the driver, Charles D. Chomuk, 18, of Hanover Park, and his companion, Glenn R. Gershon, 20, of 2129 Ash St., Des Plaines.

Police said they found two open cans of beer in the cab of the ice cream truck. Three unopened cans were found in the freezer, among the ice cream bars, police added. The arrests occurred at 4:50 p.m. near the intersection of Whitehall and Timber Hill Road. Both will appear May 21 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

After posting $50 bond, Gerson was turned over to the Shore Patrol of the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. Police said Gershon allegedly was away without leave from the Navy at the time of his arrest.

Village will start flushing hydrants

Buffalo Grove will be flushing out fire hydrants throughout the village for the next few weeks, which could cause rust-colored water in some homes.

Public Works Director Charles McCoy said residents should not become alarmed because of the discolored water. Usually, he said, the water will clear and will be suitable for drinking if residents let the tap run for a short time.

The hydrants flushing is necessary, he said, to eliminate sediment that has collected during the winter.

Robbery nets $70 at gas station

Two armed robbers allegedly stole about $70 last week from the Clark gas station on Wolf Road, north of Palatine Road in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Cook County Sheriff's police, who are handling the case, could give no further information.

Nun fights alimony challenge

A nun living in a Wisconsin convent will make her appearance in federal court in Chicago to fight for alimony payments she says she is entitled to from her former husband.

Her former husband, James Lane, 1605 Central Rd., Arlington Heights now is paying $250 a month in alimony and wants to stop payments because he contends she has "remarried" the church.

Sister Mary A. Lane, a novice at the Dominican Sisters of the Perpetual Rosary in Milwaukee, will appear before Judge Robert Hunter in U.S. District Court after failing to appear in previous sessions. Her lawyers had said she belonged to a cloistered convent and is not permitted to leave the grounds.

In a report, previously submitted to the court, the nun stated she needed the money to provide for medical expenses not covered by the convent because she is a novice and has not taken vows.

Since their divorce in 1970, Lane has remarried and has custody of one of their children.

SISTER MARY Lane however, apparently was able to leave the convent. She appeared Friday before Lane's attorney in Chicago, Edward D. Rosenberg, and gave a deposition to be used in Monday's trial.

Lane, contacted by The Herald Friday, said that he and his former wife attempted to make a settlement of one half the alimony of $125 but failed.

"She claimed she needs the money for dental bills," Lane said. "But she has a savings account and a checking account. One hundred and twenty five dollars should be enough to cover her bills."

Lane believes that the convent does provide for her medical bills. "But she's not going to say that," Lane said.

Sister Mary Lane could not be reached for comment.

'Keep this land open...'

"MAKE IT SO THEY don't build an apartment on this land," said Bob Brytowski. He said this open field north of the village is one of the few spots left in the Northwest suburbs where an amateur cyclist can still go after school "just for a little fun."

Harper or Lake County?

Community college dispute still unresolved

The controversy over the assignment of High School Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County junior college district continues, with no resolution of the conflict to come before June 30.

The Illinois Community College Board earlier this year tentatively assigned Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County junior college district because the high school district was not in any junior college district.

The Buffalo Grove Village Board is urging the community college board to reassign the high school district to the Harper Junior College District because the Palatine school is closer to the village.

The Dist. 125 school board has indicated it is neutral toward the junior college district assignment, but opposes splitting the high school district between junior college districts.

A public hearing on the question was conducted by the Community College Board last week, in response to a request from a group of Dist. 125 residents.

BUFFALO GROVE Village Trustee Tom Mahoney asked that all of Dist. 125 be placed into the Harper junior college district.

Virginia Kerr, president of the Deerfield chapter of the American Assn. of University Women, presented a petition on behalf of Dist. 125 residents requesting that the high school district be annexed to the College of Lake County District.

Several other persons including a student from the Horatio Gardens area and residents of Prairie View told the hearing officer they favored being assigned to the College of Lake County district.

According to Robert Anderson, president of the Dist. 125 school board, about equal numbers of residents of the high school district attend both junior colleges.

Anderson said the Dist. 125 board opposes permitting Buffalo Grove to conduct a separate annexation referendum that would put part of Dist. 125 into a junior college district and leave part of it out of any district. Such an action, he said, "would place an unfair and inequitable tax burden on the balance of the district."

LAWRENCE AUTEN, associate secretary for planning for the community college board, said the assignment of Dist. 125 would be finalized by June 30.

"We really have only three choices," Auten told persons attending the hearing.

"We can leave the assignment as it is, assign Dist. 125 to Harper or split the district between the two junior colleges."

Whatever the assignment, Auten said residents will have 30 days to petition for a referendum to decide if they approve or disapprove of the assignment. The referendum must be conducted between 40 and 90 days after the petition for a referendum is filed.

It would be possible, he said, to vote down the assignment and Dist. 125 would again not be part of any junior college district.

The law that permitted high schools to levy for out-of-district junior college tuition has expired. According to Ed Ellis, Dist. 125 assistant superintendent, after this year, Stevenson High School will have to take junior college tuition for students out of its education fund.

'It was nothing'

Patrolman rescues year-old infant from burning house

"Aw, I really didn't do anything," said Des Plaines Police Patrolman Thomas Richard with a modest, sheepish smile.

Well, if pulling a year-old child from a house before it might have gone up in flames is not doing anything... what is? Several police and firemen thought it was mighty quick thinking.

RICHARD, 25, and a policeman for not quite a year, didn't have a whole lot of time for thought before he broke through a porch window and pulled 14-month-old Tyson Mundt to safety.

Richard was on patrol Friday morning cruising past the house at 1398 Brown St., when he noticed a small fire on the porch of the home.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Michael Mundt was preparing an outdoor grill for a cookout but put a little too much fluid on the hot charcoal, according to Fire Dept. Capt. David Wolf.

THE CAN CAUGHT fire in the woman's hand, she accidentally threw it up onto the enclosed porch and the can landed in front on the door.

It was just about then that Richard passed the house. "The mother was hysterical and my only thought was to get the boy out," he told The Herald.

He couldn't go through the front door and the back door was locked, so when another unidentified man who came along boosted Richard up, he managed to smash through a window with his patrolman's dog stick, reach in and pull the youngster to safety.

DES PLAINE fire fighters arrived moments later and extinguished the flames which fortunately, did not go much farther than the front door.

"All I wanted the policeman to do was get my son out," said relieved Mrs. Mundt Friday afternoon.

"He's certainly to be commended for action and immediate reaction to a dangerous situation," said Wolf.

Police Sgt. Wayne Adams apparently agrees. He said he's recommending Richard for a departmental award in connection with the episode. Police Chief Arthur Hintz will also review the request.

The child saved and unhurt and the officer having suffered no more than a torn and soiled uniform shirt, Richard laughed. "Now I have to go back to work."

Behrel never wanted use of garage fight 'ammo'

by LINDA PUNCH

A proposed $16 million Ellinwood Street parking garage again became a point of contention in plans to redevelop the downtown Des Plaines business district.

Several aldermen and city residents questioned financing and location of the 500-car parking garage at a city council committee of the whole meeting Thursday night. The garage, which primarily will be used for parking for tenants and shoppers of the $12 million Superblock building, has become a crucial point in the progress of the overall project.

Mayor Herbert Behrel opened the session by denying newspaper reports that he had delayed meeting with the aldermen "several times because I had no ammunition ready."

"I had no ammunition to gather. We were waiting on the Lochner report (on the parking garage) and the four-way agreement was redrafted at least five or six times," he said.

THE MAYOR said the downtown redevelopment was "not Herbie Behrel's program. I'm just one of the cogs in the machine," he said. "It's a concerted effort to make the downtown district something modern and what we think it should be."

"This idea is no fly-by-night effort by any individual," he added. "There isn't any one individual, including myself, that stands to make any great profit."

Behrel also said he didn't like "headlines that say we're coming up to have a big fight -- I don't see any boxing gloves."

Ald George Olen (2nd) was expected to make a strong statement against the parking garage but declined to comment when offered an opportunity by the mayor. Olen said he will "make a complete statement on the whole idea later."

THE ALDERMAN did question an agreement with the developers which allows them to lease 96 parking spaces for a monthly rate of $29 per space. He said that if the garage is going to "pay for itself," parking stalls will have to lease for at least $31.66 a month.

Olen added that the $20 figure is too little to pay off the revenue bonds that will be sold to finance construction of the parking garage. "Why must we contribute more than a third of the cost -- why are we contributing so much money to the developers," he said.

Financial consultant Edward Benjamin said the $20 fee would "contribute reasonably to the total revenue structure."

"The figure was arrived at through negotiations -- what we reasonably could expect from such a situation," he said.

Benjamin added that the agreement provides for an escalation in fees in five-year increments.

THE CONSULTANT termed the $3.5 million revenue bond issue "marketable" and said that three local banks had "given assurance" they would purchase $1.2 million in bonds at about 5 1/4 per cent interest.

Benjamin added that the banks must "have confidence in what the city is doing" to purchase bonds at a rate 1.5 per cent below market.

Noting that construction costs continue to rise, Benjamin said his firm recommends that the bonds not be sold until bids were accepted on major portions of construction.

"The bonds will not be sold unless we demonstrate we can build the job within the money -- that's the only proper and conservative way," he said.

Benjamin said he has "no fears that we're building a white elephant in any sense of the word." He noted that if the garage failed to make enough revenue from the leasing agreement it could be converted to commuter parking.

RESIDENTS' COMPLAINTS centered on possible traffic problems caused by placement of the garage on Ellinwood Street. Richard Tabatt of 1055 Greenview St. said he was afraid traffic from the commercial area would "filter into the residential area."

Another central city resident, Thomas Mahon, who is also City Treasurer, said he didn't want "Thacker, Cora and Center becoming major thoroughfares."

"I don't want to see the city in its usual posture of creating problems and reacting too late," he said.

Richard Beebe, of H. W. Lochner, Inc., engineering consultants, said he didn't "foresee any major changes in the traffic pattern."

The parking garage issue is expected to be raised again at the city council meeting May 6.

Balloons get lots of concentration and a little air before they'll cooperate for youngsters involved in making papier mache masterpieces. Lisa Yourd, 8, musters all the air power she can to do the trick.

Dwindling size may force disbanding

Community Council at low ebb

by BOB GALLAS

The Dist. 59 School Community Council, once an active, involved parent organization, will face the question of disbanding at its next full membership meeting, scheduled for May 8.

The lack of direction and dwindling membership made the decision necessary, according to Nita Stamm, council president. "We're against it (disbanding), but you can't run an organization with just six people," said Mrs. Stamm. "We're hoping that we'll be able to get a big turnout at our May meeting to get some new blood in the organization."

Ordinarily, the council would have about 40 members -- two representatives from each Dist. 59 school -- plus a six-person executive board. The board conducts much of the council's business, drawing on the membership for help in projects and other activities.

The organization is somewhat closed -- its members come only from school parent organizations, which nominate two delegates from their group to attend School Community Council meetings, usually held five times per year.

The executive board meets every month.

Partial blame for the lack of interest is an absence of things to do, admitted Mrs. Stamm, who added that attendance at some meetings was only four people.

ACCORDING TO MRS. Stamm, one of the prime functions of the Community Council is to act as a liaison between the school board and the community. She blamed Supt. James Erviti as being part of the problem.

"Erviti has refused to recognize Community Council as a working and service group to the school board," said Mrs. Stamm. "He won't let us do anything. If the board would let us be the working group it used to be, I don't believe we'd have this problem of lack of interest," said Mrs. Stamm.

Some of School Community Council's projects have included preparing packets which are designed to inform new teachers about the Northwest suburbs. The council has also undertaken a foreign language survey in the district and designed the report cards presently in use.

ERVITI, WEIGHING HIS comments carefully, didn't agree with Mrs. Stamm's statement saying he was responsible for the demise of School Community Council.

"An organization must have purpose and must reexamine this purpose periodically to be successful," said Erviti. "Its purpose, however, must be generated from within, not from the outside."

Erviti added that the district did support the Community Council by providing services such as postage and supplies, along with providing meeting space and a staff person assigned to attend council meetings. "It's also one of the few organizations mentioned specifically in the school board's policy manual," said Erviti.

Some help for the troubled council may come from the school board itself, which presently has several members who are past members of School Community Council.

"Perhaps we're partly to blame," said board president Jerry Smiley. "Hopefully this year we can get them more involved on committees," said Smiley, who hinted that there will be board discussion of the council's problem.

SMILEY, WHO IS a former Council member, said it was a good source for opinion, since it is usually made up of citizens with a more than average interest in education.

Another former council member now on the school board, Emil Bahnmair, said he hopes School Community Council can continue to be a viable force in the district, but added he didn't know the answer to their present apathy problem.

Bahnmair echoed Mrs. Stamm's comment on a need for new members in the council. "Right now, it's the same people doing it all," he said.

A LOOMING QUESTION will be answered early next month when the general meeting of the council is called to order.

If there's a good turnout, new officers will hopefully be elected to the council's executive board, according to Mrs. Stamm.

"If not, the present executive board will be faced with a simple problem," she said.

"Is it all worth it?"

Two arrested in grocery store holdup

A man and a woman were in custody following their arrest by Des Plaines Police minutes after they allegedly robbed a grocery store of $101 cash with a toy pistol.

Detectives said Friday the man, identified as Thomas M. Gresh, 22, also was under suspicion for a previous holdup of a food store for $476 last Tuesday.

Gresh, 4559 St. Louis Ave., and Sosy Keorkunian, 20, 5633 Wayne, both of Chicago, were charged with robbery.

The two were arrested a few blocks away from the Open Pantry, 1950 Touhy Ave., after police, who were answering the robbery-in-progress call, managed to corner their getaway car.

ACCORDING TO REPORTS, Gresh, wearing a hairpiece and false mustache, entered the store shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday with what later turned out to be a toy pistol in his belt and demanded money.

He then fled to a waiting auto which drove off northbound on Cedar Street.

Patrolman Paul Gehrke arrived on the scene seconds later, obtained a description of the pair and their auto, and drove off after them.

Gresh and the Keorkunian woman were nabbed on Magnolia Street a little north of Touhy after Sgt. Robert Ornberg blocked their escape by pulling his patrol car into an intersection there.

A SEARCH OF THE car turned up the allegedly stolen cash, along with the toy pistol and the hairpiece said to have been used in the holdup.

Police also found various items of clothing in the auto. Gresh was wearing no trousers when he was apprehended and police said he may have been trying to change clothes during the getaway.

Gresh was returned to the store where he was identified as the holdup man by employees and witnesses. The woman did not come into the store during the robbery, said police.

GRESH REPORTEDLY admitted the holdup Friday and detectives said he would be tied to the Tuesday robbery of White Hen Pantry, 935 E. Oakton St., for $476 cash. It was undetermined, however, whether a toy or a real pistol was used to rob that store.

Associate Judge John Gannon set a $25,000 bond for Gresh Friday and a $2,000 bail for the woman. They were in custody Friday.

Both are to appear Thursday in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court on the charges.

City buys small plot for CD monitor station

Interstate Steel Co., 401 Touhy Ave., has sold a 10 foot by 30 foot plot of land to the city for a Civil Defense monitoring station.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said the property was purchased for $600. Behrel and Ald. Richard Ward (8th) worked on the proposal with Interstate officials.

A Civil Defense siren will be erected on the small parcel of land. Behrel said that there has not been a siren in that area of Des Plaines to warn people of serious weather conditions and other emergencies.

Parents' program

Nelson School will sponsor a "parents' effectiveness training program" Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school's gymnasium, 8901 N. Ozanam St., in Niles.

The session is part of a nationwide program, established by Thomas Gordon, president of the Effectiveness Training Associates, of Pasadena, Calif.

According to Nelson School Principal Raymond Owens, the program will provide parents with pointers on how to become more effective as parents. Some topics for discussion include how to help develop a self-concept in your child; how to reduce pressure on under achievers; how to handle social problems with your child, such as feelings of unacceptance by fellow students; how to help rather than hassle your children about homework; and how to promote self-discipline among your children.

Lutheran grant winner

Darryl F. Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Albert, 1360 Pennsylvania Ave., Des Plaines, has received a Lutheran campus scholarship for the 1973-74 school year from Aid Assn. for Lutherans, fraternal benefit society of one million members with headquarters in Appleton, Wis.

He is attending Concordia College, Milwaukee, having graduated from Elk Grove High School. He is a member of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Des Plaines.

New civic group officers

Newly elected officers of the Des Plaines Terrace Civic Assn. presided at the recent annual meeting held at Chipewaga Junior High School.

The new officers are Lucille Ligenza, president; Murray Breitberg, vice president; Dave Waddell, treasurer; June Altermatt, recording secretary; and Ruth Davis, corresponding secretary.

Remaining on the board of directors to complete the second year of their terms are Gene Ligenza and Art Kowalewski. Newly elected to two-year terms are George Argianas and Norm Kostick.

Mobile lung unit to appear

How the body copes with the problems of air pollution and respiratory diseases will be explained to students at Mark Twain School, 9401 Hamlin, Des Plaines, on Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. when a mobile science unit from Chicago Lung Association will be at the school.

The educational unit from the Christmas Seal agency is used in conjunction with the health and science programs in numerous city and suburban schools. Coordinating its appearance at Mark Twain is Mildred Meyers, school nurse.

Members of the fourth, fifth and sixth-grade classes will have a chance to see how the body defends itself against respiratory invaders through the action of the small hair-like cilia, which screen out dust, dirt and germs.

A collection of mounted lung tissues illustrates the damage done by air pollution, smoking and respiratory diseases such as tuberculosis and emphysema.

Henry Pietrzak, health education consultant, will be at the exhibit to lecture to the students, answer questions and make available free health educational materials on the human respiratory system.

Scouting news

Cub Scout Pack 263 held its April meeting at Devonshire School gym. The meeting was called to order by Cubmaster Tom Rebolette. Den 5 presented the colors.

Webelos den 1 presented a skit entitled "Rockies Going to the Moon." Each den showed things they had made at their weekly meetings during show and tell time.

Ex-Cubmaster George Hanson was the guest for the evening. He showed the scouts how to do a special scout hand clap.

The pack will hold a rocket derby April 21 at Devonshire School at 1 p.m. The scouts are working hard for the upcoming Scout-O-Rama at Arlington Park. Tickets are available for the April 27 and 28 event.

A kite-flying contest is planned for May 5 at Devonshire School. And May 25 a car wash will be held at the school.

Cubmaster Tom Rebolette and Assistant Cubmaster Bob Ruh presented the following awards: Webelos Den 1 — Mike Williams, aquanaut, scholar; Scott Bowman, aquanaut, artist; Omar Quereishi, artist. Den 3: Steve Davidson, denner cord; Tom De Silva, assistant denner cord; Amir Karima, silver arrow.

Awards in Den 4 went to: Dean Popovich, bear badge; Darren Allegretti, silver arrow; Tom Gualano, silver and gold arrow; Donald Armstrong, gold arrow. Den 6: Ken Bauer, denner cord; Chris French, assistant denner cord; Kenny Evensen, gold and silver arrow; Jimmy Campanelle, silver arrow. Den 7: Gene Craddock, silver badge, gold and silver arrow; Bruce Cameron, bear badge, gold and silver arrow; Greg Grana, gold and silver arrow; Steve Kalb, gold badge, gold and silver arrow.

Two year service pins were awarded to Webelos Wally Mykityn and Scott Bowman.

FISH general meet April 25

FISH of Des Plaines will hold a general meeting on Thursday at 8 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church, 5th and Algonquin Road, Des Plaines.

A speaker from Northwest Opportunity Center (NWOC) in Rolling Meadows will discuss aid offered through the center's facilities to lower income families in the northwest suburban area. Bruce Newton, director of NWOC, will explain FISH operations to members and guests.

Various members of the FISH Steering Committee will report on activities of the helping hand organization during the past two months.

Anyone in the community interested in learning more about FISH and the services it offers to those in need is invited to attend the meeting, according to Dorothy Tinnea, chairman.

The round-the-clock telephone number to request help from FISH is 294-5677.

Parent training offered at Y

Parent Effectiveness Training a course in communication skills for parents is being offered at the Northwest Suburban Y.M.C.A., 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

Sessions are scheduled for eight consecutive Wednesday evenings from 7:10 p.m. beginning April 24.

Instructor for the class is Eldon Toll, minister of education at Northwest Covenant Church in Mount Prospect.

The class is open to fathers and mothers of children of all ages, to single parents, and to all interested adults working with youth.

Adult driving course sign up

Adults who want to learn to drive may enroll in an eight-week course to be held at Maine East High School, Dempster Street and Potter Rd., Park Ridge.

This driver training program consists of classroom sessions held on Tuesday evenings beginning April 23, and in-the-car instruction on Saturdays, beginning April 27. The classroom sessions, 7:30-10 p.m., include a study of traffic laws and regulations, defensive and safety driving techniques, a survey of the mechanics and care of a car, pedestrian safety, auto insurance and emergency situation procedures.

On the eight Saturdays, two students and their instructor will spend 1½ hours in a dual-controlled car learning maneuvers and driving in gradually accelerated traffic conditions. Each student drives for 45 minutes, then observes his partner's driving for 45 minutes, a total of six hours behind the wheel. In-the-car instruction will start from the high school parking lot, and students must furnish their own transportation to and from the school. Students must be 21 years of age or older.

For information on registration and tuition, call 696-3600.

Top insurance salesman

John H. Reiher, 360 Kathleen Dr., Des Plaines, district representative in this area for Aid Assn. for Lutherans (AAL), was among the top 5 per cent of AAL's total field force of almost 1,000 during fiscal year 1973. Their outstanding achievement in sales and services to members qualified him for the society's president's cabinet.

AAL is a fraternal life and health insurance society headquartered in Appleton, Wis.

Nun fights alimony challenge

A nun living in a Wisconsin convent will make her appearance in federal court in Chicago to fight for alimony payments she says she is entitled to from her former husband.

Her former husband, James Lane, 1605 Central Rd., Arlington Heights now is paying $250 a month in alimony and wants to stop payments because he contends she has "remarried" the church.

Sister Mary A. Lane, a novice at the Dominican Sisters of the Perpetual Rosary in Milwaukee, will appear before Judge Robert Hunter in U.S. District Court after failing to appear in previous sessions. Her lawyers had said she be-

Former congressman Abner J. Mikva, running for a seat in the 10th Congressional District, has released his income tax return for 1973. Mikva also has compiled his tax returns from the last 10 years and made them available to the public in his Skokie campaign headquarters.

Mikva Friday mailed copies of his 1973 return to reporters. His entire tax file is in his campaign office, 3415 Church St., Skokie.

The joint return, filed by Mikva and his wife Zorita, shows a combined income of $81,332.11 on which the Mikvas paid $1,287.33 in federal income taxes.

In a prepared release Mikva asked his opponent, U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, "to withdraw his opposition to income disclosure and make public his financial data before the November election."

MIKVA'S RETURN shows wages in the amount of $9,963.56 with $5,385.80 of that amount paid to his wife for teaching positions with the Chicago Board of Education and Evanston School Dist. 54. Another $3,776 was paid to Mikva for the remaining days of his term as a representative in 1973. Northwestern University School of Law paid Mikva $800 for his part-time teaching.

Mikva's return also shows dividends in the amount of $1,052.11 from stocks. With a deduction of $200 the taxable dividends amounted to $852.11. Mikva's stocks include 200 shares of Hines Lumber; 200 shares of Skyline; 100 shares of Dreyfus Fund; 100 shares of U.S. Reduction; 328 shares of Colonial Fund and a number of shares in a former law firm he was associated with.

THE BULK OF Mikva's income included $57,000 from his present law firm,

Abner Mikva

D'Ancona in Chicago and $9,000 from his former law firm, Devoe, Shadur and Krupp. His total income other than wages, dividends and interest was $69,297.30. Mikva specializes in corporate law.

On the form for itemized deduction Mikva claimed interest expenses of $2,500 on an auto loan, house mortgage and charge accounts. Deductions also included $3,600 in charitable contributions including $3,400 which went to his synagogue. Real estate, sales and gas tax deductions amounted to about $4,000.

The Mikvas had $13,862.16 in federal income tax withheld in 1973 and wound up owing the Internal Revenue Service $8,015.17.

"ALL TOO MANY people don't trust public officials today," Mikva said, "and with good reason — the instances of conflict of interest and favoritism in government are all too common. The most effective way to erase the doubt of impropriety is with full public disclosure."

He added that when people give their trust to an elected official they have every right to confirm that the official represents only their interest.

For 4th- through 6th-graders

Pilot program for gifted gets go-ahead

A pilot program for academically gifted children will get under way for fourth, fifth and sixth grade students in Dist. 26 next year.

The school board this week gave its approval to the project by approving a tentative plan for the program which includes the hiring of a teacher and continuation of the enrichment minicourse program now under way in the district.

"This proposal is to develop a specific identifiable program for the academically gifted students," according to curriculum director Al Levin. Levin added that detail such as academic test cut-off scores for program eligibility, teacher scheduling and exact class content will not be determined until a formal plan is drawn up for the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

As tentatively presented to the school board, the program would use results from two tests administered to the students including SRA tests and Cognitive Abilities tests. Approximately the top five per cent of each grade level in each school would be eligible for the program, although this number may be increased.

The program would probably be one day per week with a full-time teacher directing the classes. The teacher will also be responsible for content of the course using the following guidelines:

- The program will be a combination of group and individualized activities.
- Activities will not duplicate regular class activities.
- Activities will include math, science, language arts and social studies either simultaneously or in unit blocks of time.

The administration report said the district could be reimbursed up to $5,000 from the state to be used toward the salary of a full-time teacher. The district would probably have to spend approximately $7,000 toward salary and other instructional material costs of the program.

Continuation of the enrichment minicourse program will cost the district approximately $2,500.

The board went along with the tentative proposal but added two provisions which it would like the administration to pursue.

- The program should not be limited to fourth, fifth and sixth graders.
- An effort should be made to eliminate "labeling" the gifted students by keeping them in their own school for the special classes and making the classes heterogeneous.

The administration said these considerations would be taken into account it is a pilot program, it will probably be limited to the intermediary grades at least for next year.

Health care plan offered to employe groups

The Michael Reese Health Plan is offering a prepaid comprehensive health-care program to employe groups in the Des Plaines area.

The Des Plaines unit of the health plan held its grand opening Friday with a luncheon attended by Dr. LeRoy A. Pesch, president of the board of trustees of the Michael Reese Health Plan, and Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrer.

The unit is also sponsoring a series of Sunday open houses at its offices at 1400 East Touhy.

The opening of the Des Plaines unit marks additional development of the health plans' Chicago area services. The Touhy avenue offices are the first of several opening throughout the Chicago area in the next few years.

The Des Plaines medical center, based in the Touhy Office Plaza, offers full-outpatient facilities including services of specialists in internal medicine, pediatrics and obstetrics-gynecology. For specialized procedures and hospitalization, the Des Plaines unit will use the Michael Reese Medical Center.

Dr. Pesch said northwest suburban residents will "find the new facility very convenient to reach from their homes and places of work."

"We expect the new unit to meet the needs of many additional suburban employes who will make the health plan available to their employees," he said.

The health plan began in 1972 and serves more than 40 companies in Chicago and the suburbs.

Cumberland Baptist Church to dedicate new sanctuary

Cumberland Baptist Church, 1500 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, will dedicate its permanent sanctuary this weekend during a flurry of festivities.

A dedication dinner is planned at 7:15 p.m. Friday, with the Rev. Elmer A. Fischer, former pastor of the church, as guest speaker.

A dedication concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday will feature presentations by Mrs. Florence Johnson, a soprano soloist, and Frank Dietz, a baritone soloist. Instrumental selections will be provided by Ralph Colburn, organist, and Mrs. Mary Lou Colburn, pianist.

Sunday activities begin with the Bible school at 9:45 a.m., followed by the morning worship service at 11, where the Rev. Warren Magnuson, general secretary of the Baptist General Conference, will speak.

THE REV. ARMOND W. Anderson, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church of Edison Bay, Wis., will give the main address at the dedication service at 4 p.m. Several Baptist officials will participate in the ceremony, as well as Walter Peterson, building co-chairman, and Joseph Joquin, trustee chairman. Baritone soloist Robert Coles and the church choir also will be on hand.

An additional ceremony, at 7 p.m., will be addressed by the Rev. Clifford Anderson, executive secretary of the Midwest conference of the Baptist General Conference. The Rev. Robert E. Hails, pastor of the local church, will conduct the dedication of memorial gifts.

Lane, contacted by The Herald Friday, said that he and his former wife attempted to make a settlement of one half the alimony of $125 but failed.

"She claimed she needs the money for dental bills," Lane said. "But she has a savings account and a checking account. One hundred and twenty five dollars should be enough to cover her bills."

Lane believes that the convent does provide for her medical bills. "But she's not going to say that," Lane said.

Sister Mary Lane could not be reached for comment.

Community Council may be forced to disband

by BOB GALLAS

The Dist. 39 School Community Council, once an active, involved parent organization, will face the question of disbanding at its next full membership meeting, scheduled for May 8.

The lack of direction and dwindling membership made the decision necessary, according to Nita Stamm, council president. "We're against it (disbanding), but you can't run an organization with just six people," said Mrs. Stamm. "We're hoping that we'll be able to get a big turnout at our May meeting to get some new blood in the organization."

Ordinarily, the council would have about 40 members — two representatives from each Dist. 39 school — plus a six-person executive board. The board conducts much of the council's business, drawing on the membership for help in projects and other activities.

The organization is somewhat closed — its members come only from school parent organizations, which nominate two delegates from their group to attend School Community Council meetings, usually held five times per year.

The executive board meets every month.

Partial blame for the lack of interest is an absence of things to do, admitted Mrs. Stamm, who added that attendance at some meetings was only four people.

ACCORDING TO MRS. Stamm, one of the prime functions of the Community Council is to act as a liaison between the school board and the community. She blamed Supt. James Ertvi as being part of the problem.

"Ertvi has refused to recognize Community Council as a working and service group to the school board," said Mrs. Stamm. "He won't let us do anything. If the board would let us be the working group it used to be, I don't believe we'd have this problem of lack of interest," said Mrs. Stamm.

Some of School Community Council's projects have included preparing packets which are designed to inform new teachers about the Northwest suburbs. The council has also undertaken a foreign language survey in the district and designed the report cards presently in use.

ERTVI, WEIGHING HIS comments carefully, didn't agree with Mrs. Stamm's statement saying he was responsible for the demise of School Community Council.

"An organization must have purpose and must reexamine this purpose periodically to be successful," said Ertvi. "It's purpose, however, must be generated from within, not from the outside."

Ertvi added that the district did support the Community Council by providing services such as postage and supplies, along with providing meeting space and a staff person assigned to attend council meetings. "It's also one of the few organizations mentioned specifically in the school board's policy manual," said Ertvi.

Some help for the troubled council may come from the school board itself, which presently has several members who are past members of School Community Council.

"Perhaps we're partly to blame," said board president Jerry Smiley. "Hopefully this year we can get them more involved on committees," said Smiley, who hinted that there will be board discussion of the council's problem.

SMILEY, WHO IS a former Council member, said it was a good source for opinion, since it is usually made up of citizens with a more than average interest in education.

Another former council member now on the school board, Emil Bahmaier, said he hopes School Community Council can continue to be a viable force in the district, but added he didn't know the answer to their present apathy problem.

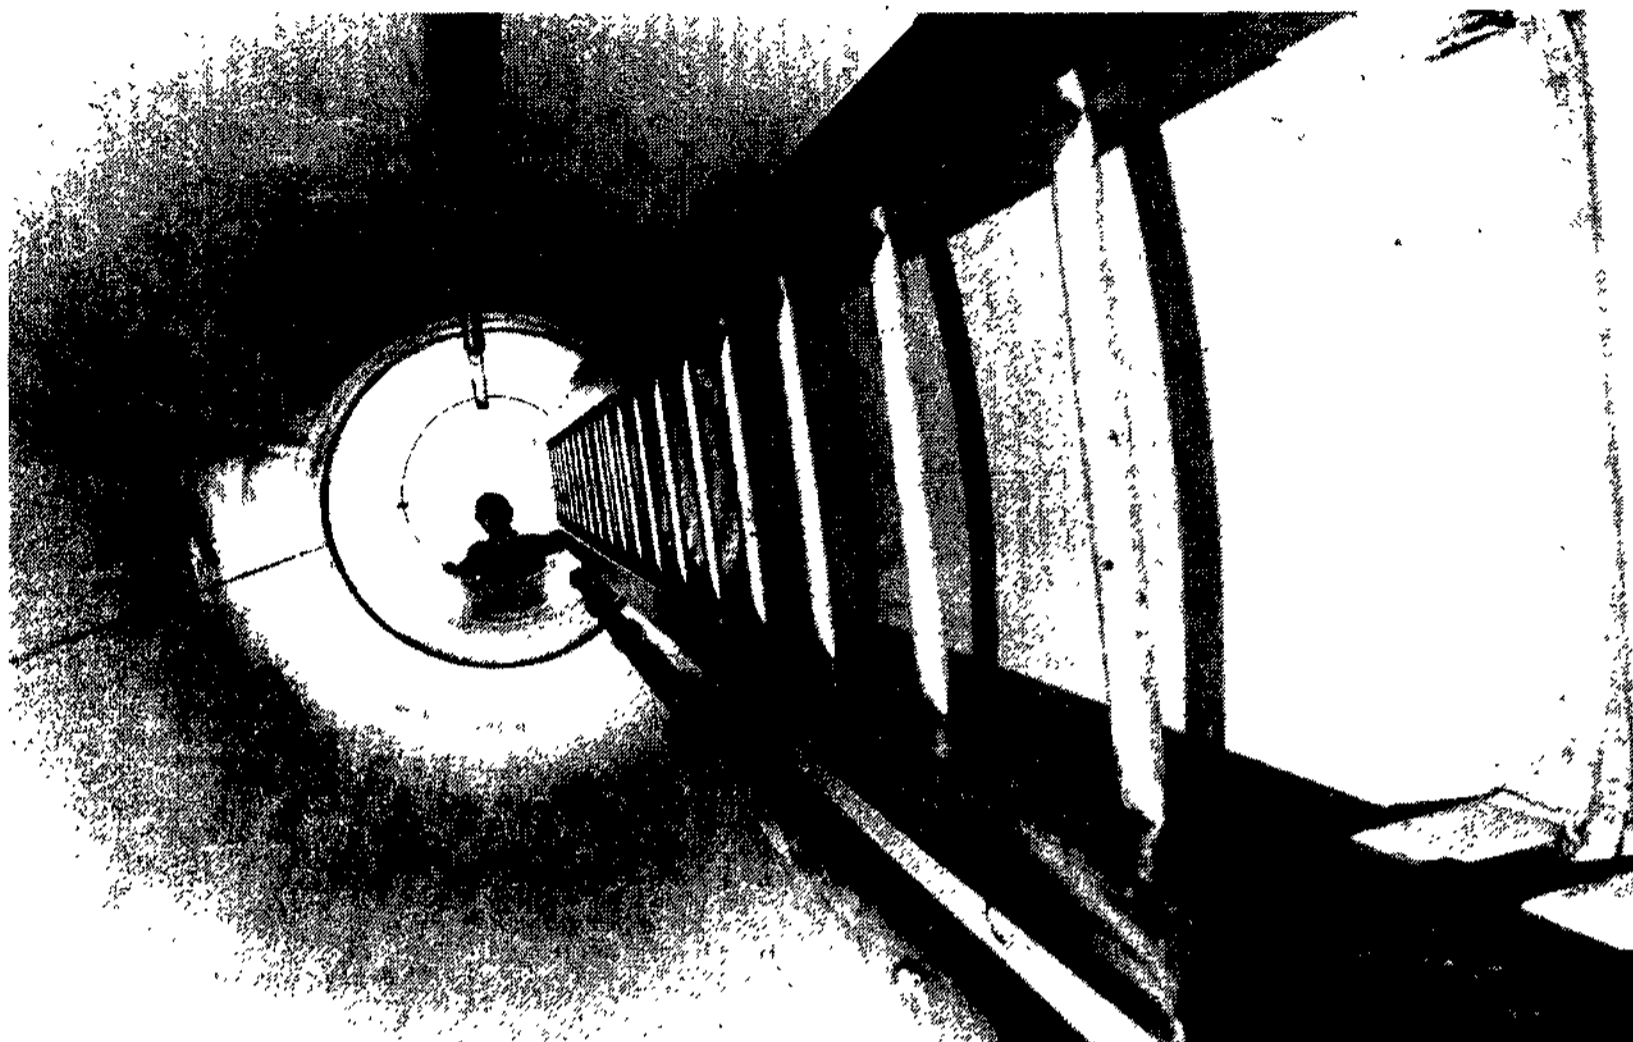

Bahmaier echoed Mrs. Stamm's comment on a need for new members in the council. "Right now, it's the same people doing it all," he said.

A LOOMING QUESTION will be answered early next month when the general meeting of the council is called to order.

If there's a good turnout, new officers will hopefully be elected to the council's executive board, according to Mrs. Stamm.

"If not, the present executive board will be faced with a simple problem," she said.

"Is it all worth it?"

BELOW-GROUND inspection of sewage lift stations like this one in the industrial park in Elk Grove Village is all in a day's work for John Stukel, foreman of the sewer division of the public works department. Automatic pumps move sewage uphill from low areas to nearby interceptor lines.

John Stukel keeps things right under the village

by JERRY THOMAS

The men John Stukel works with could nickname him "Spelunker," for the foreman of the sewer division of Elk Grove Village's public works department earns the title daily.

Deep underground, Stukel, makes daily rounds of the village's 10 sewage lift stations.

Once a day Stukel descends 20 to 30 feet deep into a narrow shaft about 40 inches in diameter to check automatic controls and see if equipment is functioning.

"Most residents have no idea of the sophistication of equipment at the bottom of what looks like a deep well from the surface," said Stukel. "I've been dropping down into stations for checks so often I'm used to it," he added.

AT GROUND LEVEL, the sewage lift stations appear to be nothing more than a short garbage can with a tight, locked, lid. From the top of the tube little of the equipment is visible.

Stukel said Elk Grove Village has lift stations in both residential and commercial areas.

The simplest explanation of a lift station's purpose is to defy gravity.

"Using powerful pumps the station lifts sewage from a low area pushing it to a point higher than it was collected from allowing gravity to take the sewage further, perhaps to another lift station."

DESCENDING THE NARROW shaft into a lift station one finds a small room about 10 feet in diameter. "It's not airless, because fresh air is constantly circulated in the well-lit, dry equipment room," said Stukel.

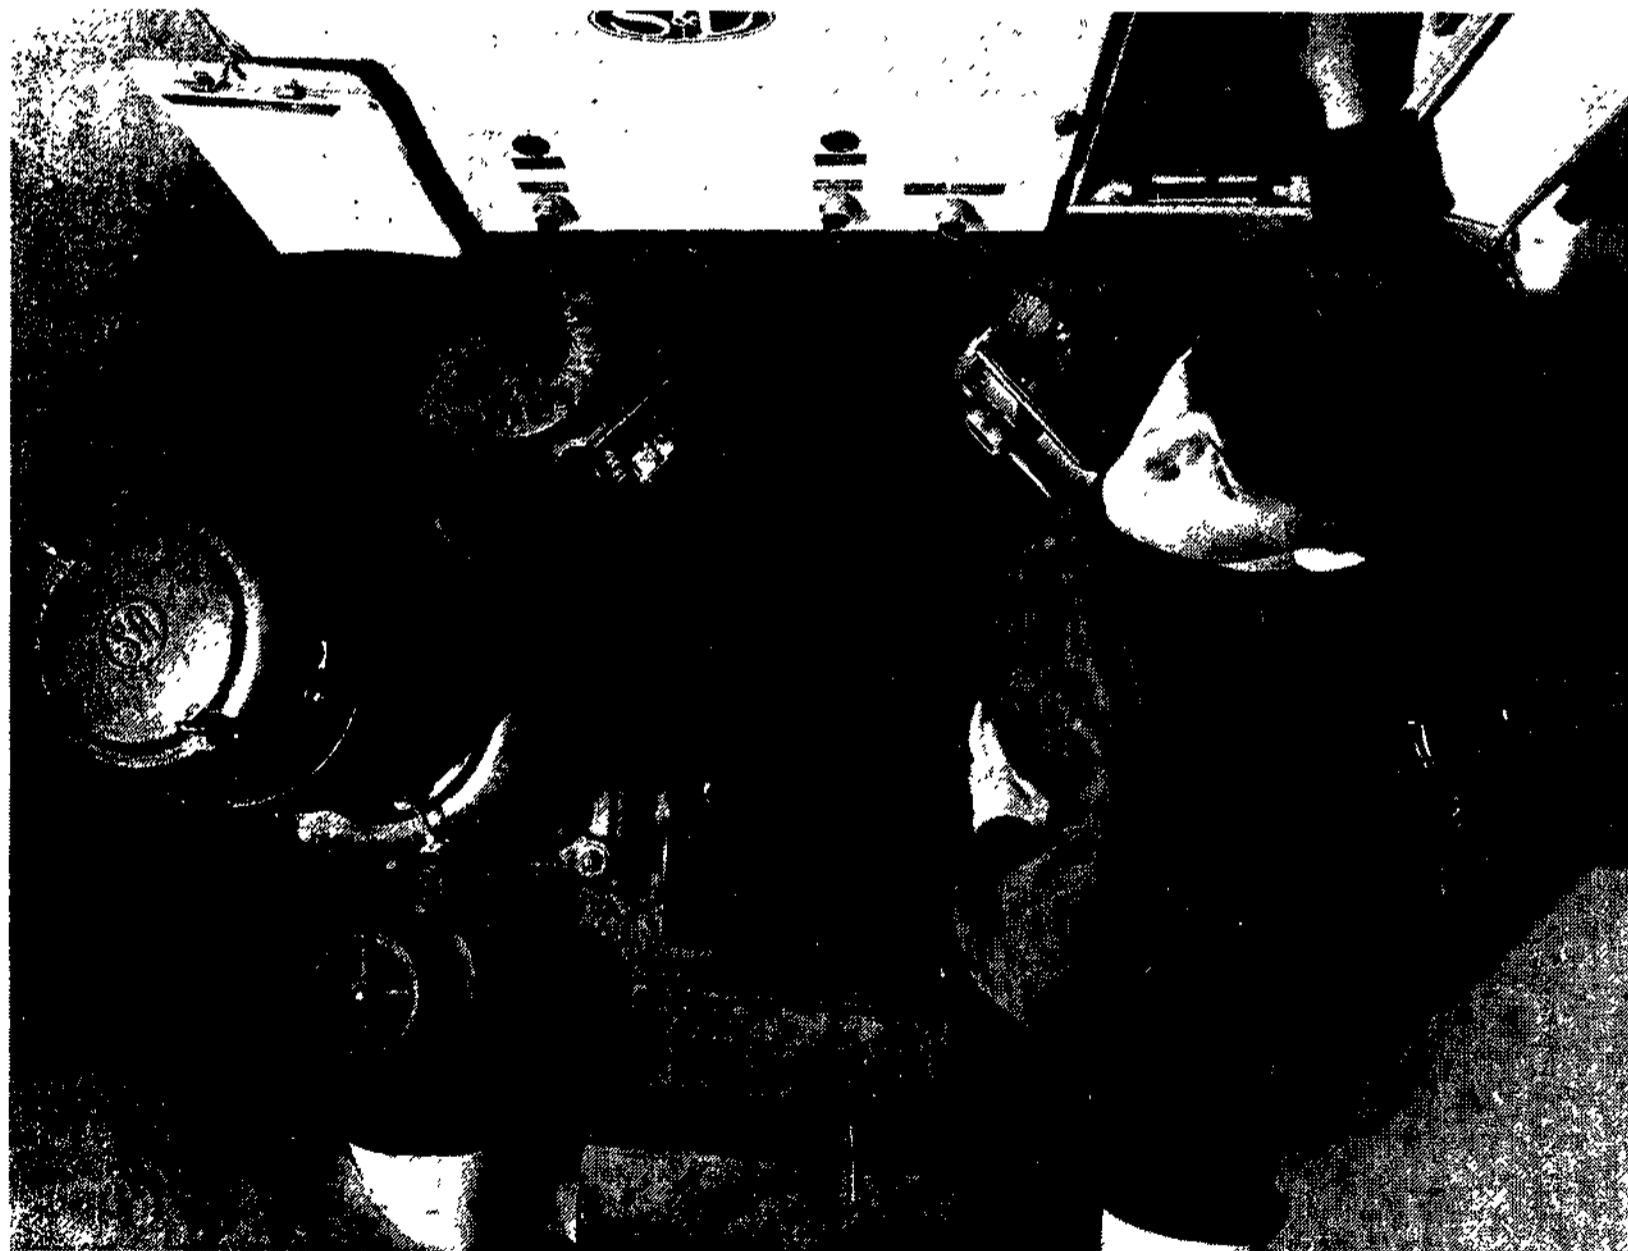

The stations are not heated and dehumidifiers keep equipment from rusting, he added.

"The average lift station has two pumps capable of pumping 500 gallons of sewage a minute," said Stukel.

Next to every lift station is a deep wet well that collects sewage for pumping. When the level in the well reaches a certain point the automatic equipment takes over and the sewage is sent on its way uphill to sewage interceptor lines that eventually take it to sewage treatment plants.

STUKEL SAID Elk Grove Village has one large lift station in the residential area. "In contrast to the others it's so big you could put a house in the equipment room," said Stukel. "But, from the surface the entrance still looks like a half-buried garbage can," he added.

Smaller stations like the one in the industrial center on Greenleaf handle about 10,000 to 12,000 gallons of sewage a day. The bigger stations depending on the power and capacity of pumps could handle a million gallons a day.

JOHN STUKEL, foreman of the sewer division of public works in Elk Grove Village is used to close quarters. Part of his work is checking automatic controls in sewage lift stations deep underground. Here he checks a station on Greenleaf Street in the Elk Grove Village Industrial Park.

VFW Post 9284 adds 15 members, plans summer picnic

Elk Grove Village VFW Post 9284 added 15 names to its membership roster at its regular April meeting.

The post has planned various activities throughout the summer and has applied for permit to use the local forest preserve for its annual post picnic Aug. 18. Details of the picnic will be released shortly.

Bingo chairman Bob Mulhern needs help to assist with the Sunday night bingo program. Anyone interested in volunteering may contact Mulhern at 439-0427.

A joint installation of post and auxiliary officers will be held May 11 in the post home on Devon Avenue.

The fourth district convention will be hosted in the Elk Grove Village VFW post home at 1:30 p.m. May 19.

VFW members gave a standing ovation to member Stanley Annstedt at the April meeting for his organizational work in forming the new Sons of the VFW Unit No. 728.

The unit boasts more than 75 members and is the largest such unit in the state.

Terry Cliver was installed as the Sons commander and Jerry Fric chaplain.

Auxiliary members reported representatives Mrs. Melba Pingel, Mrs. Mary Lundgren, Mrs. Fern Earnest and Mrs. Lillian Mayer attended a national VFW luncheon in Chicago recently, honoring national president Odie Lee Gassett.

The women held a Buddy Poppy seminar at the post home in preparing for the VFW May 23 Poppy Day in the community.

Administrative posts rejected by school board

by JUDY JOBBITT

The board of education approved only two of six additional staff positions in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 after it was said the district's administration is growing almost twice as fast as its teaching staff.

Jay Hansen, president of Schaumburg Education Assn., said SEA opposed what it viewed as expansion of administration. If all the positions had been approved, he said the administrator to teacher expansion ratio would be two-to-one.

"We have heard repeatedly that our real business is doing what's best for kids," he said.

"But, are twice as many new administrative staff as teaching staff a demonstration of this concern, or are we just espousing another ideal because it sounds good in print, while we pay only lip service to it in reality?" he asked.

HANSEN SAID SEA wants to see development of a master plan for future expansion of the administrative staff. He also noted the board's education committee recommended the new positions by a closely split vote — seven supporting and five opposing them.

The positions approved by the board of education provide for a testing and research secretary and a transportation and safety director.

Denied were an additional special services consultant, a media consultant and a junior high school physical education coordinator. Additional nurses also were recommended, and the board took no action on this staff increase. Instead it delayed voting to provide time to obtain more information about their duties.

CONCERNING THE recommended media consultant, Margaret Pageler said she would have liked to see more information on supplemental staff needed for the job. She also suggested much of the media consultant's work could be handled by clerks, technicians and librarians. Mrs. Pageler was just elected to the board, but did not take office until after Thursday's regular meeting.

Both the special services consultant and media consultant would have been administrative positions with estimated salaries of $12-$17,000 and $14-$18,000 respectively.

Both jobs were defeated on a 4-2 vote. Gordon Thoren and Mrs. Bonnie Hannon voted in favor of the positions with Adam J. Jelen, Mrs. Brenda Pulla, Sherwood Spatz and Mrs. Arlene Czajkowski voting against them.

The physical education coordinator was defeated on a tie vote. Thoren, Jelen and Mrs. Hannon voted in favor of the position.

Dist. 54 wrapup

Thoren elected board president

Gordon Thoren was unanimously elected president of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education for 1974-75.

Thoren was appointed to the board in January, 1969, and was elected in both 1969 and 1972 to three-year terms.

He was president of the board in 1970-71 and was elected president in November, 1971 to finish Donnie Rudd's term after Rudd resigned the presidency that year for medical reasons.

Arlene Czajkowski was elected board secretary for her second year. Mrs. Czajkowski has been on the board since April, 1972, and is starting the final year of her three-year term.

Trip expenses questioned

Expenses for a staff trip to Quincy, Ill., were questioned by the Dist. 54 board in its review of the district bills.

A group of 15 teachers and the principal from Addams Junior High School visited Quincy to observe alternative schools established there with federal funds. Carl Seltzer, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, also attended.

The total cost for the 1½-day trip was $319.04. This included transportation, meals and rooming for the group.

Milton Derr, associate superintendent, said the trip was budgeted from state funds received to investigate establishing a gifted student program. Each junior high school and its respective feeder schools received one-fourth of the total state allotment.

The board deferred approval of this item in the hills until members could review a detailed expense account.

Interim co-op plan OK'd

An interim plan for the Northwest Educational Cooperative computer service was approved by the school board.

The plan covers the program from March 18 to June 30 when the computer co-op will dissolve, and includes severance-incentive pay for employees who continue to work through this period.

The plan became necessary after four of the original eight districts in the co-op pulled out. Since that time, Dist. 54 also voted to terminate its membership.

The total personnel costs for this period will be $41,890, which includes severance-incentive and vacation pay. Estimated costs for removal of the equipment are $4,000. Business service allocations to be redistributed among other NEC program members is $11.50.

At the April 4 meeting, the board approved using computer services at Continental Bank for payroll on a monthly basis until other computer services can be analyzed.

Lunch program surveys

Parents and teachers in the district will receive a lunch program questionnaire to help the school board determine the most desirable program for next year.

Suggested noon hour lengths on the questionnaire are 30 minutes, 45 minutes and 50 minutes, with alternate lunch facilities available for each.

Those answering are asked to indicate if they believe the choice selected meets the educational needs of the students. Comments also are requested.

Nun fights alimony challenge

A nun living in a Wisconsin convent will make her appearance in federal court in Chicago to fight for alimony payments she says she is entitled to from her former husband.

Her former husband, James Lane, 1605 Central Rd., Arlington Heights now is paying $250 a month in alimony and wants to stop payments because he contends she has "remarried" the church.

Sister Mary A. Lane, a novice at the Dominican Sisters of the Perpetual Rosary in Milwaukee, will appear before Judge Robert Hunter in U.S. District Court after failing to appear in previous sessions. Her lawyers had said she belonged to a cloistered convent and is not permitted to leave the grounds.

In a report previously submitted to the court, the nun stated she needed the money to provide for medical expenses not covered by the convent because she is a novice and has not taken vows.

Since their divorce in 1970, Lane has remarried and has custody of one of their children.

SISTER MARY Lane however, apparently was able to leave the convent. She appeared Friday before Lane's attorney in Chicago, Edward D. Rosenberg, and gave a deposition to be used in Monday's trial.

Lane, contacted by The Herald Friday, said that he and his former wife attempted to make a settlement of one half the alimony of $125 but failed.

Paul Weber an Eagle

Boy Scout Paul Weber, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weber, of 204 Redwood Street, Elk Grove Village, will be honored at a April 29 Eagle Ceremony.

The Eagle award will be presented at a 7:30 p.m. ceremony at Ruple School, 305 E. Oakton, Elk Grove Village. Weber recently attained the rank of Eagle, Scouting's highest award.

A member of Boy Scout Troop 58, he is a sophomore at Elk Grove High School. Paul plays trombone in the school's jazz, concert and marching bands.

Correction

The number for obtaining information on joining the Elk Grove Park District's Bicycle Club was published incorrectly in last Thursday's Herald. The correct number is 437-4374. The Herald regrets the error.

"She claimed she needs the money for dental bills," Lane said. "But she has a savings account and a checking account. One hundred and twenty five dollars should be enough to cover her bills."

Lane believes that the convent does provide for her medical bills. "But she's not going to say that," Lane said.

Sister Mary Lane could not be reached for comment.

Classes for diabetics slated at hospital

Workshops for diabetics and family members, sponsored by Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, will be held Monday through Thursday evenings, May 20 through May 23 from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The series of four meetings will be held in the dining room of the C. E. Niehoff Pavilion adjacent to the hospital at 955 Bisner Rd., Elk Grove Village.

The dietary, pharmacy, nursing in-service and education departments cooperate to present the program which is designed to help the participant gain a better understanding of the disease and to help him live as normal a life as possible. Included is information on the medical aspects of diabetes, medication, diabetic emergencies, the diabetic exchange system, food preparation, eating away from home and general health care.

A $7.50 charge covers the cost of materials used during the course. A family member is urged to attend the workshops with the diabetic at no extra cost.

Registration is limited to 10 diabetics. Reservations are required and may be made by calling 437-5500, ext. 462.

Public hearings on former chief's ouster end

Centner refutes allegations of officials, police officers

by JULIA BAUER

The Centner hearings ground to a close Sunday, with the central figure, former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner, countering nearly every charge brought against him by the village board and several policemen in the department.

During detailed testimony Sunday afternoon, Centner told the Palatine Fire and Police Commission of improvements he initiated as chief of the Palatine Police Department from 1962 to June 25, 1973.

The marathon hearings, which lasted for 10 sessions, began Dec. 1 to investigate the village board's reasons for forcing Centner's resignation last June. Newly elected village trustees and policemen criticized the former chief's policies, which they contended were the reason for a widespread morale problem in the police department.

SUPPORTERS OF Centner countered that the charges were minor and were made to cover a village board-police coalition to oust the chief, possibly in return for lower police salary demands.

The fire and police commission of Paul Jung, Roger Mick and Gray M. Sanborn will submit written decisions on the eight charges brought by the village. No date has been set for release of their findings. Their conclusions are not expected to affect Centner's status in the police department.

"All you can do is to restore Robert Centner's good name. That's all that's left within your power to do," John D. Hayes, Centner's attorney, told the panel.

More than 3,000 signatures on petitions calling for the public hearings caused a reluctant village board to grant the request.

In his concluding statement, Village

Special Atty. Jack Siegel said, "Maybe those 3,000 people who signed the petitions that kept us here for five months chasing a will o' the wisp really didn't know Centner was a good chief or a bad one, but the policemen who worked with him every day knew, and you heard their testimony."

A Republican slate for village trustees swept the April, 1973 election, and new trustees moved to oust Centner in June. The former chief has been a lieutenant on the force since his resignation. A new fulltime chief, Jerry Bratcher, began in January, with Lt. Frank Ortiz serving as acting chief in the 7-month interim.

Two witnesses subpoenaed by Centner's attorney failed to appear at Sunday's hearing, with Lt. Frank Ortiz Galloy and Patrolman Terry Mazur, were subpoenaed to testify about campaign contributors and their possible influence on Centner's ouster, and an alleged deal to lower salary demands if the chief was removed.

Drugs were a major issue hit by Centner during his testimony. Village Trustees James Shaw and Robert Guss, who called for the chief's resignation in a press release last June, accused Centner of "wearing blinders," and showing "a horrible lack of judgment" for his decision to pull out of a countywide undercover drug enforcement program.

Centner was the founder of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) organization in 1971. He testified Sunday that his decision to withdraw from MEG last year was based on the change in the organization's program.

LOCAL POLICE in MEG, originally worked in the northern areas of Cook County, but for 1973, Centner said his man would be "going countywide" on drug cases and Centner had been reassured that Palatine could still get MEG assistance even though it did not directly participate.

Other primary charges which Centner answered:

- Lack of modern and efficient equipment: Centner said he developed a program to computerize crime statistics on the village's computer system which has become the model program for other police departments; a new radio console to replace the existing one which Centner admitted was outdated, was one of the chief's priorities, but was deleted from the budget by Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun.

- Hayes entered as evidence the job description for chief applicants who would replace Centner. The application, written by a three-man search committee, describes the Palatine Police Department as a "well-trained, well-equipped department."

- Overweight trucks: Centner and Braun chose not to institute an aggressive overweight-truck campaign, Centner said, because the state police employ 11 full time men assigned to overweight trucks. Centner testified that Michael McDonald, one of the central patrolmen in the Centner controversy, had suggested the program to increase the village's revenue through tickets and fines on overweight trucks.

- Misuse of police cadets: high school graduates were employed to relieve patrolmen from clerical and radio duties, Centner said. He told the commission the program had never been intended as a training program for future policemen.

- Other testimony hit evidence, submitted earlier by Ortiz, of increased arrests since Centner's removal. Under questioning by Hayes, Centner said he believed in "quality of arrests, not quantity."

Trustee seeks plan commission head's resignation

by JoANN VAN WYE

Palatine Village Trustee Richard W. Fonte has called for the resignation of Thomas Moody as Palatine Plan Commission chairman because of what Fonte charged was a conflict of interest.

Moody's dual position as plan commission chairman and a partner in the civil engineering firm of Murry and Moody, which frequently represents Palatine developers, was termed a conflict of interest by Fonte.

"I think it is clear if you were a builder in town and would like to increase the prospects of a favorable approval of your project by the village, it surely would help to have the plan commission chairman as your engineer," said Fonte in a prepared statement.

Moody indicated Friday that he has not decided if he will resign. "I am trying to figure out what would be the proper thing to do," said Moody, who has discussed the matter with Fonte and other trustees for the last couple of months.

MOODY IS THE senior member of the plan commission, having been appointed to the commission in 1959. He has served as chairman of the commission since 1962 and was most recently appointed by Village President Wendell Jones, this year to another three-year term.

The conflict of interest charges were termed "an honest difference of opinion" by Moody. He said in the 15 years he has served on the plan commission he has been careful to disqualify himself from all matters coming before the commission which he felt posed a possible conflict of interest.

"I don't claim to walk on water because I don't have webbed feet but I have been very careful. But, from Mr. Fonte's viewpoint, I can see where he might have an honest question," said Moody.

"It is simply not enough to have Tom Moody abstain from voting on an issue. His influence among other board members exists whether he votes or not," Fonte said.

"It is really a musical charade to watch the chairman remove himself from the table around which the plan commission meets and then sit down in the audience and discuss an issue as the engineering representative of the developer," said Fonte. "Moody obviously carries the influence of his position no matter where he sits."

VILLAGE ATTY. Bradley Glass said he is researching the question of a conflict of interest concerning Moody but has not reached an opinion.

The Illinois Corrupt Practices Act pertains to officers of the village and there is a question on whether Moody would be considered an officer of the village or an appointee of the village, said Glass. Another question which must be answered before it can be determined if a conflict of interest exists is whether Moody has a direct or indirect interest in a contract of which the village is a party or which he might be called upon to vote, said Glass.

Fonte has asked Glass to draft an ordinance which would prevent anyone from serving on the plan commission who provides professional engineering services "to any interested party, owner or developer seeking plan commission approval or action."

Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr., a former plan commission member, said he would support the proposed ordinance when it is presented to the village board tonight. Coughlin said he believes Moody had conscientiously tried to avoid conflicts by disqualifying himself when a developer he had done work for came before the commission but his position and the confidence other board members have in him made conflicts difficult to avoid.

"I DON'T THINK this should in any way reflect on what Moody has done on the board but the political climate the way it is now, you have to be 'purer than Caesar's wife,'" said Coughlin.

Fonte said he would like to have Moody continue as chairman if he would agree not to take any contracts from developers or builders working within Palatine but Moody had said he would not do this.

Conrad Hansen Jr., a member of the plan commission, said he had never noticed any conflict with Moody's positions and didn't think his position as an engineering representative for a developer unduly influenced the board's decision.

Man charged in knife assault

A Palatine man received multiple stab wounds following a driving altercation on Saturday in which a Rolling Meadows man was charged.

Jack Grimm was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights for stab wounds of the thighs, buttocks and lower and middle back.

Sidney A. Taylor, 42, of 2401 Park, Rolling Meadows, has been charged by the Palatine Police Department with aggravated battery in connection with the stabbing.

The stabbing incident occurred at approximately 2:10 a.m. in the vicinity of 316 MacArthur. According to police reports, Grimm was driving south on Hicks Road and passed a camper driven by Taylor at the intersection of Hicks and Dundee roads. Taylor then followed Grimm's car until Grimm stopped to see what the problem was. A fight started and Taylor pulled a pocket knife with approximately a four-inch blade.

Taylor left the scene of the stabbing but was apprehended by the Arlington Heights Police Department a short time later.

Taylor is now out on a $5,000 bond and a hearing on the felony charge has been scheduled for May 2 at 1:30 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Circuit Court.

Boy almost killed trying to save kite

A 13-year-old boy's attempt to retrieve a kite string nearly ended in death Thursday and will result in a two-week hospital stay and possible plastic surgery for the youth.

William Clifton, of 202 S. Elmwood St., Palatine, accidentally touched a live wire after he climbed a phone pole to loosen the entangled kite string. Before a circuit breaker opened and shut off the electricity flow, young Clifton was seriously burned and knocked unconscious.

Palatine firemen and policemen called to the scene removed the youth from the phone pole, at Kenilworth and Forest avenues. He is listed in serious but improving condition at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

Trustee Coughlin in serious condition

Palatine Village Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. was in serious condition Sunday night after undergoing emergency surgery for a perforated ulcer Saturday at Northwest Community Hospital.

Coughlin, of 512 N. MacArthur, was one of five Republican candidates to win a village board seat last year. Formerly a member of the Palatine Plan Commission, Coughlin is a vice president of the Midwest Stock Exchange in Chicago.

Plus cost-of-living increases

High school teachers seek 10% hike

by KATHERINE BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 teachers are asking for a 10 per cent increase in salary next year and additional raises during the year based on increases in the cost of living.

Dan O'Brien, president of the Dist. 211 education association, said last week he believes, "We are the first education association to propose such a thing."

The association is asking the district to increase the base salary for beginning teachers by 10 per cent from $8,950 to $9,850 with similar increases through the salary schedule, said O'Brien. Additional raises would be given during the year based on the consumer price index, which is published quarterly by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. According to the teachers' proposal, if the index goes up more than 1 per cent per quarter, each teacher's salary would be raised by the full amount of the increase.

Negotiations between the teachers' association and the Dist. 211 board of education began in February. O'Brien said the two sides have barely begun to discuss salary increases but he doesn't think the teachers' plan will be readily accepted by the board. Robert Creek, president of the board, refused comment on negotiations except to say salary items will be negotiated.

THE TEACHERS deserve a 10 per cent increase in salary to keep up with the cost of living, said O'Brien. "Everything you look at shows the teachers have been losers for the last 10 years, in fact they have been losers for the past 50 years," he said.

Last year the teachers agreed to a 4 per cent increase in salary in June.

O'Brien said they actually took about a 4.7 per cent cut in pay because the consumer price index increased about 8.8 per cent last year. This year they hope to make up for it, he said. "The state of economy in the past seven years has never allowed teachers to catch up on the cost of living," he said.

O'Brien said he is optimistic the teachers are going to get "a good settlement" but at this point the teachers and the board are "very far apart" on reaching

Both sides say 'politics' not behind dispute

Clash between Meyer, township GOP costs city money

by TONI GINETTI
A news analysis

Rolling Meadows taxpayers are losing out on cash grants being given by Palatine Township because of a dispute between Mayor Roland J. Meyer and township officials.

It is no secret that Meyer and the township Republican powers have long been at odds. Meyer, after failing to receive GOP backing for state representative in 1971, has fought the township GOP regularly whenever a field of battle has formed.

He backed Democrat Jack Scollay against Republican township supervisor Howard Olsen in the 1973 township race because Scollay supported the abolition of township government. He campaigned for GOP maverick Anton Valukas for the Republican committeeman's post which Valukas lost to incumbent Bernard Pedersen.

The breach between the two has meant the city is coming up short in the distribution of some $93,500 which the township to date has promised to a number of township organizations and municipalities.

TWO WEEKS AGO, for example,

Meyer urged the city council to decline some $1,500 from the township for the city paramedic program. The funds would be provided as part of a program to aid municipal fire departments in the township, including Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Barrington.

The city fire committee has also recommended that the funds be declined, although some aldermen have said they would like more information about the program before voting on the matter.

Earlier this year, when a senior citizen bus service was started by the township Council on the Aged, council officials were told by the city they would require local licensing before the service could operate in the city.

The township council decided it would take too long to go through the city's licensing procedure, so its application was withdrawn. Before the withdrawal, however, Meyer had indicated he might not sign a license for the service because of legal questions which have arisen on the right of the township to spend revenue sharing money for transportation.

IN EITHER CASE, the result was that senior citizens in the city are not able to use the service for transportation within the city limits.

Bridging the political waters that divide Meyer from the township which encompasses more than half his city seems unlikely.

"I don't know of any avenues where the city is in need of the township government," Meyer says. "I don't want to get the city involved in getting a handout from the township. Rolling Meadows is not broke by any means. I think we would be getting into an entanglement with the township."

"I look at it as something with a long string attached to it. I don't want someone to say down the line 'why shouldn't the township get involved in Rolling Meadows politics? It gave money to the city.'"

IF THE TOWNSHIP wants to help the city, Meyer says, it should use revenue sharing to lower its real estate tax levy.

Ironically both Meyer and Republican township leaders say politics is not the basis for their differences. Meyer insists he is not against township government for the unincorporated areas. But, he says, township government serves no purpose for those in incorporated towns and is only a double taxing body.

Township officials say they are not out to get Meyer or make inroads in Rolling Meadows government, as Meyer has said they are. They are they want only to improve relations between the city and township for the good of the residents.

"I don't know of any political rift," Pedersen says. "There may be some aldermen over there who are concerned about outside influence, but we are all concerned about that I'm concerned about the county (Democratic) influence in the townships and villages."

BUT AT THE SAME time Pedersen calls Meyer "negative" and says he has been a barrier to cooperation. "It was my contention during my campaign for committeeman that there is a great need for more communication and more cooperation, but I think there has been a great lack of it on the part of the Meyer regime."

"I think that Rolling Meadows is part of the township. I think it is a mature community that is doing beautifully and I don't see why they should not be getting their fair share of (revenue sharing) like any other community in the township."

He dismisses Meyer's claim that the township funds would be a "handout." "Does the city receive revenue sharing funds from the government? Isn't that a handout, too?" he says.

MEYER HAS countered with a legal question which has been raised by the state League of Women Voters, outspoken township critics, who have questioned whether Illinois townships can rightfully distribute revenue sharing funds.

"I don't think federal revenue sharing was given to townships to give grants back to cities and villages. I think they should be using them to lower the tax rate. I think they are using them wrongly, and I think somewhere along the line they are going to get their fingers burned by it."

Regular Republicans attack Meyer for not being loyal to the party. That "strings" might be attached to township revenue sharing funds "is a figment of his (Meyer's) imagination," says veteran GOP township board member Liston Pennington, a Rolling Meadows resident. "He wants his cake and he wants to eat it, too," he says of Meyer.

Meyer is also called "provincial in his attitude" by Palatine Village Trustee Richard Fonte, one of five Republicans who rode into office in a GOP village sweep last year. "Palatine has moved strongly in the direction of inter-governmental cooperation," says Fonte, pointing to the harmony between the village and the township.

THAT COOPERATION is rebuffed by Meyer who says Palatine officials must cooperate with the township because it is the township GOP which put the present Palatine administration into office.

"I don't think — I can't say I know — but I don't think Wendell Jones (Palatine village president) could turn them (the township) down even if they wanted to," says Meyer, a statement which Fonte dismisses as sour grapes.

So the bickering between Meyer and the township appears destined to continue, while in the meantime the Rolling Meadows taxpayer, whose taxes are being used to help dole out the revenue sharing money that is being handed out to others in the township, stands empty-handed in the middle of the war.

High school teachers want 10% pay hike

Among the other items being negotiated this year are fringe benefits, sick leave, summer school pay pay for extra-curricular activities and guidelines for the size of classes.

THE TEACHERS' association would like the district to recognize pregnancy as an illness which would allow teachers to use their sick pay while having a baby, said O'Brien. Now a teacher must go on a leave of absence without pay while she has her child. The U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled the employment rights of a pregnant teacher are protected by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

O'Brien said the teacher's association interprets the ruling to mean that teachers can use up to 90 calendar days of sick pay for pregnancy. According to O'Brien "the board is saying the recent Supreme Court ruling merely says a teacher that is pregnant has to be guaranteed due process" and has refused to grant the sick pay.

The teachers are also seeking raises in summer school salary and extra-curricular pay, said O'Brien. They want summer school salaries increased from $170 per week to $230 per week to place teachers on a par with guidance counselors who work during the summer. Summer school has been "treated as a separate entity and we don't think it should be," said O'Brien.

A 10 PER CENT increase in pay for extra-curricular activities and for coaches' salaries is also being requested, said O'Brien. If the teachers' proposal is accepted, the beginning salary of a head football, basketball or track coach would be increased from $735 to $809 per year in addition to his regular salary, and the beginning salary for a band director would be increased from $420 to $462 per year in addition to regular salary.

O'Brien said the board wants to freeze extra-curricular and coaching salaries at the present level.

Teachers are proposing a committee of teachers and administrators be created next year to set up guidelines for the size of classes for the 1975-76 school year. O'Brien said the teachers want a more concrete agreement on the size of their classes. The present agreement says the board agrees to "observe within reasonable limits present class-size averages."

Missionary conference

750 mail questionnaires seek opinions on parks

Recreation needs and wants in unincorporated areas of Palatine Township are being surveyed this week through 750 questionnaires mailed at random to residents of the Palatine Rural Park District.

The survey is the first step toward formulating a master plan for recreation in the newly activated park district. Written by park and recreation planner Alan R. Caskey, the survey asks 28 questions on leisure attitudes, and specific and general preferences in recreation.

An initial report on survey returns will be given today when rural park commissioners meet at 7 p.m. in the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 1190 N. Hicks Rd., unincorporated Palatine Township.

CASKEY HAS been hired by the district under a $6,000 contract to draw up the master plan. The sprawling park district includes unincorporated areas along the northern, western and southern portions of the township.

A write-in election victory last year caused a complete turnaround in the district's goals, when residents of more densely populated subdivisions took control of the park district to get parks for their area.

Until April, 1973, the rural park district was used as a tax shelter for farmers and unincorporated residents who did not want to be forced into active, higher-taxing park districts springing up around them, starting in the 1950s.

The new board approved the district's first major budget after last year's election, and will receive funds from that budget starting in June.

In addition to their master plan for park needs, the rural park board is also considering a merger with the Palatine Park District next year, after some recreation facilities are built for unincorporated residents.

Both sides say 'politics' not behind dispute

Clash between Meyer, township GOP costs city money

by TONI GINETTI
A news analysis

Rolling Meadows taxpayers are losing out on cash grants being given by Palatine Township because of a dispute between Mayor Roland J. Meyer and township officials.

It is no secret that Meyer and the township Republican powers have long been at odds. Meyer, after failing to receive GOP backing for state representative in 1971, has fought the township GOP regularly whenever a field of battle has formed.

He backed Democrat Jack Scollay against Republican township supervisor Howard Olsen in the 1973 township race because Scollay supported the abolition of township government. He campaigned for GOP maverick Anton Valukas for the Republican committeeman's post which Valukas lost to incumbent Bernard Pedersen.

The breach between the two has meant the city is coming up short in the distribution of some $93,500 which the township to date has promised to a number of township organizations and municipalities.

TWO WEEKS AGO, for example, Meyer urged the city council to decline some $1,500 from the township for the city paramedic program. The funds would be provided as part of a program to aid municipal fire departments in the township, including Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Barrington.

Roland J. Meyer

The city fire committee has also recommended that the funds be declined, although some aldermen have said they would like more information about the program before voting on the matter.

Earlier this year, when a senior citizen bus service was started by the township Council on the Aged, council officials were told by the city they would require local licensing before the service could operate in the city.

The township council decided it would take too long to go through the city's licensing procedure, so its application was withdrawn. Before the withdrawal, however, Meyer had indicated he might not sign a license for the service because of legal questions which have arisen on the right of the township to spend revenue sharing money for transportation.

IN EITHER CASE, the result was that senior citizens in the city are not able to use the service for transportation within the city limits.

Bridging the political waters that divide Meyer from the township which encompasses more than half his city seems unlikely.

"I don't know of any avenues where the city is in need of the township government," Meyer says. "I don't want to get the city involved in getting a handout from the township. Rolling Meadows is not broke by any means. I think we would be getting into an entanglement with the township."

"I look at it as something with a long string attached to it. I don't want someone to say down the line 'why shouldn't the township get involved in Rolling Meadows politics? It gave money to the city.'"

IF THE TOWNSHIP wants to help the city, Meyer says, it should use revenue sharing to lower its real estate tax levy.

Ironically both Meyer and Republican township leaders say politics is not the basis for their differences. Meyer insists he is not against township government for the unincorporated areas. But, he says, township government serves no purpose for those in incorporated towns and is only a double taxing body.

Township officials say they are not out to get Meyer or make inroads in Rolling Meadows government, as Meyer has said they are. They are they want only to improve relations between the city and township for the good of the residents.

"I don't know of any political rift," Pedersen says. "There may be some aldermen over there who are concerned about outside influence, but we are all concerned about that. I'm concerned about the county (Democratic) influence in the townships and villages."

BUT AT THE SAME time Pedersen calls Meyer "negative" and says he has been a barrier to cooperation. "It was my contention during my campaign for committeeman that there is a great need for more communication and more cooperation, but I think there has been a great lack of it on the part of the Meyer regime."

"I think that Rolling Meadows is part of the township. I think it is a mature community that is doing beautifully and I don't see why they should not be getting their fair share of (revenue sharing) like any other community in the township."

He dismisses Meyer's claim that the township funds would be a "handout." "Does the city receive revenue sharing funds from the government? Isn't that a handout, too?" he says.

MEYER HAS countered with a legal question which has been raised by the state League of Women Voters, outspoken township critics, who have questioned whether Illinois townships can rightfully distribute revenue sharing funds.

"I don't think federal revenue sharing was given to townships to give grants back to cities and villages. I think they should be using them to lower the tax rate. I think they are using them wrongly, and I think somewhere along the line they are going to get their fingers burned by it."

Regular Republicans attack Meyer for not being loyal to the party. That "strings" might be attached to township revenue sharing funds "is a figment of his (Meyer's) imagination," says veteran GOP township board member Lison Pennington, a Rolling Meadows resident. "He wants his cake and he wants to eat it, too," he says of Meyer.

Meyer is also called "provincial in his attitude" by Palatine Village Trustee Richard Fonte, one of five Republicans who rode into office in a GOP village sweep last year. "Palatine has moved strongly in the direction of inter-governmental cooperation," says Fonte, pointing to the harmony between the village and the township.

THAT COOPERATION is rebuffed by Meyer who says Palatine officials must cooperate with the township because it is the township GOP which put the present Palatine administration into office.

"I don't think — I can't say I know — but I don't think Wendell Jones (Palatine village president) could turn them (the township) down even if they wanted to," says Meyer, a statement which Fonte dismisses as sour grapes.

So the bickering between Meyer and the township appears destined to continue, while in the meantime the Rolling Meadows taxpayer, whose taxes are being used to help dole out the revenue sharing money that is being handed out to others in the township, stands empty-handed in the middle of the war.

High school teachers want 10% pay hike

by KATHERINE BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 teachers are asking for a 10 per cent increase in salary next year and additional raises during the year based on increases in the cost of living.

Dan O'Brien, president of the Dist. 211 education association, said last week he believes, "We are the first education association to propose such a thing."

The association is asking the district to increase the base salary for beginning teachers by 10 per cent from $8,950 to $9,830 with similar increases through the salary schedule, said O'Brien. Additional raises would be given during the year based on the consumer price index, which is published quarterly by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. According to the teachers' proposal, if the index goes up more than 1 per cent per quarter, each teacher's salary would be raised by the full amount of the increase.

Negotiations between the teachers' association and the Dist. 211 board of education began in February. O'Brien said the two sides have barely begun to discuss salary increases but he doesn't think the teachers' plan will be readily accepted by the board. Robert Creek, president of the board, refused comment on negotiations except to say salary items will be negotiated.

THE TEACHERS deserve a 10 per cent increase in salary to keep up with the cost of living, said O'Brien. "Everything you look at shows the teachers have been losers for the last 10 years. In fact they have been losers for the past 50 years," he said.

Last year the teachers agreed to a 4 per cent increase in salary in June. O'Brien said they actually took about a 47 per cent cut in pay because the consumer price index increased about 8.8

per cent last year. This year they hope to make up for it, he said. "The state of economy in the past seven years has never allowed teachers to catch up on the cost of living," he said.

O'Brien said he is optimistic the teachers are going to get "a good settlement" but at this point the teachers and the board are "very far apart" on reaching an agreement.

Among the other items being negotiated this year are fringe benefits, sick leave, summer school pay, pay for extra-curricular activities and guidelines for the size of classes.

THE TEACHERS' association would like the district to recognize pregnancy as an illness which would allow teachers to use their sick pay while having a baby, said O'Brien. Now a teacher must go on a leave of absence without pay while she has her child. The U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled the employment rights of a pregnant teacher are protected by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

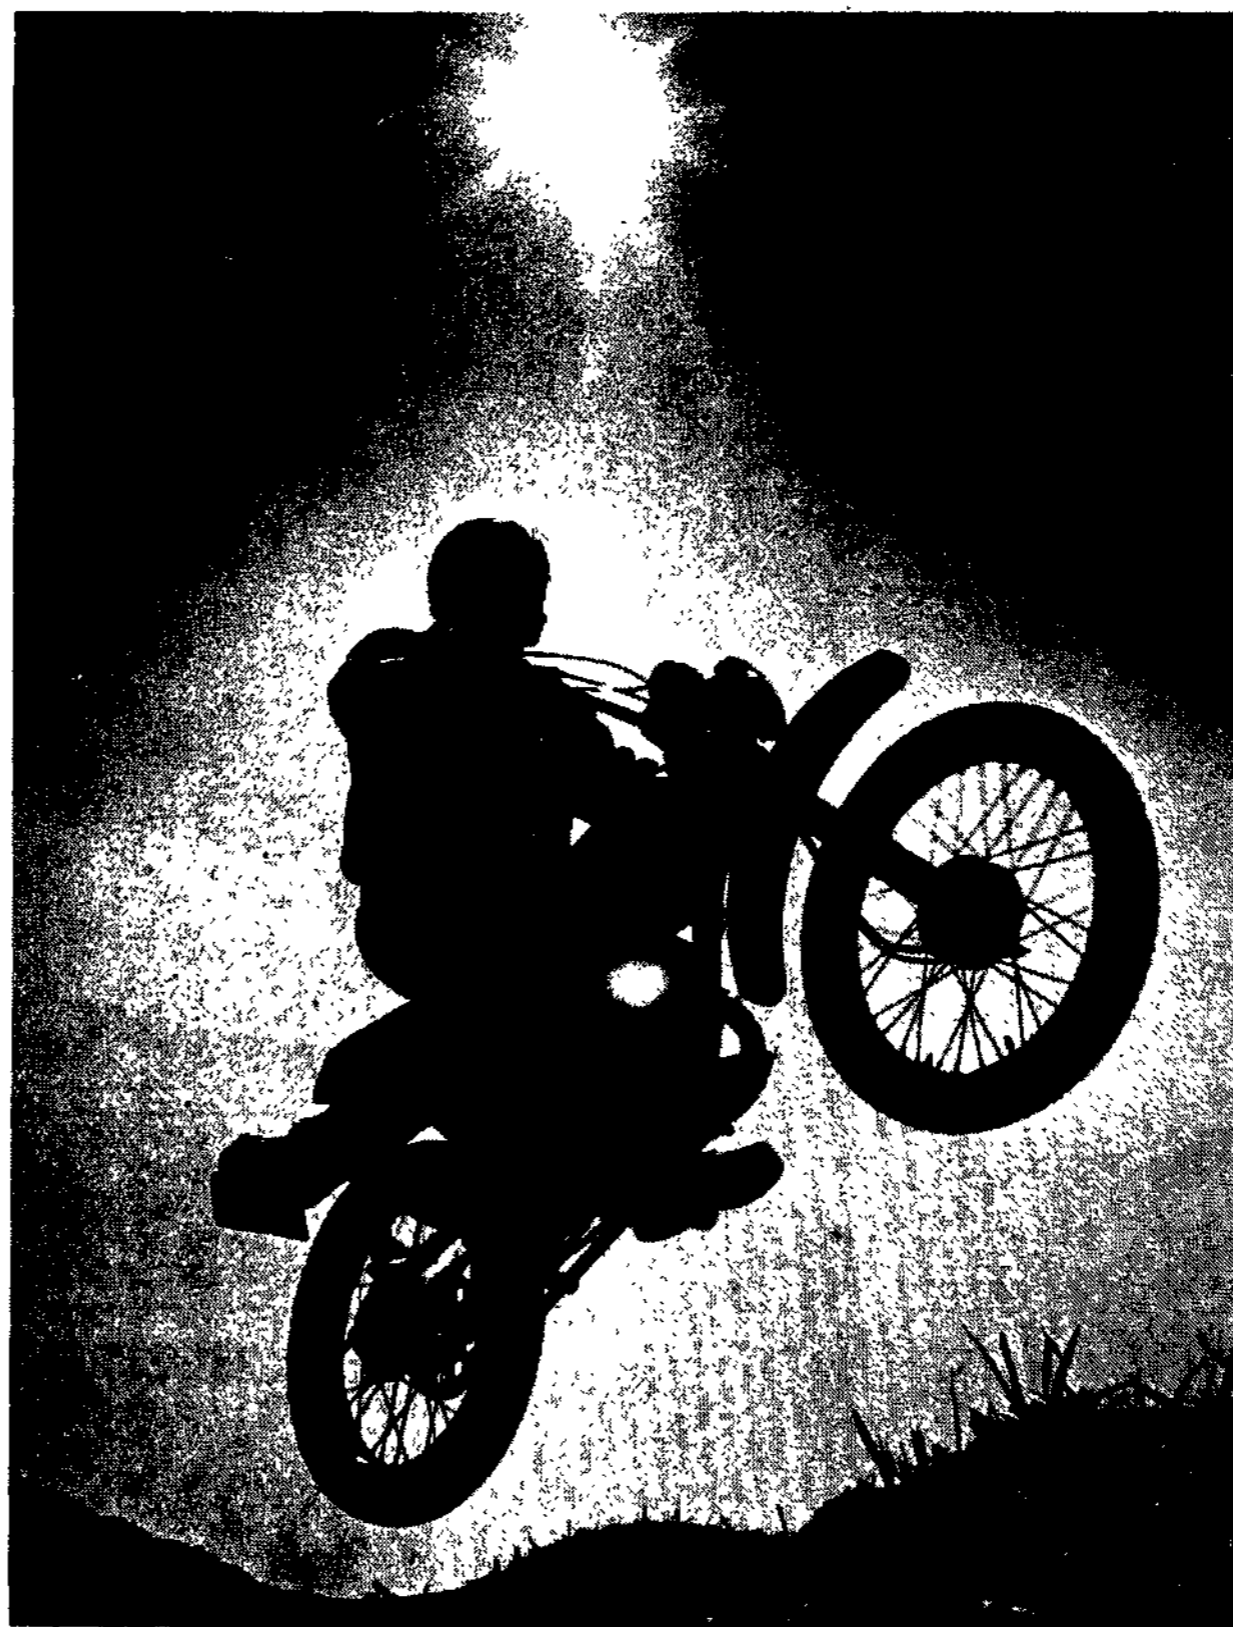

O'Brien said the teacher's association interprets the ruling to mean that teachers can use up to 90 calendar days of sick pay for pregnancy. According to O'Brien "the board is saying the recent Supreme Court ruling merely says a teacher that is pregnant has to be guaranteed due process" and has refused to grant the sick pay.

The teachers are also seeking raises in summer school salary and extra-curricular pay, said O'Brien. They want summer school salaries increased from $170 per week to $250 per week to place teachers on a par with guidance counselors who work during the summer. Summer school has been "treated as a separate entity and we don't think it should be," said O'Brien.

A 10 PER CENT increase in pay for extra-curricular activities and for coaches' salaries is also being requested, said O'Brien. If the teachers' proposal is accepted, the beginning salary of a head football, basketball or track coach would be increased from $735 to $809 per year in addition to his regular salary, and the beginning salary for a band director would be increased from $420 to $462 per year in addition to regular salary.

O'Brien said the board wants to freeze extra-curricular and coaching salaries at the present level.

Teachers are proposing a committee of teachers and administrators be created next year to set up guidelines for the size of classes for the 1975-76 school year. O'Brien said the teachers want a more concrete agreement on the size of their classes. The present agreement says the board agrees to "observe within reasonable limits present class-size averages."

WITH EVERY SPRING it becomes a little more difficult to find an open place to scramble on motorcycles. But Brian Williams, 17, discovered an open field north of town where he could ride.

Cause of fire at track barn yet undetermined

The cause of a barn fire at Arlington Park Race Track Tuesday apparently will go undetermined.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden said Friday that police and fire investigations into the blaze, which destroyed 76 stalls in the wood-frame barn, have failed to turn up who or what may have touched off the fire.

Police did question three boys who were working in the stable area the day of the fire, but found they had not been inside the barn," Hayden said.

State fire marshals also investigated the site but could not come up with any evidence on what caused the fire.

The barn, like the other wooden buildings in the track's backstretch was scheduled for eventual replacement. Arlington Park has agreed to raze all its wood-frame buildings and replace them with concrete structures over the next five years.

The cost of replacing the barn with a larger concrete stable is about $350,000.

Man charged in knife assault

A Palatine man received multiple stab wounds following a driving altercation on Saturday in which a Rolling Meadows man was charged.

Jack Grimm was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights for stab wounds of the thighs, buttocks and lower middle back.

Sidney A. Taylor, 42, of 2401 Park, Rolling Meadows, has been charged by the Palatine Police Department with aggravated battery in connection with the stabbing.

The stabbing incident occurred at approximately 2:10 a.m. in the vicinity of 316 MacArthur. According to police reports, Grimm was driving south on Hicks Road and passed a camper driven by Taylor at the intersection of Hicks and Dundee roads. Taylor then followed Grimm's car until Grimm stopped to see what the problem was. A fight started and Taylor pulled a pocket knife with approximately a four-inch blade.

Taylor left the scene of the stabbing but was apprehended by the Arlington Heights Police Department a short time later.

Taylor is now out on a $5,000 bond and a hearing on the felony charge has been scheduled for May 2 at 1:30 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Circuit Court.

Two Meadows youths charged in car theft

Two 15-year-old Rolling Meadows youths have been charged in the theft April 9 of a car from Linden Lane and the attempted theft of another on Birch Lane.

The youths were arrested in Deadwood, S.D., where they had driven the vehicle they allegedly stole two weeks ago from John McFall, 4603 Linden Ln. Police there brought the youths back to the city last week. According to Rolling Meadows police the youths were also responsible for an attempted theft of a vehicle from Bill Idgeway, 2404 Birch Ln., reported the same night as the McFall theft.

Both will be required to appear in family court in connection with the charges.

Public hearings on ex-Palatine police chief end

by JULIA BAUER

The Centner hearings ground to a close Sunday, with the central figure, former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner, countering nearly every charge brought against him by the village board and several policemen in the department.

During detailed testimony Sunday afternoon, Centner told the Palatine Fire and Police Commission of improvements he initiated as chief of the Palatine Police Department from 1962 to June 25, 1973.

The marathon hearings, which lasted for 10 sessions, began Dec. 1 to investigate the village board's reasons for forcing Centner's resignation last June. Newly elected village trustees and policemen criticized the former chief's policies, which they contended were the reason for a widespread morale problem in the police department.

SUPPORTERS OF Centner countered that the charges were minor and were made to cover a village board-police coalition to oust the chief, possibly in return for lower police salary demands.

The fire and police commission of Paul Jung, Roger Mick and Gray M. Sanborn will submit written decisions on the eight charges brought by the village. No date has been set for release of their findings. Their conclusions are not expected to affect Centner's status in the police department.

"All you can do is to restore Robert Centner's good name. That's all that's left within your power to do," John D. Hayes, Centner's attorney, told the panel. More than 3,000 signatures on petitions calling for the public hearings caused a reluctant village board to grant the request.

In his concluding statement, Village Special Atty. Jack Siegel said, "Maybe those 3,000 people who signed the petitions that kept us here for five months chasing a will o' the wisp really didn't know Centner was a good chief or a bad one, but the policemen who worked with him every day knew, and you heard their testimony."

A Republican slate for village trustees swept the April, 1973 election, and new trustees moved to oust Centner in June. The former chief has been a lieutenant on the force since his resignation. A new fulltime chief, Jerry Bratcher, began in January, with Lt. Frank Ortiz serving as acting chief in the 7-month interim.

Two witnesses subpoenaed by Centner's attorney failed to appear at Sunday's hearing. Local businessmen Robert Galloy and Patrolman Terry Mazur, were subpoenaed to testify about campaign contributors and their possible influence on Centner's ouster, and an alleged deal to lower salary demands if the chief was removed.

Drugs were a major issue hit by Centner during his testimony. Village Trustees James Shaw and Robert Guss, who called for the chief's resignation in a press release last June, accused Centner of "wearing blinders," and showing "a horrible lack of judgment" for his decision to pull out of a countywide undercover drug enforcement program.

Centner was the founder of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) organization in 1971. He testified Sunday that his decision to withdraw from MEG last year was based on the change in the organization's program.

'Keep this land open...'

"MAKE IT SO THEY don't build an apartment on this land," said Bob Brytowski. He said this open field north of the village is one of the few spots left in the Northwest suburbs where an amateur cyclist can still go after school "just for a little fun."

Park survey mailed out to residents

Recreation needs and wants in unincorporated areas of Palatine Township are being surveyed this week through 750 questionnaires mailed at random to residents of the Palatine Rural Park District.

The survey is the first step toward formulating a master plan for recreation in the newly activated park district. Written by park and recreation planner Alan R. Caskey, the survey asks 28 questions on leisure attitudes, and specific and general preferences in recreation.

An initial report on survey returns will be given today when rural park commissioners meet at 7 p.m. in the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 1190 N. Hicks Rd., unincorporated Palatine Township.

CASKEY HAS been hired by the district under a $6,000 contract to draw up the master plan. The sprawling park district includes unincorporated areas along the northern, western and southern portions of the township.

A write-in election victory last year caused a complete turnaround in the district's goals, when residents of more densely populated subdivisions took control of the park district to get parks for their area.

Until April, 1973, the rural park district was used as a tax shelter for farmers and unincorporated residents who did not want to be forced into active, higher-taxing park districts springing up around them, starting in the 1950s.

The new board approved the district's first major budget after last year's election, and will receive funds from that budget starting in June.

In addition to their master plan for park needs, the rural park board is also considering a merger with the Palatine Park District next year, after some recreation facilities are built for unincorporated residents.

Sewage treatment plants' impact to be explained

The Metropolitan Sanitary District will hold a public hearing Tuesday night in Schaumburg to explain the potential environmental impact of $7.5 million worth of proposed projects for area sewage treatment plants.

The hearing is open to any resident in the Salt Creek and Hanover Park service areas. These include Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Hanover Park, Palatine and Rolling Meadows. The hearing will start at 7 p.m. in the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

The projects are planned for completion in a 10-year period and include improvements at the Salt Creek plant at Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg and at the Hanover Park plant at Barrington and Irving Park roads.

The improvements are to meet federal and state environmental water standards in 1985 and to accommodate growing demands of the area, said James Braxton, assistant chief engineer for the MSD. He added the projects will not increase tax rates for the present.

THE PROJECTS include:

- "Dewatering" of sludge at the Salt

Creek plant. The process would eliminate more water from sludge and make it easier to handle.

- Expansion of the Hanover Park plant to accommodate six million more gallons of sewage a day, doubling the plant's capacity.

- A screening disposal system at the Hanover Park plant for filtering out large items in sewage.

- Grading and installation of pipes on land at the Hanover Park plant to provide liquid fertilizer from the plant for farming.

SEVENTY-FIVE per cent funding for the projects is from the federal government. The other money comes from the MSD's $380 million share of a state bond fund established in 1970 and from a $380 million MSD bond issue.

The MSD is obligated by law to hold public hearings on proposed projects. Verbal comments by residents will be limited to 15 minutes each. Full texts of comments more than 15 minutes in length will be entered into the record.

Persons wishing to make advanced arrangements for presentation of testimony or having questions may call Braxton at 751-5745.

Administration growing 'too fast'

School board OKs only two of six district staff posts

by JUDY JOBBITT

The board of education approved only two of six additional staff positions in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 after it was said the district's administration is growing almost twice as fast as its teaching staff.

Jay Hansen, president of Schaumburg Education Assn., said SEA opposed what it viewed as expansion of administration. If all the positions had been approved, he said the administrator to teacher expansion ratio would be two-to-one.

"We have heard repeatedly that our real business is doing what's best for kids," he said.

"But, are twice as many new administrative staff as teaching staff a demonstration of this concern, or are we just espousing another ideal because it sounds good in print, while we pay only lip service to it in reality?" he asked.

HANSEN SAID SEA wants to see development of a master plan for future expansion of the administrative staff. He also noted the board's education committee recommended the new positions by a closely split vote — seven supporting and five opposing them.

The positions approved by the board of education provide for a testing and research secretary and a transportation and safety director.

Denied were an additional special services consultant, a media consultant and a junior high school physical education coordinator. Additional nurses also were recommended, and the board took no action on this staff increase. Instead it delayed voting to provide time to obtain more information about their duties.

CONCERNING THE recommended media consultant, Margaret Pageler said she would have liked to see more information on supplemental staff needed for the job. She also suggested much of the media consultant's work could be handled by clerks, technicians and librarians. Mrs. Pageler was just elected to the board, but did not take office until after Thursday's regular meeting.

Both the special services consultant and media consultant would have been administrative positions with estimated salaries of $12-$17,000 and $14-$18,000 respectively.

Both jobs were defeated on a 4-2 vote. Gordon Thoren and Mrs. Bonnie Hannon voted in favor of the positions with Adam J. Jelen, Mrs. Brenda Pulla, Sherwood Spatz and Mrs. Arlene Czajkowski voting against them.

The physical education coordinator was defeated on a tie vote. Thoren, Jelen and Mrs. Hannon voted in favor of the position.

Accused rapist bound to county grand jury

William Benefield, 126 Arizona Blvd., appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. in the Hoffman Estates branch of the Cook County Circuit Court. Benefield is charged with rape and unlawful restraint in connection with a March 1 assault on the Hoffman Estates girl.

Benefield's bond was raised from $10,000 to $20,000 after Assistant State's Atty. Robert Best, told the court there was some evidence Benefield was selling items from his home and might be moving out of the jurisdiction of the court.

Benefield was being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of the bond. He had originally posted a $10,000 bond.

MAHER CLEARED the courtroom of spectators and reporters after the defense and prosecution requested a closed session. Best said after the preliminary hearing the reason for a closed courtroom was obvious because of the nature of the case.

Maher found probable cause to bind Benefield over to the grand jury on the charges after the victim was the only person to testify in the hearing, which lasted about 45 minutes.

Police said the girl was walking near her home when Benefield and another man stopped their car and offered her a ride. The girl refused the ride although she knew Benefield, police reported.

The two allegedly pulled her into the car and drove to Busse Woods in Elk Grove Village where the assault allegedly occurred, police said.

Benefield was arrested three days after the incident. A second suspect is being sought by Hoffman Estates police.

Murder target ordered to pay wife support

A Schaumburg man who was the target of an alleged murder plot by his wife has been ordered to pay her $400 a month in temporary support.

Duane Swimley, 45, a major in the Air National Guard, was ordered to make the payments to his wife, Marlene, 32, until the termination of divorce proceedings initiated by him.

Divorce Court Judge Hyman Feldman last week also ruled Swimley should pay for repairs to his wife's car and about $250 in attorney's fees for the case.

Swimley has asked for the divorce on grounds of adultery and Mrs. Swimley's alleged plot to have him murdered.

His wife is scheduled to appear May 14 in Cook County Circuit Court before Judge Philip Fleischman on a charge of solicitation to commit murder. She was arrested Jan. 24 at the Woodfield Theatre after she handed over a $100 down payment to an undercover state's attorney investigator who posed as a "hit man" named Jimmy Sunshine.

Feldman has awarded temporary custody to Swimley of the couple's child, Duane, 9.

Mrs. Swimley is still living at the family home, 322 N. Meacham Rd., Schaumburg. Swimley is staying with friends.

AWARD WINNER Jeannette Schlaffer puts finishing touches on her children's book, "The Rainy Day," in Judy Mikes' sixth-grade class. The books are on display during April at the Schaumburg Township Library.

Sixth graders try their hand at kids' books

by JUDY JOBBITT

Children's literature can be for bigger kids too. At least that's what sixth graders at Addams Junior High School say.

These students wrote, illustrated and bound their own creative stories, which they presented to kindergartners at Nathan Hale School.

The books were the final project of the children's literature unit planned by their teacher, Judy Mikes. After studying and critiquing several works, and learning about the awards given for children's literature each year, the students produced their own children's literature.

Because Debby Millan knew she would be presenting her book to kindergartners, she decided to write a fairy tale, "The Ogre and the Princess."

The kindergartners must have enjoyed her work, too, because they awarded her one of five "Caldecott Awards."

THE CALDECOTT Award is an actual award given to the best illustrated children's book each year.

Several of the youngsters admitted they were "sort of nervous" before reading their stories in front of an entire class. "It's different from reading to your brothers and sisters," said one girl. "We didn't know them."

"I think they really enjoyed it because we made the books," said Donna Crepas, another "Caldecott" winner for her story, "Sally's Balloons." "They had all heard the other stories, but they didn't know what we were going to read. They didn't know the ending so they listened better."

She designed her cover into the shape of a balloon — a big red and white polka-dot balloon — to match the story.

MOST OF THEM didn't even think of the project as an assignment. "It was too much fun," said one.

"Yeh," said another, "you could be creative."

The students' week-long project will be on display at the Schaumburg Township Public Library during April. By their request, the books will be displayed so others can pick them up, read them and enjoy what they produced.

And Miss Mikes couldn't be prouder, she said. "They do a good job in almost everything they do."

7-Eleven robbed, one shot fired

A man armed with an automatic pistol had to fire a shot into a counter to show a Schaumburg food store employee that he was not kidding late Friday night when he asked for all the money in the store.

The employee, Michael Schiele, handed over about $184 in cash to the lone gunman about 8:45 p.m. at the 7 Eleven Food Store, 21 W. Wise Rd. The money was placed into a large paper bag supplied by the robber.

Schiele told police a man in an orange, hooded sweatshirt entered the store and the man said, "This is a holdup. Empty all the money out of the drawer into the bag."

Schiele asked the man if he was kidding.

"I'm not kidding," said the robber, who then fired a shot into the counter behind Schiele.

After taking the bag containing the money, the gunman told Schiele not to contact the police for about five minutes "or you're a dead duck or a goner."

Police found tire tracks in the mud about 100 yards away from the store and theorized they might have come from the vehicle used by the robber.

The gunman was described to be in his late 20s and weighing about 200 pounds.

High school teachers want 10% hike, plus extras

by KATHERINE BOYCE

High School Dist. 211 teachers are asking for a 10 per cent increase in salary next year and additional raises during the year based on increases in the cost of living.

Dan O'Brien, president of the Dist. 211 education association, said last week he believes, "We are the first education association to propose such a thing."

The association is asking the district to increase the base salary for beginning teachers by 10 per cent from $8,950 to $9,850 with similar increases through the salary schedule, said O'Brien. Additional raises would be given during the year based on the consumer price index, which is published quarterly by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. According to the teachers' proposal, if the index goes up more than 1 per cent per quarter, each teacher's salary would be raised by the full amount of the increase.

Negotiations between the teachers' association and the Dist. 211 board of education began in February. O'Brien said the two sides have barely begun to discuss salary increases but he doesn't think the teachers' plan will be readily accepted by the board. Robert Creek, president of the board, refused comment on negotiations except to say salary items will be negotiated.

THE TEACHERS deserve a 10 per cent increase in salary to keep up with the cost of living, said O'Brien. "Everything you look at shows the teachers have been losers for the last 10 years, in fact they have been losers for the past 50 years," he said.

Last year the teachers agreed to a 4 per cent increase in salary in June. O'Brien said they actually took about a 4.7 per cent cut in pay because the consumer price index increased about 8.8

per cent last year. This year they hope to make up for it, he said. "The state of economy in the past seven years has never allowed teachers to catch up on the cost of living," he said.

O'Brien said he is optimistic the teachers are going to get "a good settlement" but at this point the teachers and the board are "very far apart" on reaching an agreement.

Among the other items being negotiated this year are fringe benefits, sick leave, summer school pay, pay for extra-curricular activities and guidelines for the size of classes.

THE TEACHERS' association would like the district to recognize pregnancy as an illness which would allow teachers to use their sick pay while having a baby, said O'Brien. Now a teacher must go on a leave of absence without pay while she has her child. The U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled the employment rights of a pregnant teacher are protected by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

O'Brien said the teacher's association interprets the ruling to mean that teachers can use up to 90 calendar days of sick pay for pregnancy. According to O'Brien "the board is saying the recent Supreme Court ruling merely says a teacher that is pregnant has to be guaranteed due process" and has refused to grant the sick pay.

The teachers are also seeking raises in summer school salary and extra-curricular pay, said O'Brien. They want summer school salaries increased from $170 per week to $250 per week to place teachers on a par with guidance counselors who work during the summer. Summer school has been "treated as a separate entity and we don't think it should be," said O'Brien.

A 10 PER CENT increase in pay for extra-curricular activities and for coaches' salaries is also being requested, said O'Brien. If the teachers' proposal is accepted, the beginning salary of a head football, basketball or track coach would be increased from $735 to $809 per year in addition to his regular salary, and the beginning salary for a band director would be increased from $420 to $462 per year in addition to regular salary.

O'Brien said the board wants to freeze extra-curricular and coaching salaries at the present level.

Teachers are proposing a committee of teachers and administrators be created next year to set up guidelines for the size of classes for the 1975-76 school year. O'Brien said the teachers want a more concrete agreement on the size of their classes. The present agreement says the board agrees to "observe within reasonable limits present class-size averages."

Med center's brain scanner a first for Chicago area

by PAT GERLACH

The pink-smocked volunteer stepped briskly from the elevator wheeling a portable pram toward the diagnostic radiology area of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center first-floor east pavilion.

Her sleeping passenger, an 11-month-old boy who suffers unexplained neurological symptoms, has an appointment with the EMI Scanner, which will provide a three-dimensional look deep within his brain. Doctors believe the 30-minute examination will help pinpoint the child's problem and allow them to confine additional testing to a specific area.

The $350,000 brain scanner is the first in the Chicago area, and the third in the United States. The others are located at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., and Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston. The machine was designed and developed by EMI Ltd., London, and combines conventional X-ray tubes with computers, a TV screen and a camera.

WAITING FOR the testing to be completed, the volunteer, the wife of a suburban dentist, chatted easily. She has been coming to the near West Side medical complex one day a week for eight years. "I love to work in pediatrics," she said, explaining her husband continues to ask why she doesn't rotate between departments.

"When the children see the pink smock they know you are not going to hurt or frighten them and they just open their little hearts to you. I love them," she said.

Meanwhile, on the 13th floor of the Jelke-Southcenter portion of the complex, a technician in nuclear pharmacy is preparing minute dosages of radioactive materials for administration to patients in another diagnostic approach.

DR. ERNEST FORDHAM, chief of nuclear medicine, is as proud of the $100,000 laboratory as he is of the recent strides in his specialty field.

"In addition to being extremely small dosages, the materials we use are prepared to have a short lifespan of between two and six hours to minimize patient hazard," he said.

Fordham takes a realistic approach to the expensive facility he estimates is used, "maybe half an hour at the most" each day.

"Before we had the lab and pharmacy, we were forced to use fast cab service from Argonne National Laboratory and that cut down what we could do with short-life dosages," he said. He envisions helicopter transport for radioactive prescriptions for St. Luke's branches planned for Schaumburg and Park Forest South.

THE NINTH-FLOOR professional center of the 850-bed hospital is the educational center for Rush University medical students.

The atmosphere there is one of concentration, where medical students, supervised by Dr. Raymond Searle, are hard at work in the gross anatomy laboratory.

Students are required to completely dissect a human cadaver to become familiar with each organ and muscle in the body, in addition to other laboratory and class work. Computers and televised visual aids are extensively used in the learning experience.

By mid-1975, however, students will be housed in a new $16 million building on the 20-acre medical center campus. The new quarters will enable the school to double its present enrollment to 400 students.

Hoffman resident's bribe trial today

A trial for a Hoffman Estates man charged with six counts of bribery is slated to begin this morning in U. S. District Court, Chicago, before Judge William Bauer.

Matthew Mentzen, 153 Arlington St., was indicted Sept. 1 along with a construction company president in connection with alleged bribes to a Federal Housing Authority official.

Mentzen and Phillip Rose, president of Phillips Construction Co., Dundee, have been accused of bribing former FHA loan specialist John Zoch to provide special treatment of housing built by Phillips Construction.

DOWN ON THE sixth floor of Jelke-Southcenter, most of the morning's scheduled surgical patients are in Surgical Intensive Therapy by noon. Most patients, including an average of three open-heart surgery patients, spend their first few post-operative days in the suite adjacent to St. Luke's 20-room operating theater.

The center provides 19 beds with one nurse for every two patients. Each patient is completely computer monitored with temperature and vital signs readings printed out three times a minute. The suite, also contains costly equipment used to maintain patients during and after surgery.

Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital was formed in 1956 by the merger of two Chicago hospitals — St. Luke's, founded in 1864, and Presbyterian Hospital, opened in 1883. St. Luke's has 5,000 full-time employees.

THE MEDICAL center resulted in 1969 when Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital and health center center merged with Rush Medical College; Rush University was established in 1972 to grant undergraduate and advanced academic and professional degrees. A second college, nursing and allied health sciences, has since been activated and a third is being organized for graduate work and research.

Staff physicians will come from two sources, according to Henry Buhrmann, St. Luke's North administrator.

"We certainly plan to recruit from our own graduates, but we are anxious to talk with any physicians in the community interested in applying," he said.

"In fact, we will go out of our way for local doctors, as long as they are graduates of an accredited medical school and agree to participate in our education program," he said.

FOR HER 75TH BIRTHDAY, Mrs. Mary Herman received special dinner service from Britta Bohrnell and other Junior Girl Scouts in Troop 797. The troop holds monthly birthday dinners for residents of Abbington House, Roselle, a sheltered-care home for the elderly. Mrs. Herman's flower is part of the honor treatment.

Youth charged for driving on lawns, fleeing

After a short auto chase that approached speeds of 60 miles an hour early Sunday, Schaumburg police arrested a 19-year-old Hoffman Estates youth for allegedly driving over 18 lawns along Weathersfield Way.

William Taft, 1880 Bonnie Ln., was charged with fleeing from a police officer, reckless driving, criminal damage to property (misdemeanor) and criminal damage to property (felony).

The car Taft was driving was halted about 1:20 a.m. at 1818 Warwick Ln. after the car struck a tree as it was driven to cut across a lawn, police said.

POLICE RECEIVED A complaint from a resident near Salem Drive and Weathersfield Way that youths in a green late-model car were driving on lawns and headed westbound on Weathersfield Way, authorities said. The 18 lawns were situated between the 800 and the 1500 blocks on Weathersfield Way.

Sgt. Fred Schmidt, who made the arrest, detected the suspect car at Weathersfield Way near Springinguth Road. Schmidt said he turned on his flashing lights and siren to pull the car over, but the car did not stop. He added that he chased the car north on Springinguth Road and west on Warwick Lane to Wareham Lane.

Taft is scheduled to appear at 1:30 p.m. May 1 in the Schaumburg branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Coin collection worth $20,000 found missing

Burglars made off late Saturday night with a coin collection valued at between $20,000 and $30,000 from a Schaumburg residence.

The burglary was reported about 8:30 p.m. after Donald Little returned from work to his home at 1408 Fairlane Dr. Little found the three bedrooms of his home ransacked and discovered that the coin collection was missing.

A military ammunition can containing Israeli and U. S. mint coin sets was missing, Little told police. Also taken were a Champagne case containing silver coins from the war years 1942 to 1945, several liquor containers holding $5,000 pennies, various coins in armor car boxes and bank bags and 824 silver dollars, it was reported.

Entry was gained by prying open a bedroom window.

Residents map suit to block condo building

by MARCIA KRAMER

Residents of northeast Mount Prospect are expected to go to court this week in an effort to block construction of 80 condominium units at the northwest corner of River and Camp McDonald roads.

Donald Kreger, an attorney representing homeowners from the area, said Friday he would file a motion, probably Tuesday, to intervene in developer J. M. Brickman's suit against the Village of Mount Prospect to rezone the 3.3-acre parcel for multi-family use.

If the motion is allowed by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunne, the homeowners in effect would replace the village as defendant in the suit.

Kreger indicated he also will submit a response to Brickman's suit, as the village had done when the suit was filed last fall.

IN THE SUIT. Brickman is seeking rezoning to permit 113 condominium units in a five-story building, plus a floor of office space.

The village board, in a controversial 4-3 vote April 2, agreed to compromise with Brickman, and to allow 80 units and no offices in exchange for his withdrawing the suit.

At that, the residents of the area, calling themselves "Concerned Citizens of Northeast Mount Prospect," made clear they would intervene in the case, and, failing that, would sue the village.

Kreger indicated the motion to intervene will concern only the rezoning question, and not the objection raised by residents that the 4-3 vote to approve the consent decree was invalid, though he said the vote issue may be raised later.

RESIDENTS CONTENDED that because more than 20 per cent of them had filed written objections to the rezoning when it originally came before the village board, a two-thirds majority is needed to approve the project. Mayor Robert D. Teichert concurred as far as rezoning — which is why the project was turned down even though it had been "passed" by the village board — but said the two-thirds vote does not apply to consent decrees, for which he ruled only a simple majority is needed.

The village's compromise with Brickman was struck when Teichert and some trustees apparently believed Brickman would win his case if it proceeded in court. The property had been zoned for multi-family and commercial use when it was in unincorporated Wheeling Township, prior to being annexed to the village.

The nearby homeowners object to the rezoning, saying mainly a five-story structure would not fit in with the single family residential nature of the neighborhood.

School vote canvass slated for tonight

The Dist. 57 School board will meet today at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, 700 W. Lincoln St., Mount Prospect.

The board will canvass the returns of the April 19 school board election. Unofficial results show incumbents Robert Novy and Edith Freund the winners in the race with 235 votes and 179 votes respectively. The third candidate in the race, Arthur Vogelgesang, polled 82 votes.

A reorganization of the board also will take place with the election of a president and vice president to serve until next April.

Classes to be held June 18-July 19

Summer school deadline Wednesday

Registration forms for summer school classes in Dist. 57 must be returned to the district office by Wednesday. Brochures and registration information have been sent home with all students.

Summer school will run from June 18 through July 19 with classes held from 9 a.m. to noon. Classes will not be held July 4 and 5. Classes will be held at Busse, Fairview, Lions Park, Westbrook and Lincoln Junior High schools.

Registration fees for most classes is $5. Nonresident students and pre-kindergarten students will be charged $25.

Students currently in grades kindergarten through seven are eligible to take part in the summer school program. Courses in both remedial and enrichment areas will be offered.

AT THE PRIMARY level, for grades kindergarten through two, such courses as developmental reading and math will be offered. The enrichment program for this level will include classes such as adventures in reading, creative art, I'm glad to be me, mix up your morning, numbers game and show time.

For the intermediary grades, third through sixth, enrichment classes will include around the world in 22 days, babysitting and child care, beat the blues, dance to the music, nature's network, creative art, band, adventures in reading, math that's fun, rhythm riot, show time, stitch in time and working with yarn.

Two intermediate courses will also be offered in conjunction with the Mount Prospect Park District. "Happiness is..." will combine beginning swimming with physical education, art and the study of pollution and ecology. Swimming passes must be purchased from the park district.

Reading for boys will also be held in conjunction with the park district. Boys who furnish their own tennis rackets will receive tennis lessons through the park district. A $6 fee must be paid to the park district before the opening of summer school.

Enrichment courses for junior high will include advanced band, advanced math and pre-algebra, babysitting and child care, creative art, consumerism, group piano, guitar, handy Andy, it's a small, small world, jazz band, let's see it all, marching corps, musical production, sewing, swing choir, show time, typing, wars of the United States, and world of insects.

STUDENTS MUST register for two classes, one each from the 9 to 10:30 list and the 10:30 to noon list. The program will be organized on a module plan and students will receive physical education and library opportunities in addition to their classes. Transportation will not be provided.

Payment for classes should accompany the registration form. Refunds will not be made after June 1. Late registrations will be made with the approval of summer school director Dwight Hall, assistant superintendent.

$150,000 bank project planned for Weller Creek

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Backyards bordering Weller Creek in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect will soon stay where they belong — behind the houses instead of in the creek.

Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and the Illinois Division of Waterways are ready to move ahead on a $150,000 bank improvement project stretching from School Street in Mount Prospect, east across the Des Plaines border at Mount Prospect Road to Golf Road and south to the Washington Street bridge.

The Des Plaines City Council has approved entering into a three-way agreement with Mount Prospect and the state to contract with engineering consultants Alstot, March and Guillou. The firm, according to partner George March, expects to let contracts for the work in June and begin work shortly afterwards.

A major part of the work will be installing gabions about 6 feet 6 inches from the stream bed so the low water flow will be adjacent to the gabion, which will prevent the erosion.

A gabion is a wire basket filled with crushed stone. A similar device, a basket filled with straw and earth, was used by ancient Egyptians to save river banks.

ACCORDING TO THE Des Plaines Engineer Robert Bowen the city has attempted to prevent erosion for several years by placing broken concrete along the banks. Although the method has worked in some cases, experts suggested gabions would do a better job, Bowen said.

Grass seed and mulching will be used about the gabions to prevent further erosion.

Areas where banks have caved in will be restored to their original cross section by the project, Bowen said.

Des Plaines has appropriated money for the project from federal revenue sharing funds; Mount Prospect will spend its $50,000 from a $2 million flood control bond issue which has been passed. IDW will provide the third $50,000.

MORE THAN $8 million has been spent on Weller Creek since 1968 to prevent flooding of homes in the area. The state of Illinois in 1968 and 1969 appropriated more than $1.3 million to have the Creek widened, straightened and re-channelled under the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks in Des Plaines. Other monies were appropriated to improve the creek between Mount Prospect Road and Ill. Rte. 83 and a third appropriation went for a flood control program in Mount Prospect between Ill. Rte. 83 and Central Road.

Although the millions of dollars brought some flood relief to the area, the dredging and widening created the current erosion problem.

In 1972 the state spent $90,212 to repair banks between Mount Prospect Road and Williams Street in Mount Prospect.

The contract for work wasn't even finished before the floods of 1972 hit. During 1972 residents in the Cumberland Parkway area of Des Plaines estimated that as much as four feet of their back yards had washed away.

It is expected the erosion will disappear when the current project is completed.

Thank you, Norma Murauskis

Three cheers for Norma Murauskis, 1826 Pheasant Tr. She has offered to direct the Mount Prospect Blood Donor Program as a "volunteer." The local Jaycee's handled the blood program during its first year of operation and the plan was for the village to take over now and keep it going.

Mrs. Murauskis' willingness to handle the job as a volunteer is a saving for the taxpayer. Included in the village budget is an item of $6,000 as salary for a director of the program and $1,068 for necessary office furniture. These expenses will not be necessary now with Norma handling the job as a volunteer and operating from her kitchen.

Energetic and enthusiastic, Norma has already started the job. She has the blood program records in her home, having received them from Carol Hamilton who was the volunteer Jaycee wife directing the job last year (Carol's husband Warren, by the way, is the new president of the Jaycees).

One of the tasks Norma faces immediately is finding other volunteers who are willing to make the many phone calls necessary to keep the program rolling. Calls must be made to find donors, to schedule them for a blood drawing and to remind them of appointments. Anyone who could help — shut ins, older people, young moms — should call Norma.

Also, anyone willing to donate blood at the village's next blood drawing on May 1 should call Norma — 439-9727.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S Memorial Day parade apparently will be held on the traditional May 30 date, a Thursday. The local schools will not have classes on that day and students will be able to participate with the various youth organizations marching in the parade.

But, otherwise, it looks like a real mixed up holiday week with many firms following the national holiday, Monday, May 27.

THE MOUNT PROSPECT Lions Club made a donation of $300 to the Prospect High Band Boosters Club to help finance the Marching Knights' trip to the International Music Festival in Mexico City last week.

SPEAKING of the Lions, new officers were elected last week for 1974-75. President is Frank Reis; first vice president, Edward Losos; second vice president, Robert Welch; third vice president, Conrad Cairns; secretary, Louis Velasco; treasurer, Henry Wallace.

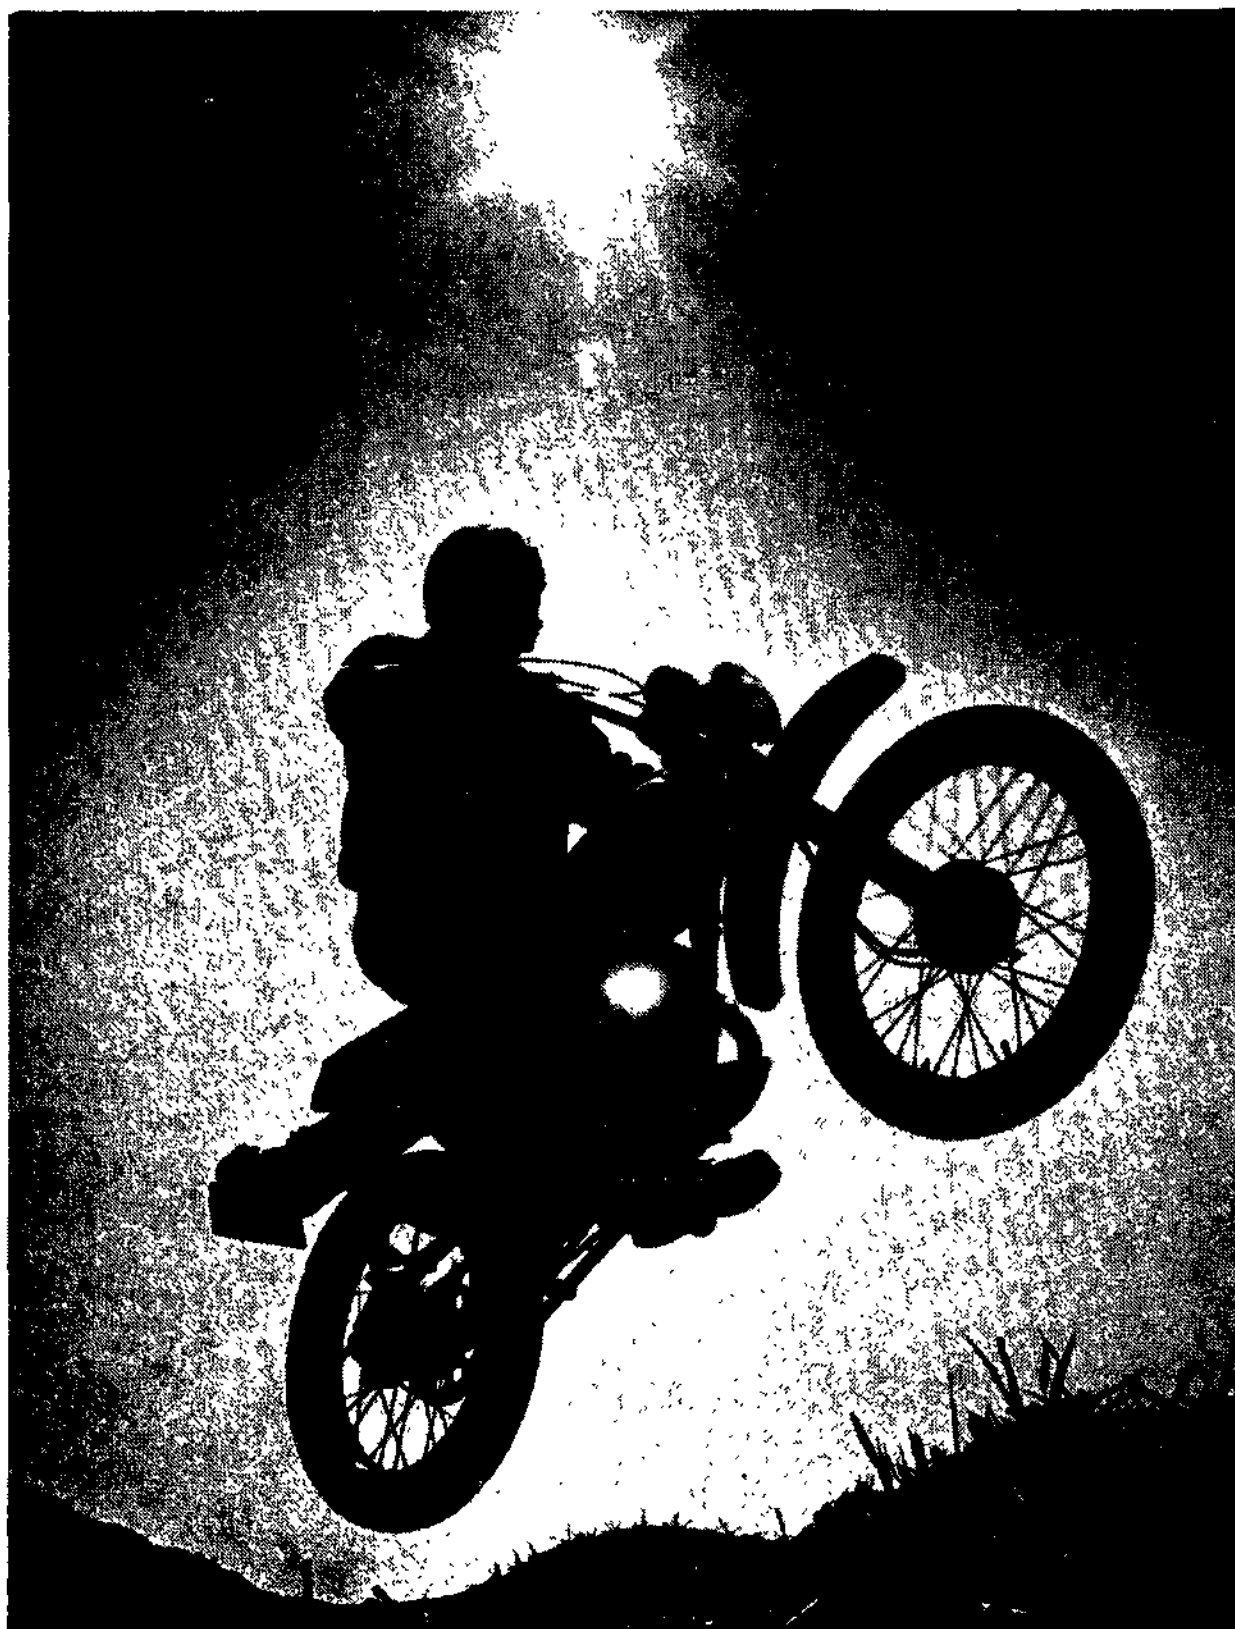

Directors are Ralph Darling, Henry Prochaska, Burton Neuner, Mike Slenczka; Lion tapers are Bert Raylor and Vern Drake; tail twisters, Roger Shutt and Ken Hamann.

THE EARLY HISTORY of real estate in Mount Prospect will be told by George L. Busse Saturday evening. The veteran real estate broker in town will speak at the Mount Prospect Historical Society's meeting at the Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwun, 8 p.m.

Reports will be made on the progress of the Society's historical center on Linneman Road and officers will be elected at the meeting. The public is invited and encouraged to attend.

LAST WEEK Mary Lou Barrett, 114 S. Wa-Palla, a junior at Valparaiso University, was elected president of her sorority, Kappa Psi Omega.

LUTHERAN General Hospital is mentioned in the current Time magazine cover story on alcoholism. It tells of the hospital's 21-day treatment at a cost of $1,827 to help patients kick the alcohol habit.

WITH EVERY SPRING it becomes a little more difficult to find an open place to scramble on motorcycles. But Brian Williams, 17, discovered an open field north of town where he could ride.

Pilot program for gifted gets go-ahead

A pilot program for academically gifted children will get under way for fourth, fifth and sixth grade students in Dist. 26 next year.

The school board this week gave its approval to the project by approving a tentative plan for the program which includes the hiring of a teacher and continuation of the enrichment minicourse program now under way in the district.

"This proposal is to develop a specific identifiable program for the academically gifted students," according to curriculum director Al Levin. Levin added that detail such as academic test cut-off scores for program eligibility, teacher scheduling and exact class content will not be determined until a formal plan is drawn up for the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

As tentatively presented to the school board, the program would use results from two tests administered to the students including SRA tests and Cognitive Abilities tests. Approximately the top five per cent of each grade level in each school would be eligible for the program, although this number may be increased.

The program would probably be one day per week with a full-time teacher directing the classes. The teacher will also be responsible for content of the course using the following guidelines:

- The program will be a combination of group and individualized activities.
- Activities will not duplicate regular class activities.

- Activities will include math, science, language arts and social studies either simultaneously or in unit blocks of time.

The administration report said the district could be reimbursed up to $5,000 from the state to be used toward the salary of a full-time teacher. The district would probably have to spend approximately $7,000 toward salary and other instructional material costs of the program.

Continuation of the enrichment minicourse program will cost the district approximately $2,500.

The board went along with the tentative proposal but added two provisos which it would like the administration to pursue.

- The program should not be limited to fourth, fifth and sixth graders.
- An effort should be made to eliminate "labelling" the gifted students by keeping them in their own school for the special classes and making the classes heterogeneous.

The administration said these considerations would be taken into account it is a pilot program, it will probably be limited to the intermediary grades at least for next year.

Election canvass set for meeting

A canvass of election returns from the April 13 school board race and a reorganization of the board top the agenda items for tonight's meeting of the Dist. 26 school board.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the administration office at Palatine and Schoenbeck Rds., Prospect Heights.

Unofficial results from the school board election give incumbent Melvin Lacey 132 votes, incumbent Vincent Battaglia 127 votes and Robert Horna 52 votes.

The board is also expected to elect a president and secretary to serve until next April.

Cumberland Baptist Church to dedicate new sanctuary

Cumberland Baptist Church, 1500 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, will dedicate its permanent sanctuary this weekend during a flurry of festivities.

A dedication dinner is planned at 7:15 p.m. Friday, with the Rev. Elmer A. Fischer, former pastor of the church, as guest speaker.

A dedication concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday will feature presentations by Mrs. Florence Johnson, a soprano soloist, and Frank Dietz, a baritone soloist. Instrumental selections will be provided by Ralph Colburn, organist, and Mrs. Mary Lou Colburn, pianist.

Sunday activities begin with the Bible school at 9:45 a.m., followed by the morning worship service at 11, where the Rev. Warren Magnuson, general secretary of the Baptist General Conference, will speak.

THE REV. ARMOND W. Anderson,

Mattress fire

damage contained

A mattress fire caused minor damage last week to the Majewski residence, 1400 S. Tamarack Dr., Mount Prospect.

Although firemen said the cause is undetermined, police said one of the Majewski children — there are four — started the fire with matches he got from the kitchen. The other children were watching television and Mrs. Majewski was on the telephone when the 7:42 p.m. Thursday fire was discovered.

Damage was confined to the mattress, although there was also some smoke damage. Arlington Heights firemen also responded to the call.

Scott Szala to intern in Washington, D. C.

Scott Szala, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Szala, 4 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect, has been selected for the executive intern program this summer in Washington, D. C.

Szala will work on military budgets for the Department of the Air Force. He is among 30 students nominated by colleges and universities from across the country to be selected for the program.

A junior at Knox College, Galesburg, Szala participated in Knox's "Washington semester program" last fall, attending American University in Washington. During the term, he also served as an intern in the U. S. Congress.

Panel to weigh heat detectors for apartments

The Arlington Heights Village Board's legal committee will hear from the public tonight on the proposal that heat and smoke detectors be required in village apartments.

Detectors also have been suggested for various types of commercial buildings and may even be required in single family homes.

Legal Committee Chairman James T. Ryan said a number of people have expressed an interest in the proposed ordinance, particularly some apartment building owners who will have a major expense if the ordinance is approved.

The hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

THE VILLAGE BOARD recently authorized a $1,300 expenditure for a consultant who will draft a model ordinance from what Ryan called "a neutral point of view."

While that ordinance will not be ready Monday night, Ryan said it will be possible to talk in general terms about the fire detector requirement, which would be tied in with the village's new apartment licensing ordinance.

The cost of detectors varies widely depending on the kind of equipment installed. One estimate is that it would cost about $100 per apartment unit, and $45 to $50 per home to put in the kind of detectors contemplated under the ordinance.

Ryan said the legal committee "has not really decided" whether to extend the scope of the ordinance to single family homes.

"SOME PEOPLE HAVE said they think it's unconstitutional, or an invasion of privacy. But all we're really talking about is saving lives and property," he said.

The Village of Buffalo Grove, two years ago, passed an ordinance requiring smoke detectors in new single family homes. The legal committee has talked of requiring them in both new and existing homes.

$8,000 more needed for architect

Cultural commission to study lack of funds

The Arlington Heights Cultural Commission tonight is expected to confront the problem of how to raise the money to hire an architect to design a $3 million arts center for the village.

The commission has about $8,000 or half the money it needs, according to Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning, cultural commission secretary. Where to find the rest of the money, however, has not been decided.

Four architectural firms are currently in the running for the job of drawing up plans and making models of a multi-purpose cultural center immediately south of the library.

THEATER CONSULTANT George C. Izenour has recommended that an expandable auditorium be constructed, one that could seat a small audience of 500 or be enlarged to accommodate 1,800. The village paid $8,000 for the Izenour report.

The cultural commission plans to use the architectural drawings and models in its campaign to raise money to actually build the cultural center, a project estimated to cost $3 million.

Originally, the architectural work was estimated to cost $20,000 to $25,000. But the commission now feels it may be able to get the work done for about $16,000, Kenning said.

The Arlington Arts Council, an umbrella organization of local groups, has agreed to pay half the design cost in exchange for guaranteed space and a voice in the design of the new center.

REQUESTS TO THREE private foundations for money have been so far unsuccessful.

The commission may also decide to narrow the field of architects being considered for the cultural center project tonight. The commission has spent almost a year and a half interviewing architectural firms.

Final selection was anticipated at the commission's last meeting on April 2.

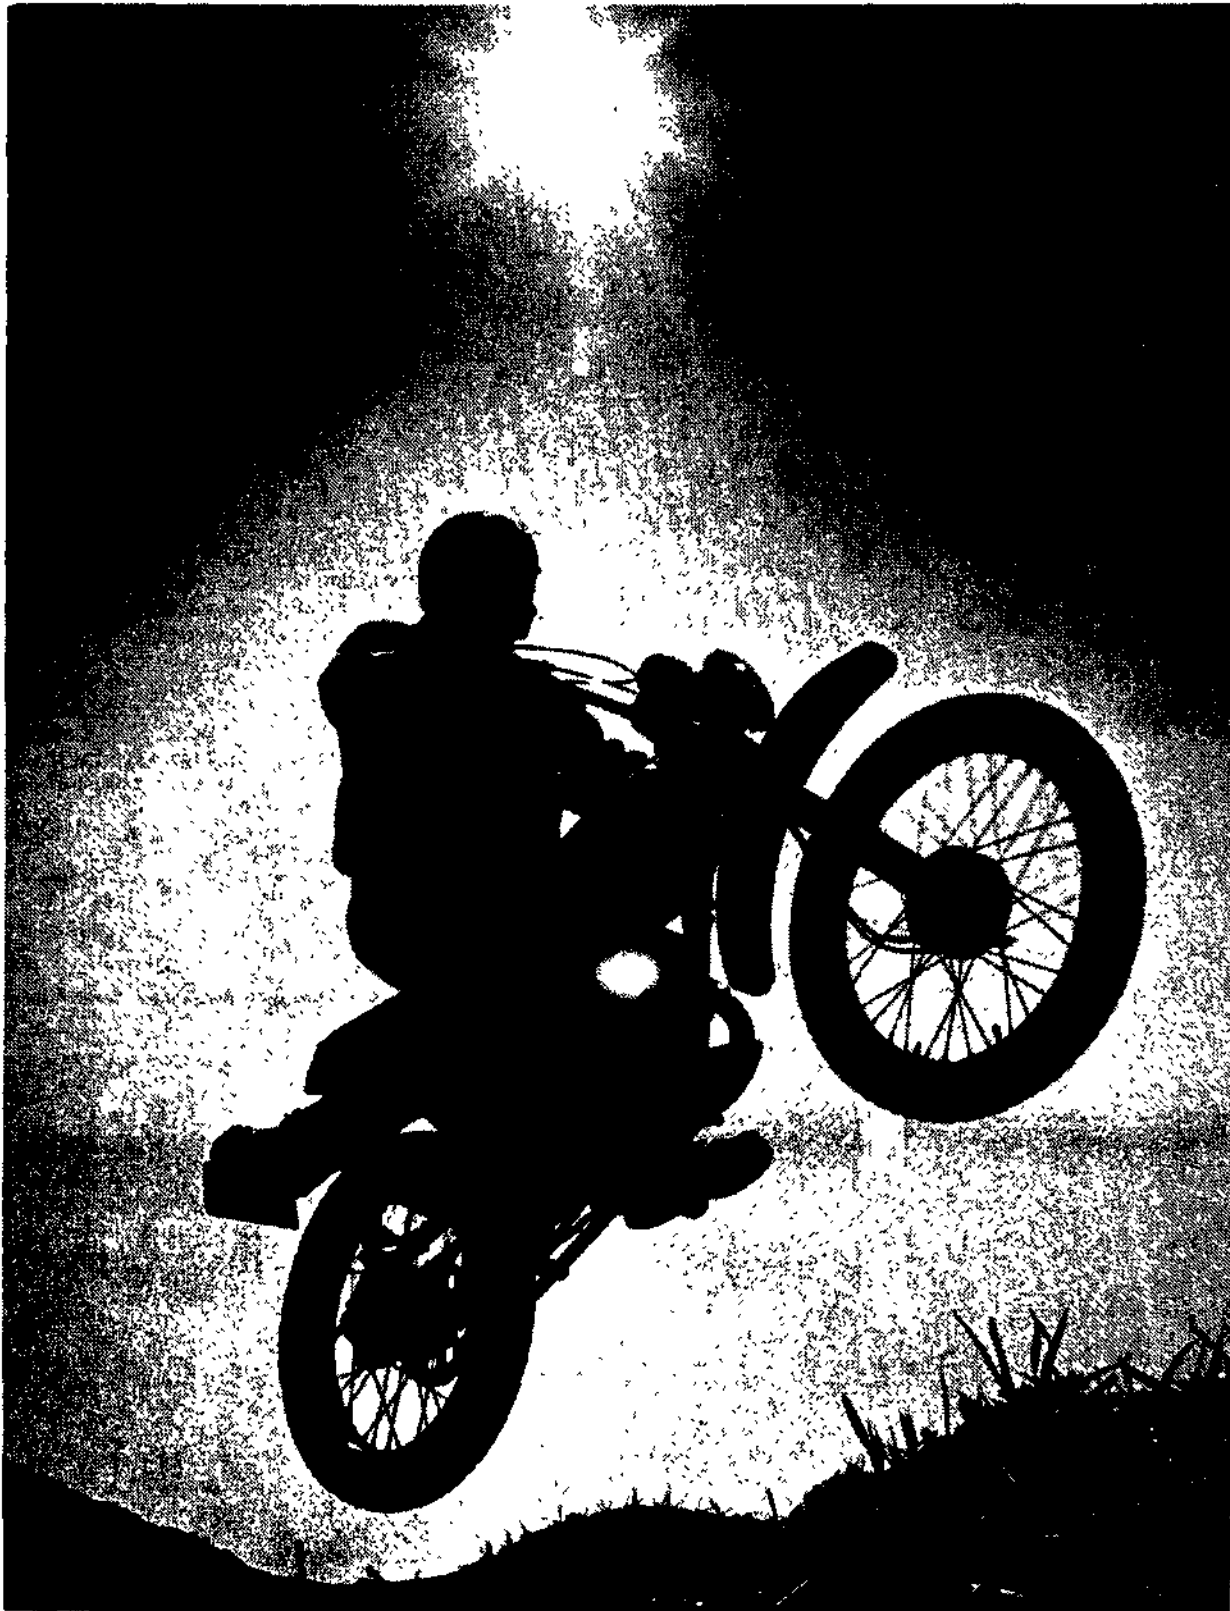

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Bicycle auction set for May 11

The Village of Arlington Heights will hold its annual spring bicycle auction at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 11 at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Some 88 bikes and miscellaneous other unclaimed items collected by the village police department will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

The sale will take place behind the village hall.

WITH EVERY SPRING it becomes a little more difficult to find an open place to scramble on motorcycles. But Brian Williams, 17, discovered an open field north of town where he could ride. More photos on Page 5.

Nun fights alimony challenge

A nun living in a Wisconsin convent will make her appearance in federal court in Chicago to fight for alimony payments she says she is entitled to from her former husband.

Her former husband, James Lane, 1605 Central Rd., Arlington Heights now is paying $250 a month in alimony and wants to stop payments because he contends she has "remarried" the church.

Sister Mary A. Lane, a novice at the Dominican Sisters of the Perpetual Rosary in Milwaukee, will appear before Judge Robert Hunter in U.S. District Court after failing to appear in previous sessions. Her lawyers had said she belonged to a cloistered convent and is not permitted to leave the grounds.

In a report previously submitted to the court, the nun stated she needed the money to provide for medical expenses not covered by the convent because she is a novice and has not taken vows.

Since their divorce in 1970, Lane has remarried and has custody of one of their children.

SISTER MARY Lane however, apparently was able to leave the convent. She appeared Friday before Lane's attorney in Chicago, Edward D. Rosenberg, and gave a deposition to be used in Monday's trial.

Lane, contacted by The Herald Friday, said that he and his former wife attempted to make a settlement of one half the alimony of $125 but failed.

"She claimed she needs the money for dental bills," Lane said. "But she has a savings account and a checking account. One hundred and twenty five dollars should be enough to cover her bills."

Lane believes that the convent does provide for her medical bills. "But she's not going to say that," Lane said.

Sister Mary Lane could not be reached for comment.

Cardboard recycling proposed

A move is under way that could save Arlington Heights businessmen money on the cost of disposing of corrugated cardboard.

The executive director of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, Earl Johnson, said Friday he will try to enlist enough businesses in a cardboard recycling program in which the cost of hauling would be paid by the value of the discarded cardboard.

The Laseke Disposal Co. reportedly has agreed to the program if enough participants can be recruited.

Under the plan, merchants would not be charged the usual $3.62 per cubic yard for collecting and hauling the cardboard. Instead the Laseke company, the only licensed scavenger in Arlington Heights, would make up the money through recycling.

LASEKE WILL BE paid a maximum of $25 a ton for uncontaminated corrugated cardboard.

"I plan to get started the first part of the week talking to merchants to see if we might be able to make the program work," Johnson said. "The problem is getting around to everybody."

Cuts in garbage hauling costs to merchants have been spotlighted recently by the activities of an outside scavenger, American Paper Recycling of Northlake.

American Paper has been collecting cardboard from two village discount stores, apparently in violation of the village ordinance. So far the company has been able to pay the stores an average of $10 a ton for the recyclable boxes.

Laseke, however, has complained that American Paper is taking other, non-recyclable trash mixed in with the cardboard, and the village has asked the outside firm to stop operating.

Cause of fire at track barn yet undetermined

The cause of a barn fire at Arlington Park Race Track Tuesday apparently will go undetermined.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden said Friday that police and fire investigations into the blaze, which destroyed 76 stalls in the wood-frame barn, have failed to turn up who or what may have touched off the fire.

Police did question three boys who were working in the stable area the day of the fire, but found they had not been inside the barn," Hayden said.

State fire marshals also investigated the site but could not come up with any evidence on what caused the fire.

The barn, like the other wooden buildings in the track's backstretch was scheduled for eventual replacement. Arlington Park has agreed to raze all its wood-frame buildings and replace them with concrete structures over the next five years.

The cost of replacing the barn with a larger concrete stable is about $50,000.

Election returns to be canvassed

Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 board members will meet today to canvass the April 13 school board election returns.

The meeting will begin at 9 p.m. at the Administration Building, 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights.

After the canvassing, incumbents Joan Klusmann and Robert Kazlauskis, will be sworn to new three year terms on the board.

The board will elect new officers and consider some formal adoptions, such as appointing a secretary to the board.

Volunteer unit meeting

The annual meeting of the Northwest Cook County Volunteer Service Bureau will be held May 23 at the Ridge School gymnasium at 800 N. Fernandez, Arlington Heights.

Officers for the 1974-5 year will be elected and outstanding volunteers who have offered their services to the community will be honored at this meeting.

McDonnell, Cawley reps to Nike parley

Tom McDonnell and Martin Cawley will present the Committee for Utilization of the Nike Base at a meeting today in Washington between the Army, area legislators and the park district on the fate of the Arlington Heights Nike Base.

The Army will be represented by Asst. Secy. of the Army Eugene E. Berg.

McDonnell and Cawley will represent the homeowners' associations from Surrey Ridge West, Heritage and Surrey Ridge. The committee is made up of members from the park district, local residents and the village board of trustees.

Federal rent subsidies not possible?

by BETTY LEE and KURT BAER

Most Arlington Heights apartment rents are so high that federal low- and moderate-income lease subsidies may not be possible here, according to the chairman of the Arlington Heights Housing Commission.

Chairman Jack Pittas said the Section 23 Housing Assistance Payment Program which allows owners to lease apartment units to a local housing authority for occupancy by low and moderate-income tenants may not be used because of few vacancies available as well as high rents.

"There are not too many apartments available," Pittas said. "There are not going to be open doors."

Rents will be subsidized according to fair market value rentals established by HUD on a countywide level, Pittas said.

"THIS WILL NOT be helpful to us," said Pittas, "because rents in Arlington Heights are higher than in Chicago or in older communities where there are older homes. As I understand it, there may be some leeway from the Cook County Housing Authority of a possible 10 per cent."

A survey recently conducted by the housing commission revealed that less than 10 per cent of Arlington Heights apartments were vacant. The survey was made on the 10 largest apartment complexes in Arlington Heights having 100 units or more.

Apartment owners contacted by The Herald Friday revealed that most were not aware of the federal leasing program. Some said they were willing to look into the program and one owner said he was willing to participate.

"Yes, we would go into it," said Al Zale of the Zale Construction Co. which owns the Brandberry Park East Apartments on Rand and Camp MacDonaid roads in Arlington Heights. Zale thinks the program would help the vacancy rate although the vacancy problem is not as critical as it once was.

RENTS AT THE Brandberry apartments are from $210 to $225 for one bedroom and $255 to $275 for two bedrooms.

The owner of New Salem and Scarsdale apartments, H. Myles Gordon, doubts that Section 23 would work in the village.

"Arlington Heights is not a low and moderate-income type community," Gordon said. "I don't think there are that many needy people." He added that the trend in the past few years to condominium buying has taken up "a lot of slack" in apartment vacancies.

Gordon said his apartments are high-priced — $285 to $310 a month and low and moderate income people would be at a disadvantage.

"Other families would balk at low-income people living next to them and they (low earners) in turn would feel uncomfortable."

Owners of Stonebridge Hill and Greenbrier apartments said they would be willing to explore the federal leasing program because they are not familiar with it. Rents at Stonebridge are $310 to $315 for two bedrooms and about $255 for one bedroom apartments.

A more thorough survey by the housing commission on vacancies will be conducted soon, Pittas said.

THE LEASING PROGRAM may be the only way of getting federally subsidized housing in the suburbs because the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development is dropping many of its old programs.

A freeze on subsidized housing projects was imposed by President Nixon early 1973 and will be brought to an end when revisions of the leasing program are issued by HUD. The new guidelines are expected "at any time."

"The fact is if there were vacancies, the Section 23 program would be desirable to developers," Pittas said. He added that qualified persons who already live in apartments with low and moderate-income would be eligible to have their rent subsidized.

The housing commission plans to draft a resolution for village trustees to adopt for providing subsidized housing through the federal leasing program. HUD requires that municipalities endorse the program in order to become eligible.

Community Council may be forced to disband

by BOB GALLAS

The Dist. 39 School Community Council, once an active, involved parent organization, will face the question of disbanding at its next full membership meeting, scheduled for May 8.

The lack of direction and dwindling membership made the decision necessary, according to Nita Stamm, council president. "We're against it (disbanding), but you can't run an organization with just six people," said Mrs. Stamm. "We're hoping that we'll be able to get a big turnout at our May meeting to get some new blood in the organization."

Ordinarily, the council would have about 40 members — two representatives from each Dist. 39 school — plus a six-person executive board. The board conducts much of the council's business, drawing on the membership for help in projects and other activities.

The organization is somewhat closed — its members come only from school parent organizations, which nominate two delegates from their group to attend School Community Council meetings, usually held five times per year.

The executive board meets every month.

Partial blame for the lack of interest is an absence of things to do, admitted Mrs. Stamm, who added that attendance at some meetings was only four people.

ACCORDING TO MRS. Stamm, one of the prime functions of the Community Council is to act as a liaison between the school board and the community. She blamed Supt. James Erviti as being part of the problem.

"Erviti has refused to recognize Community Council as a working and service group to the school board," said Mrs. Stamm. "He won't let us do anything. If the board would let us be the working group it used to be, I don't believe we'd have this problem of lack of interest," said Mrs. Stamm.

Some of School Community Council's projects have included preparing packets which are designed to inform new teachers about the Northwest suburbs. The council has also undertaken a foreign language survey in the district and designed the report cards presently in use.

ERVITI, WEIGHING HIS comments carefully, didn't agree with Mrs. Stamm's statement saying he was responsible for the demise of School Community Council.

"An organization must have purpose and must reexamine this purpose periodically to be successful," said Erviti. "It's purpose, however, must be generated from within, not from the outside."

Erviti added that the district did support the Community Council by providing services such as postage and supplies, along with providing meeting space and a staff person assigned to attend council meetings. "It's also one of the few organizations mentioned specifically in the school board's policy manual," said Erviti.

Some help for the troubled council may come from the school board itself, which presently has several members who are past members of School Community Council.

"Perhaps we're partly to blame," said board president Jerry Smiley. "Hopefully this year we can get them more involved on committees," said Smiley, who hinted that there will be board discussion of the council's problem.

SMILEY, WHO IS a former Council member, said it was a good source for opinion, since it is usually made up of citizens with a more than average interest in education.

Another former council member now on the school board, Emil Bahnmaier, said he hopes School Community Council can continue to be a viable force in the district, but added he didn't know the answer to their present apathy problem.

Bahnmaier echoed Mrs. Stamm's comment on a need for new members in the council. "Right now, it's the same people doing it all," he said.

A LOOMING QUESTION will be answered early next month when the general meeting of the council is called to order.

If there's a good turnout, new officers will hopefully be elected to the council's executive board, according to Mrs. Stamm.

"If not, the present executive board will be faced with a simple problem," she said.

"Is it all worth it?"

'Keep this land open...'

"MAKE IT SO THEY don't build an apartment on this land," said Bob Brytowski. He said this open field north of the village is one of the few spots left in the Northwest suburbs where an amateur cyclist can still go after school "just for a little fun."

Special activities planned for National Library Week

A slate of activities for both adults and children has been created by the Arlington Heights Memorial Library for National Library Week, April 21 through 27.

In the children's department, the annual children's book showcase exhibiting a selection of outstanding works will be on display throughout the month of April. Thirty-one books, selected for design, illustration and production, was chosen among 400 entries by the Children's Book Council of New York.

Countryside Art Center will display various works of children's art in the children's and a junior high room.

Winners of a photo contest for students sponsored by the library will be announced during National Library Week.

A 60-minute sample of films will be shown Tuesday night at 8 in the Dunton Room.

Library patrons may check out films through a library film cooperative, the Suburban Audiovisual Service.

WEDNESDAY IS library legislation day. Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, and Jay Larson, head of adult services will attend special conferences at the Illinois Capitol, Springfield.

Also on Wednesday teachers, school librarians and learning center instructors from area elementary and junior high schools are invited to a coffee from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Dunton Room. Teachers will meet with librarians and see the new books available to children.

Richard Calisch, a practicing hypnotist and faculty member at Elk Grove High School, will demonstrate the use of hypnosis Thursday evening at 8 in the Dunton Room.

Volunteers will be chosen from the audience. Those volunteers under 18, however, must have written permission from a parent in order to participate.

ALSO ON THURSDAY, story time for four and five-year-olds will be held from 10 to 10:30 a.m. The story time is conducted weekly by volunteers from the Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club.

Children in first through third grades may meet for the Lion's Lair book club after school from 4 to 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Laurel and Hardy movies will be shown at the library on Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and at 2:30 p.m. for the children.

Three Eagle Scouts in Troop 159 here

Three Arlington Heights Boy Scouts from Troop 159 were recently awarded the rank of Eagle Scout.

Receiving the awards were: John Lytle, of 1338 W. Park; Curt Carlson, of 307 N. Yale, and Tim Drazba, of 116 S. Dwyer.

Ken Misch received the Eagle Gold Palm award.

Other scouts of the troop, sponsored by St. Simon's Episcopal Church, who received promotions were: Jim Fett, Tim Jacobsen, Randy Moellenkamp and Joe Thomas, Star Scout; Keith George, Jeff Jacobsen, Tom Manusos and John Morck, First Class; Brad Boney, Don Busse and Seth Kahn, Second Class; Mike Mleko and Brian Rukstales Tenderfoot.

Scout Investiture Ceremonies were conducted for Robert Buerer and Mark Stephamites.

PTA notes

Kensington School PTA will sponsor a salad luncheon, "Sunshine and Salads" on April 30 at the school, 201 S. Evans-ton, Arlington Heights.

Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the multi-purpose room.

Tickets are available by calling Marleen Demski at 392-7175. Donations are $1.50 and free babysitting service will be available at the school.

Esther Cole is the new president of the Kensington School PTA. Other officers are Chellis Johnson, vice president; Marie Mayfield, secretary and Carolyn Boeckler, treasurer.

Hearings on ex-Palatine police chief come to a halt

by JULIA BAUER

The Centner hearings ground to a close Sunday, with the central figure, former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner, countering nearly every charge brought against him by the village board and several policemen in the department.

During detailed testimony Sunday afternoon, Centner told the Palatine Fire and Police Commission of improvements he initiated as chief of the Palatine Police Department from 1962 to June 25, 1973.

The marathon hearings, which lasted for 10 sessions, began Dec. 1 to investigate the village board's reasons for forcing Centner's resignation last June. Newly elected village trustees and policemen criticized the former chief's policies, which they contended were the reason for a widespread morale problem in the police department.

SUPPORTERS OF Centner countered that the charges were minor and were made to cover a village board-police coalition to oust the chief, possibly in return for lower police salary demands.

The fire and police commission of Paul Jung, Roger Mick and Gray M. Sanborn will submit written decisions on the eight charges brought by the village. No date has been set for release of their findings. Their conclusions are not expected to affect Centner's status in the police department.

"All you can do is to restore Robert Centner's good name. That's all that's left within your power to do," John D. Hayes, Centner's attorney, told the panel.

More than 3,000 signatures on petitions calling for the public hearings caused a reluctant village board to grant the request.

In his concluding statement, Village Special Atty. Jack Siegel said, "Maybe those 3,000 people who signed the petitions that kept us here for five months chasing a will o' the wisp really didn't know Centner was a good chief or a bad one, but the policemen who worked with him every day knew, and you heard their testimony."

A Republican slate for village trustees swept the April, 1973 election, and new trustees moved to oust Centner in June. The former chief has been a lieutenant on the force since his resignation. A new fulltime chief, Jerry Bratcher, began in January, with Lt. Frank Ortiz serving as acting chief in the 7-month interim.

Two witnesses subpoenaed by Centner's attorney failed to appear at Sunday's hearing. Local businessmen Robert Galloy and Patrolman Terry Mazur, were subpoenaed to testify about campaign contributors and their possible influence on Centner's ouster, and an alleged deal to lower salary demands if the chief was removed.

Drugs were a major issue hit by Centner during his testimony. Village Trustees James Shaw and Robert Guss, who called for the chief's resignation in a press release last June, accused Centner of "wearing blinders" and showing "a horrible lack of judgment" for his decision to pull out of a countywide undercover drug enforcement program.

Centner was the founder of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) organization in 1971. He testified Sunday that his decision to withdraw from MEG last year was based on the change in the organization's program.

LOCAL POLICE in MEG, originally worked in the northern areas of Cook County, but for 1973, Centner said his man would be "going countywide" on drug cases and Centner had been reassured that Palatine could still get MEG assistance even though it did not directly participate.

Other primary charges which Centner answered:

• Lack of modern and efficient equipment: Centner said he developed a program to computerize crime statistics on the village's computer system which has become the model program for other police departments; a new radio console to replace the existing one which Centner admitted was outdated, was one of the chief's priorities, but was deleted from the budget by Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun.

Hayes entered as evidence the job description for chief applicants who would replace Centner. The application, written by a three-man search committee, describes the Palatine Police Department as a "well-trained, well-equipped department."

Other testimony hit evidence, submitted earlier by Ortiz, of increased arrests since Centner's removal. Under questioning by Hayes, Centner said he believed in "quality of arrests, not quantity."
